ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

[Ref. 475,138.]

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

Saturday, the 17th day of December, 1904.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

ON a Report dated 29th November, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, submitting that in February, 1900, Mr. James Haddock, of Dawson, applied for a lease under the provisions of the regulations then in force, of an hydraulic mining location situated on Dublin Gulch, a tributary of Haggart Creek, a branch of the McQuesten River, in the Yukon Territory, and certificates were issued by the proper officers of the Department of the Interior at Dawson to the effect that it had been proved that the applicant himself, or a person acting for him, had been upon and actually prospected the ground included in this location, and that the ground included in such location was not being worked and was not suitable to be worked under the regulations governing placer mining.

The Minister states that owing to a succession of delays which took place in connection with this application, through no fault of the applicant, it was not granted up to the 2nd of February, 1904, on which date, by an Order of the Governor in Council, the regulations governing the issue of leases for hydraulic mining purposes in the Yukon Territory were rescinded, but the Minister of the Interior was still authorized to deal in accordance with the provisions of the regulations with all leases already issued, and with all applications already granted.

The Minister further states that in August, 1903, application was made to the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory for instructions for the survey of the location applied for, but the applicant was informed that as his application had not been granted by the Department of the Interior, instructions for the survey of the location could not be issued. Upon further consideration, however, the Commissioner authorized the issue of the instructions for the survey of the location, upon the understanding that the issue thereof would not convey to the applicant any guarantee that the application for a lease would be favourably considered, and this provision was inserted in the instructions for the survey. The survey, however, was made, and the returns thereof were approved by the Director of Surveys at Dawson, and were forwarded to the Department of the Interior at Ottawa.

That the Commissioner in May last reported that the location applied for by Mr. Haddock is, in his opinion, quite unlikely to be worked except by hydraulic mining methods ; that, if it were feasible, there would be no objection to granting an hydraulic mining lease for the location applied for by Mr. Haddock ; and that he is quite convinced that mining operations will never be carried on upon Dublin Gulch to any extent, unless some large operators obtain the property and work it on an extensive scale by hydraulic methods.

That as it appears from the evidence on file in the Department of the Interior that the applicant made an earnest effort to have his application granted during the period that the regulations were in force, and as the provisions of the regulations under which the application was made have been fully complied with, the Minister is of the opinion that the interests of placer miners in that locality would not suffer if the tract for which Mr. Haddock has applied were included in an hydraulic mining lease.

The Minister, therefore, recommends that he be authorized to issue a lease in favour of Mr. Haddock of the location, as shown on the plan of survey thereof filed in the Department of the Interior, excluding thereout any placer mining claims for which entries may have been granted, and which are in force on the date of the issue of such lease, and he further recommends that provision shall be made in the lease that the lessee shall, during the first two years from the date of the issue, complete the ditches and flumes necessary for the conveyance of water for the efficient working of the location by hydraulic mining methods, and shall commence such hydraulic mining on a sufficiently extensive scale within that period, otherwise the lease issued in his favour will be null and void ; and that if the location is at any time worked by any method other than hydraulic mining or dredging, the lease will be subject to cancellation. The lease issued in favour of the applicant to be on the prescribed form, with such additions and alterations as he, the Minister of the Interior, may find it necessary to make and shall provide for an expenditure of at least $10,000 within one year from the date of the lease.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
28–4 Clerk of the Privy Council.

Saturday, the 17th day of December, 1904.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

ON a Memorandum dated 28th November, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, stating with reference to an Order in Council dated 25th August, 1891, vesting certain swamp lands in Her late Majesty the Queen for the purposes of the Province of Manitoba,—

That Legal Subdivision 13 of Section 14, Township 13, Range 13, West Principal Meridian, was included through oversight in schedule attached to the said Order in Council, but this land was not available for the purpose of transfer to the Province as it was patented in the name of Kenneth McKenzie by patent bearing date 7th March, 1881.

The Minister therefore recommends that the Order in Council dated 25th August, 1891, vesting certain lands in Her late Majesty the Queen for the purposes of the Province of Manitoba, be amended by eliminating from the schedule attached to the said Order in Council, Legal Subdivision 13, of Section 14, Township 13, Range 13, West Principal Meridian.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

No. 115 of 1904.

(Atlantic Notice No. 65.)

All bearings, unless otherwise noted, are magnetic and are given from seaward, miles are nautical miles, heights are above high water, and all depths are at mean low water.

(308) UNITED STATES NAVAL WIRELESS TELEGRAPH SERVICE.

The following regulations governing the use of the U. S. Naval Coastwise Wireless Telegraph Stations have been established:—

1. The facilities of the naval coastwise wireless telegraph stations (including the one on the Nantucket Shoal Lightship), for communicating with ships at sea, where not in competition with private wireless telegraph stations, are placed at the service of the public generally and of maritime interests in particular under the rules established herein, which are subject to modification from time to time, for the purpose of:—

(a) Reporting vessels and intelligence received by wireless telegraphy with regard to maritime casualties, derelicts at sea and overdue vessels.

(b) Receiving wireless telegrams of a private or commercial nature from ships at sea, for further transmission by telegraph or telephone lines.

(c) Transmitting wireless telegrams to ships at sea.

2. For the present, this service will be rendered free. All messages will, however, be subject to the tariffs of the ship stations and land lines. Arrangements have been made with both the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies for forwarding messages received from ships at sea. When a message is not prepaid the company delivering it will collect the charges. Ship-owners should arrange with companies operating the land lines as to tariffs and the settlement therefor. Messages will not be accepted for transmission to ships whose owners have not agreed to accept unpaid messages, unless a sufficient sum is deposited to cover all charges.

3. The Nantucket Shoal Lightship Station will report vessels and transmit messages from them if the signals are made by the International Code, or any other known to the operators on the lightship.

4. When notified by the Weather Bureau, of the Department of Agriculture, Naval wireless telegraph stations will give storm warnings to vessels communicating with them by wireless telegraphy. Storm warnings will soon be sent to the Nantucket Shoal Lightship by wireless telegraphy, and storm signals furnished by the Weather Bureau will be displayed therefrom to warn passing vessels.

5. All vessels having the use of the Naval wireless telegraph service are requested to take daily meteorological observations of the weather when within communicating range and to transmit such observations to the Weather Bureau by wireless telegraphy at least once daily, and transmit observations oftener when there is a marked change in the barometer.

6. Arrangements for a time signal service by wireless telegraphy are now being made.

7. All ship-owners desiring to use any special code of signals for communicating with the Nantucket Shoal Lightship Station or any of the shore stations, or make any other special arrangements are requested to communicate with the Bureau of Equipment, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

8. All Chambers of Commerce, Maritime Exchanges, newspapers, news agencies, and others desiring to have vessel reports and general marine news forwarded to them regularly are requested to communicate with the Bureau of Equipment, in order that necessary arrangements for the service may be made. In no case will an operator attached to a station be allowed to act as an agent for any individual or corporation, but all vessel reports and marine news not of a private nature will be supplied to all applicants, so long as this service does not too greatly tax the personnel of the stations, when it will be necessary for those desiring information involving much time for its distribution to appoint agents who will be allowed access to the station bulletins.

9. Naval wireless telegraph stations are equipped with apparatus of several systems and can communicate with all the principal wireless telegraph systems now in use, if tuned to the same wave length. The department is desirous of co-operating with all ship-owners wishing to avail themselves of its wireless telegraph service, and, judging from its experience with numerous systems, it is believed that there will be little or no difficulty in arranging for communication between its stations and ships equipped with apparatus of other systems, if the owners of the apparatus as well as the owners of the ships are desirous of establishing such communication.

10. Vessels desiring to make use of this service regularly must agree to transmit and receive all Government messages free.

The following stations are fully manned and will be prepared to receive messages at all hours, except in case of some accidental breakdown, which is not apt to occur because of the precautionary measures which have been taken.

The call letter is given in the column opposite the name of each station :

The Bureau of Equipment expects to erect wireless telegraph stations at the principal points along the coast of the United States and at points in its insular possessions. As fast as they are completed they will be open for public use under the regulations established herein.

Messages for the Cape Ann station should be forwarded via the Navy Yard, Portsmouth, N. H.

The Nantucket Shoal Lightship will transmit its messages to the Torpedo Station, Newport, R. I. All messages intended to be sent via this lightship to ships at sea should be sent to the Torpedo Station.

Messages for the Montauk Point wireless telegraph station will also be sent via the Torpedo Station, Newport, R. I.

Arrangements have been made with the Weather Bureau for the transmission of messages between Cape Henry wireless telegraph station and Norfolk. All messages intended for the Cape Henry station should be sent via the Weather Bureau, Norfolk, Va.

All messages intended for Dry Tortugas should be sent via the Naval Station, Key West, Fla.

The station at Yerba Buena, Cal., can be reached by either the Postal Telegraph or the Western Union system and the one at Mare Island by the Western Union.

The Farallon station will communicate with Yerba Buena Island, Cal.

Instructions to govern communication by wireless telegraphy between wireless telegraph stations and ships.

I. A vessel wishing to communicate with a station and having ascertained by "listening in" that she is not interfering with messages being exchanged within her range should make the call letter of the station at a distance not greater than 75 miles from it.

II. The call should not be continuous, but should be at intervals of about three minutes in order to give the station a chance to answer.

III. After the station answers the vessel should send her name, distance from station, weather and number of words she wishes to send ; then stop until the station makes O. K., signals the number of words she wishes to send to vessel and signals go ahead.

IV. Then the vessel begins to send her messages, stopping at the end of each 50 words and waiting until the station signals O. K. and go ahead ; when all messages have been sent she will so indicate. If the sender desires to designate the Western Union or Postal Telegraph system for further transmission of his message he should do so immediately after the address, as for example : "A. B. C., Washington, D. C., via W. U. (or P. T.)"

V. When a vessel has indicated that she has finished the station will send to the vessel such messages as she may have for her in the following order :

(a) Government business, viz., telegrams from any government departments to their agents on board.

(b) Business concerning the vessel with which communication has been established, viz., telegrams from owner to master.

(c) Urgent private despatches, limited.

(d) Press despatches.

(e) Other despatches.

VI. In the case of the Nantucket shoal lightship, it will, immediately on receiving the vessel's call, acknowledge, and (after receiving vessel's name, distance, weather report, and number of words she wishes to send) transmit the first three to Newport, and then tell the vessel to go ahead with her messages.

VII. After receiving these and sending the vessel any message on file for her, the lightship will transmit to Newport messages received from the communicating vessel in the following order :

(a) Government business.

(b) Urgent private despatches, limited.

(c) Press despatches.

(d) Other despatches.

VIII. A naval wireless telegraph station has the right to break in on any message being sent by a vessel at any time, and the right of way may be given at any time to a government vessel or one in distress.

IX When two or more vessels desire to communicate with a naval wireless telegraph station at the same time, the one whose call is first received will have right of way, and the others will be told to wait and will be taken up in turn. Vessels having been told to wait must cease calling.

X. In case communication is not established with any ship for which messages are on file, the naval wireless telegraph station will notify the telegraph company from which the messages were received, giving sufficient information for them to identify the telegrams and notify the sender.

XI. In order to obtain the best results, both sending and receiving apparatus should be tuned to wave length of 320 meters.

XII. Until further notice the speed of sending should not exceed 12 words per minute.

XIII. In order that all messages received at naval wireless telegraph stations may be forwarded to ships for which they are intended, and in order that all ships equipped with wireless telegraph apparatus may receive storm warnings, they should always report when in signaling distance of a naval wireless telegraph station.

XIV. The service being without charge at present, the government accepts no responsibility for the reception or transmission of messages from or for passing vessels. Every effort will be made to transmit all messages without error and as expeditiously as possible. It must be remembered that errors are not uncommon in ordinary telegraph and cable messages, so that due allowance should be made.

XV. In order that the service may be made as good and as useful as possible, it is requested that complaints should be promptly reported to the Bureau of Equipment as soon as possible after the cause therefor, giving date, hour and other details, to enable the Bureau to investigate the case.

PRÉSENT :

SON EXCELLENCE LE GOUVERNEUR GÉNÉRAL EN CONSEIL.

Que la subdivision légale 13 de la section 14, township 13, rang 13 à l'ouest du principal méridien, avait été incluse par erreur dans la liste attachée au dit arrêté en conseil, mais n'était pas disponible pour être transférée à la province parce qu'elle avait été concédée au nom de Kenneth McKenzie en date du 7 de mars 1881,—

A ces causes, le Ministre recommande que l'arrêté en conseil daté le 25 d'août 1891, qui attribue certains terrains à feu Sa Majesté la Reine pour les fins de la province du Manitoba, soit modifié en éliminant de la liste attachée au dit arrêté en conseil la subdivision légale 13 de la section 14, township 13, rang 13, à l'ouest du principal méridien.

Le comité soumet ce qui précède à l'approbation.

JOHN J. McGEE.

RULES FOR THE INSPECTION OF STEAMBOATS AND FOR THE EXAMINATION OF ENGINEERS OF STEAMBOATS.

PART I.

Mode of Inspection.

Sec. 1. Any Inspector may, whenever he deems it necessary so to do, and one Inspector shall, at least once in every year, subject the boiler of every steamboat to a test by hydrostatic pressure, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds allowable as a working pressure, using the water in such test at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and shall satisfy himself by examination and experimental trials that such boiler is well made of good and suitable materials. For the purpose of such test the owner of the steamboat shall provide the necessary hand-pump and apparatus, the same to be worked by the crew of the vessel; and no Inspector of boilers and machinery shall make or deliver to the owner or master of any steamboat any certificate, unless he has first subjected the boiler or boilers of such steamboat to such test by hydrostatic pressure and examination as herein prescribed.

Sec. 2. Before a boiler is subjected to a test by hydrostatic pressure, it shall be opened up for inspection, the man-hole and mud-plate doors removed, and the outside and the inside of the boiler cleaned, the furnace grates removed and the furnace swept out clean, so that satisfactory and efficient inspection may be made; when bulkheads are so placed as to prevent a close examination of the plate of the boiler, they shall be removed; and the owner or master of the steamboat shall see that the foregoing requirements are complied with before applying for inspection.

Sec. 3. In any case in which the test is not satisfactory, the defects shall be made good and the boiler re-tested satisfactorily, before a certificate is granted.

Sec. 4. Inspectors are to fix the working pressure of boilers by a series of calculations of the strength of the various parts, and according to the workmanship and material of which they are composed.

Sec. 5. Before testing a boiler the Inspectors shall examine it, take the necessary measurements and calculate what the working pressure should be, in accordance with these regulations; these instructions apply to superheaters, steam chests, and water-jackets, as well as boilers.

Sec. 6. If a boiler is too hot for an Inspector to examine it efficiently with safety and convenience, he should decline to do so, and absolutely refuse to grant a certificate until he can make a satisfactory examination.

Sec. 7. In order to satisfy himself as to strength and internal condition of the boiler, the Inspector may, should he deem it necessary, order holes to be cut in it, and may also demand that such information by drawings and specifications of the several parts be furnished him of the construction, as will enable him to determine, by calculation and examination, their strength.

Sec. 8. During the construction of every boiler intended for use on Steamboats in Canada, the maker of such boiler shall notify the Inspector of the District in which it is intended to be used, or the nearest available inspector, that it is open to his inspection, and shall, at all times during such construction allow the Inspector free access to it.

Sec. 9. To prevent questions arising after a boiler is commenced, particulars of its construction by drawings and specifications should be furnished the Inspector by the maker or contractor, for his approval as to its general design and construction; the Inspector having received such drawings or specifications, and approved of them, will be careful to see that they are followed in construction, or deductions made in accordance with Section 25. This regulation will also apply to boilers undergoing alterations.

Sec. 10. No boiler shall be made of boiler plate, whether iron or steel, which has not been stamped with the name or mark of the maker thereof; and no certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler made wholly or in part of plate not so marked; and before a certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler, a declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler, stating the name of the maker of the plates, their quality and the quality of all materials used in the construction of the boiler, shall be furnished the Inspector; such oath may be taken before any Justice of the Peace in Canada, or before a Notary Public and certified under his official seal, if taken out of Canada: Provided always, that in any case where such declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler cannot be obtained owing to the death of the maker, or from other causes deemed sufficient by the Inspector, the affidavit of two practical boiler-makers who have examined the boiler and reported upon the quality of the materials in it and its workmanship and strength, shall, if satisfactory to the Inspector, be deemed sufficient in lieu of such declaration by the maker of the boiler.

Sec. 11. No boiler or pipe in connection therewith shall be approved which is made in whole or in part of bad material or workmanship, or is unsafe in its form, or from age, use or from any other cause.

Sec. 12. Inspectors should see all new boilers, and boilers that have been taken out of a ship for thorough repair, tested by hydraulic pressure up to at least one and one-half of the working pressure that will be allowed, previous to the boiler being placed in the vessel, to test the workmanship, etc., but the working pressure is to be determined by the stay power, the thickness of the plate, strength of riveting, etc., and not by the hydraulic test.

Sec. 13. The hydraulic test should in no case exceed the ratio of one and one-half the working pressure allowed, and it is never to be applied until the boiler has been opened up for examination and until the strength of all the parts has been calculated from the necessary measurements taken from the boiler itself.

Sec. 14. When a boiler is partially inspected by one Inspector, and the inspection is completed and the certificate to be granted by another Inspector, if the Inspector who witnesses the test of the boiler by the hydrostatic pressure has an opportunity of examining the boiler inside and outside after the test, such Inspector shall determine the working pressure to be allowed on the boiler, taking care to inform the owner or master, or maker or agent, and the Inspector who partially inspected it, what working pressure should in his opinion be allowed, and the Inspector who partially inspected the boiler should inform the Inspector who completes the inspection of all particulars of his inspection of the boiler.

Sec. 15. Cast iron must not be used for stays in boilers; Inspectors should also discourage the use of cast iron for chocks and saddles for boilers; particular attention should be paid to chocking and fastening boilers to the vessels to guard against shifting or breaking loose.

Sec. 16. A pressure once allowed on a boiler is not, under any circumstances whatever, to be increased, unless the Inspector has previously written for and obtained the sanction of the Chairman of the "Board of Steamboat Inspection." In cases where an Inspector is of opinion that an increased pressure may with safety be allowed, he should communicate with the Inspector who last inspected the boiler, and if on learning why the existing pressure was formerly allowed, the Inspector is still of opinion that it may be increased, he should communicate all the facts of the case to the Chairman; but, as above stated, the pressure should not, in any case, be increased until the question has been decided by the Chairman.

Sec. 17. In the event of any novelty in construction of a boiler, or of any departure from the practice of staying and strengthening as prescribed in these rules and regulations, the Inspector shall report full particulars to the Chairman before fixing the working pressure.

Sec. 18. An Inspector shall not declare a boiler safe unless he is fully informed as to its construction, material and workmanship. He should, therefore, be very careful how he ventures to give a certificate for a boiler that he is not called in to inspect until after it is completed and fixed in the ship.

Sec. 19. In the case of new boilers, the Inspector may allow a stress not exceeding 7,000 pounds per square inch of net section on solid iron screw stays supporting flat surfaces, but the stress should not exceed 6,000 pounds when the stays have been welded or worked in the fire.

Sec. 20. (a) The pressure on plates forming flat surfaces is found by the following formula:—

$$\frac{C \times (T + 1)^2}{S - 6} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

T = Thickness of plate in sixteenths of an inch.

S = Surface supported in square inches.

C = Constant according to the following circumstances:—

C = 100 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays are fitted with nuts and washers, the latter being at least three times the diameter of the stay and two-thirds the thickness of the plate they cover.

C = 90 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays are fitted with nuts only.

C = 70 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays screwed into the plates, having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

C = 60 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the steam in contact with the plates, and the stays fitted with nuts and washers, the latter being at least three times the diameter of the stay, and two-thirds the thickness of the plates they cover.

C = 54 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam in contact with the plates, and the stays fitted with nuts only.

(b.) If the diameter of riveted washers be at least two-thirds the pitch of the stays, and the thickness not less than the plates they cover, the constants may be increased to 150.

(c.) When doubling plates are fitted of the same thickness of the plates they cover, and not less in width than two-thirds the pitch of the stays, the constants may be increased to 160.

(d.) When doubling plates cover the whole of the flat surfaces, of a thickness not greater than the plates covered, nor less than two-thirds of their thickness, and being securely riveted to them; the strength to be taken from where t = thickness of doubling plate in sixteenths C = 140 for iron, and 175 for steel plates. T and S, same as above.

$$\frac{C + (T + \frac{t}{2})^2}{S} = \text{working pressure in lbs. per square inch.}$$

C = 80 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, with water in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates and fitted with nuts.

C = 60 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, with water in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates, having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

C = 36 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam in contact with the plates, with the stays screwed into the plates, and having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

(e.) In cases where plates are stiffened by T or L irons, and a greater pressure is required for the plate than is allowed by the use of the above constants, the case should be submitted for the consideration of the Chairman.

(f.) When the riveted ends of the screw stays are much worn, or when the nuts are burned, the constants should be reduced, but the Inspector must act according to the circumstances that present themselves at the time of the inspection, and it is expected that in cases where the riveted ends of screw stays in the combustion boxes and furnaces are found in this state it will be often necessary to reduce the constant from 60 to 36.

(g.) Flat steel plates, which are in no way exposed to the action of the fire or hot gases and stayed with stays, having nuts with washers at least in diameter one-third pitch of stays, and half the thickness of plate, the working pressure to be allowed may be found by the following formula:—

$$48000 \times \frac{T^2}{P^2} = \text{W. P.}$$

T = Thickness plate in inches.

P = Greatest pitch of stay bolts in inches.

Sec. 21. Inspectors should not in any case allow a greater compressive stress on the tube plates than 9,000 pounds, which is that used in the following formula:—

$$\frac{(D - d)\ T \times 18{,}000}{W \times D} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

d = Inside diameter of ordinary tube in inches.

T = Thickness of tube plate in inches.

W = Width of combustion box in inches between the tube plate and back of fire box, or distance between the combustion box tube plates when the boiler is double-ended and the box common to the furnaces at both ends.

Sec. 22. When stays prevent an Inspector from getting inside a boiler, he must order their removal, and he must see them properly replaced before granting a certificate.

Sec. 23. In the case of ordinary zig-zag riveting the strength through the plate diagonally between the rivets is equal to that horizontally between the rivets, when the diagonal pitch equals six-tenths the horizontal pitch plus four-tenths the diameter of the rivet.

Sec. 24. When the outside of the bottom of a boiler cannot be otherwise thoroughly inspected, the boiler should be lifted once at least in every four years.

Construction of Boilers.

Sec. 25. (a.) When cylindrical boilers or the cylindrical parts of boilers composed of iron plates are made of the best material with all the rivet holes drilled in place and all the seams fitted with double butt straps, each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams at least double riveted with rivets having an allowance of not more than 75 per cent over the single shear, and provided that the boilers have been open to inspection, then 4·5 may be used as the factor of safety. The tensile strength of the material is to be taken as equal to 47,000 pounds per square inch with the grain, and 40,000 pounds across the grain. When the above conditions are not complied with, the addition, in the following scale, must be added to the factor, according to the circumstances of each case :—

A·15 – To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

B·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place before bending.

C·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched after bending instead of drilled.

D·5—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched before bending.

E*·75—To be added when all the holes are not fair and good in the longitudinal seams.

F·1—To be added if the holes are all fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

G·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled before bending.

H·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched after bending.

I·2—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched before bending.

J*·2—To be added if the holes are not fair and good in the circumferential seams.

K·2—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lapped and double riveted.

L·1—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lapped and treble riveted.

M·3—To be added if only single butt straps are fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are double riveted.

N·15—To be added if only single butt straps are fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are treble riveted.

O1·0—To be added when any description of joint in the longitudinal seams is single riveted.

P‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with single butt straps and are double riveted.

Q‡·2—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with single butt straps and are single riveted.

R‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with double butt straps and are single riveted.

S‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are lapped joints and are double riveted.

T·2—To be added if the circumferential seams are lapped joints and are single riveted.

U·25—To be added when the circumferential seams are lapped, and the strakes of plates are not entirely under or over.

V·3—To be added when the boiler is of such a length as to fire from both ends, or is of unusual length, such as flue boilers; and the circumferential seams are fitted as described opposite P., R. and S., but of course when the circumferential seams are as described opposite Q. and T., V·3 will become V·4.

W*·4—To be added if the seams are not properly crossed.

X*·4—To be added when the iron is in any way doubtful, and the Inspector is not satisfied that it is of the best quality.

Y†1·65—To be added if the boiler is not open for inspection during the whole period of its construction.

(b.) The strength of ordinary joints is found by the following method :—

$$\frac{\text{Area of rivets} \times \text{No. of rows of rivets}}{\text{Pitch} \times \text{thickness of plate.}} \times 100 = \text{Percentage of strength of rivets as compared with the solid plate.}$$

(c.) Where marked * the allowance may be increased still further if the workmanship or material is very doubtful or unsatisfactory.

For the maximum pitch of rivets see Section 43.

† When inspecting boilers that have not been open to inspection during construction, the case should be submitted to the Chairman as to the factors to be used.

‡ P‡·1, Q‡·2, R‡·1, S‡·1, shall not apply to the end or circumferential seams, if such seams are sufficiently stayed by through bolts; nor to the seams between the square and round part of the shell, in cylindrical boilers with square furnaces, when such seams are double riveted.

(d.) Then take iron as equal in tensile strength to 47,000 pounds per square inch and use the smallest of the two percentages as the strength of the joint, and adopt the factor of safety as found from the preceding scale :—

$$\frac{47{,}000 \times \text{percentage of strength of joint} \times \text{twice the thickness of the plate in inches.}}{\text{Inside diameter of boiler in inches} \times \text{factor of safety}} = \text{Pressure to be allowed per square inch on the safety-valves.}$$

(e.) Plates that are drilled in place must be taken apart and the burr taken off and the holes slightly countersunk from the outside.

(f.) Butt straps must be cut from plates and not from bars, and must be of as good quality as the shell plate, and for the longitudinal seams must be cut across the fibre.

(g.) The rivet holes may be punched or drilled when the plates are punched or drilled out of place, but when drilled in place, must be taken apart and the burr taken off and slightly countersunk from the outside.

(h.) When single butt straps are used and the rivet holes in them punched, they must be one-eighth thicker than the plates they cover.

(i.) The diameter of rivets must not be less than the thickness of the plate of which the shell is made, but it will be found when the plates are thin, or when lap joints or single butt straps are adopted, that the diameter of the rivets should be in excess of the thickness of the plate.

*Formulæ for the riveted joints and maximum pitches of rivets and also diagrams of different descriptions of riveted joints will be found in the Appendix and Section 43.

(j) The distance of the rivet holes from the end or edge of the plates shall not be less than the diameter of the rivets.

(k.) Dished ends that are not truly hemispherical must be stayed; if they are not theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed they must be stayed as flat surfaces, but if they are theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed the stays may have a strain of 10,000 lbs. per effective square inch of sectional area.

*Steam drums having a segmental or spherical head at each end, of a radius not greater than the diameter of drum to which attached, and not exposed to the impact of heat and flame, may be passed without stays, if theoretically equal in strength to the following formula :—

C = Tensile strength of plate in lbs.

T = Thickness of plate in inches.

R = Radius of head in inches.

F = 4 when heads are pressed into shape by machine and annealed, and 5 when heads are worked by hand into shape and annealed.

$$\frac{C \times T}{R \times F} = \text{Allowable working pressure.}$$

(l.) Inspectors will remember that the strength of a sphere to resist internal pressure is double that of a cylinder of the same diameter and thickness.

Sec. 26. (a.) The neutral parts of boiler shells under steam domes must be sufficiently stiffened and stayed.

(b.) The sides of boilers having square furnaces and half round tops must be stayed from side to side of the shell, over the furnace, one or more rows of these stays to be placed well above the centre of the cylindrical part.

(c.) Screw stays are not to be used when supporting flat surfaces at any angle but a right angle to the surface supported, their diameter to be measured inside the thread, and when supporting crowns of furnaces or combustion box crowns should be secured with nuts and when not so secured, the constant C 36 is to be used for determining the allowable working pressure on the plate supported; but if such plates are of less thickness than three-eighths of an inch, the stays must be nutted.

(d.) The longitudinal seams in the cylindrical shell of boilers should be as far as possible from the bottom.

(e.) The inside diameter of the outside strake or course in the cylindrical shell of a boiler is to be taken as the measure of its diameter.

Sec. 27. (a.) In cylindrical superheaters the strength of the joints and the factor of safety is found in a similar manner as for cylindrical boilers and steam receivers, but instead of using 47,000 pounds as the tensile strength of iron, 30,000 pounds is adopted, unless where the heat or flame impinges at or nearly at right angles to the plate, then 22,400 pounds is substituted.

(b.) In all cases the internal steam pipes should be so fitted that the steam in flowing to them will pass over all the plates exposed to the impact of heat or flame.

(c.) Superheaters or water-jackets should, as regards inspection, be deemed to be the most important part of the boilers, and must be inspected inside and outside; those that cannot be entered (on account of their size) must have a sufficient number of doors through which a thorough inspection of the whole of the interior can be made.

(d.) Special attention should be paid to the inspection of superheaters, as with high pressure the plates may become dangerously weak and not give any sound to indicate their state when tested with the hammer; the plate should, therefore, be occasionally drilled. Drain pipes must be in all cases fitted to superheaters in which a collection of water in the bottom is possible.

(e.) Superheaters that can be shut off from the main boiler must be fitted with a Government lock-up safety valve of sufficient size, but the least size passed shall not be less than two inches in diameter.

Sec. 28. The areas of diagonal stays are found in the following way:—

Find the area of a direct stay needed to support the surface, multiply this area by the length of the diagonal stay and divide the product by the length of a line drawn at right angles to the surface supported to the end of the diagonal stay, the quotient will be the area of the diagonal stay required.

When gusset stays are used, their area should be in excess of that found in the above way.

Sec. 29. (a.) When the tops of combustion boxes or other parts of a boiler are supported by solid rectangular girders, the following formula, which is used by the Imperial Board of Trade, will be useful for finding the working pressure to be allowed on the girders, assuming that they are not subjected to a greater temperature than the ordinary heat of steam, and the ends fitted to the edges of the tube plate and the back plate of the combustion box:

$$\frac{C \times d^2 \times T}{(W-P)\,D \times L} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

W=Width of combustion box in inches.
P=Pitch of supporting bolts in inches.
D=Distance between the girders from centre to centre in inches.
L=Length of girder in feet.
d=Depth of girder in inches.
T=Thickness of girder in inches.
N=Number of supporting bolts.

$$C = \frac{N \times 1000}{N+1} = \text{when the number of bolts is odd.}$$

$$C = \frac{(N+1)\,1000}{N+2} = \text{when the number of bolts is even.}$$

(b.) The working pressure for the supporting bolts, and for the plate between them, shall be determined by the rules for ordinary stays and plates.

Sec. 30. The flat ends of all boilers, as far as the steam space extends, and the ends of superheaters should be fitted with shield, or baffle plates, where exposed to the hot gases of the up-take, as all the plates subjected to the direct impact of heat or flame are liable to injury, unless covered with water.

When a superheater is constructed with a tube subject to external pressure, the working pressure should be ascertained by the rules given for circular iron furnaces, but the constants should be reduced as thirty is to forty-seven:

If steel is proposed to be used in superheaters, the particulars should be submitted to the Board of Steamboat Inspection or to the Chairman, if the Board is not sitting, for consideration, but in all cases it should be discouraged for this purpose; this applies to the unshielded up-takes of all boilers, including ordinary vertical donkey boilers.

Sec. 31. Donkey boilers that are in any way attached to, or connected with the main boilers, or with the machinery used for propelling the ship, must be inspected and fitted the same way as the main boilers, and must have a water and steam gauge, and all other fittings complete, and as regards safety-valves, must comply with the same regulations as the main boilers, and no safety-valve shall be passed except as hereinafter provided by the rules relating to the inspection of safety-valves.

Sec. 32. (a.) No boiler or steam chamber is to be so constructed, fitted or arranged as that the escape of steam from it through the safety-valve can be wholly or partially intercepted by the action of any other valve.

(b.) A stop valve must always be fitted between the boiler and the steam pipe, and (when two or more boilers are connected with a steam receiver or super-heater) between each boiler and superheater or steam receiver. The object of this is obvious, viz., to avoid the failure of all the boilers through the failure of one. The necks of stop valves should be as short as practicable.

Sec. 33. (a.) Each boiler must be fitted with glass water gauge, at least two test cocks, and steam gauge, that is to say, each boiler must be fitted with all the fittings as complete as if there was only one boiler.

(b.) Boilers that fire at both ends, and those of unusual width, must have water gauges and test cocks at each end or side, as the case may be. When a steamer has more than one boiler, and those boilers are fitted with stop valves, each boiler must be treated as a separate one, and have all the requisite fittings.

Sec. 34. Inspectors shall be most careful not to give any official sanction to any new arrangement or construction of marine steam boilers without first obtaining the permission of the Chairman in writing, nor shall they give any written approval of any invention or arrangement unless by direction of the Chairman, and whenever they know that any invention or new arrangement is to be fitted to a vessel that is intended to have a passenger certificate, they shall as soon as possible obtain plans and specifications and submit the same to the Chairman.

Sec. 35. Circular furnaces with the longitudinal joints welded or made with a butt strap double riveted, or double butt straps single riveted:—

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times \text{the square of the thickness of the plate in inches.}}{(\text{Length in feet} + 1) \times \text{diameter in inches.}}$$

= working pressure per square inch, provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula:—

$$\frac{9{,}000 \times \text{thickness in inches.}}{\text{diameter in inches.}} = \text{Working pressure per square inch.}$$

The second formula limits the crushing stress on the material to 4,500 lbs. per square inch.

The length is to be measured between the rings if the furnace is made with rings.

When the longitudinal joints are not welded or made with a butt strap, the following constants will be substituted for 90,000:

| (a.) Furnaces with butt joints and drilled rivet holes. | 90,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 80,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 90,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps. |
| (b.) Furnaces with butt joints and punched rivet holes. | 85,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 85,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps. |
| (c.) Furnaces with lapped joints and drilled rivet holes. | 80,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled. |
| (d.) Furnaces with lapped joints and punched rivet holes. | 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled; 60,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled. |

In the case of upright fireboxes of donkey or similar boilers, 10 per cent. should be deducted from the constant given above, applicable to the respective classes of work.

Steel Boilers.

Sec. 36. (a.) The following rules should guide Inspectors when the general quality of the steel has been found suitable for marine boilers:—

(b.) The steel makers or boiler makers should test one or more strips or pieces cut from each plate and bar for tensile strength and elongation, and stamp both results on each plate or bar. When practicable the plates or bars should be so stamped that the marks can be easily seen when the boiler is constructed.

(c.) An Inspector is not obliged to witness the foregoing test, but he should see that all the plates and bars are properly stamped.

(d.) From the plates and bars, the tests of which have been stated to have been made by the steel maker, and not witnessed by the Inspector, the Inspector may, if he thinks it advisable, select any plate or bars after they are in the boiler shop and require specimens to be cut off and tested. If the results are not satisfactory, the whole of the plates, except those which were tested and found satisfactory by the Inspector, may be liable to be rejected.

(e.) Twenty-five per cent of the rivet bars should be tested for tensile strength and elongation, the tensile strength should be from 26 to 30 tons gross, to the square inch, and the elongation in ten inches should not be less than 25 per cent.

(f.) The Inspector may not in every case see some of the rivets tested, but he should occasionally select a few, and after they are prepared, see them tested. The tensile stress should be from 27 to 32 tons gross, to the square inch, with a contraction of area of 60 per cent. The elongation should when practicable be taken in length equal to two and a half times the diameter of the prepared part.

(g.) Twenty-five per cent of the bars for stays of each size should be tested, solid screw stays which have not been welded or otherwise worked after heating, may be allowed a working stress of 9,000 pounds to the square inch, of net section. And for other stays exceeding one and one-half inches smallest-diameter 10,000 pounds per square inch may be allowed ; provided the tensile stress is from 27 to 32 tons gross per square inch, and the elongation in ten inches about 25 per cent, and not less than 20 per cent.

The tensile strength of strips to form stay tubes should be from 26 to 30 tons gross per square inch, with an elongation of about 25 per cent., but not less than 20 per cent, in a length of 10 inches. Stay tubes made of steel which comply with this requirement, may be allowed a stress not exceeding 7,500 lbs. per square inch of net section, providing their net thickness is in no case less than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch.

(h.) Steel stays which have been welded or worked in the fire have been found to be unreliable, therefore they should not be passed.

(i.) If the original size of the bars for rivets or stays be reduced before testing it should be done in the lathe or by a machine ; test pieces of any kind should not be prepared by heating and drawing down.

(j.) The Inspector is not obliged to witness the prescribed tests,, although it is very desirable that he should when his other duties will allow him to do so, but he should see that all the plates are properly marked. He should, however, select of each thickness at least one in four of the plates, to be used in the construction of the boiler and witness the testing of at least one strip or piece cut from each selected plate, but when boiler plates exceed 15 feet in length, there should be a tensile test from each end, and when they exceed 20 feet in length and at the same time exceed 6 feet in breadth, or exceed $2\frac{1}{2}$ tons in weight, there should be a tensile test from each corner. In the latter cases the testing of each plate should be witnessed by the Inspector. The mean of the results of the tests, if the latter fall within the Board's requirement, as stated below, should be stamped on the plates. If a large number of failures take place in the 25 per cent. selected, the Inspector should select and see tested an additional number of plates, the number of additional tests being proportional to the number of failures. If for the plates from which the Inspectors select the above proportion, a greater stress is wished than is allowed for iron, tests for tensile strength and elongation should be made, also a few tempering and bending tests, and those for which no reduction of thickness is asked may be tested for resistance to bending and tempering only, if preferred. In the latter case, the tensile strength and elongation stamped on each plate should be stated in the report by the Inspector to the Chairman, together with the results of the bending and tempering tests. From the plates, the tests of which have been made by the steel maker, and not witnessed by the Inspector, the Inspector may, if he thinks it advisable, select any plates after they are in the boiler yard and require specimens to be cut off and tested. If the results are not satisfactory the whole of the plates except those which were tested and found satisfactory by the Inspector, may be liable to be rejected.

(k.) The breadth of test strips for tensile stress should be, where practicable, 2 inches, and the elongation taken in a length of 10 inches should be about 25 per cent., and not less than 18 per cent. when the strips are tested in the normal condition, in which condition the Board prefer the tests to be made ; but if the plates are annealed, that is, heated to a red heat in a plate furnace, and immediately they are at that heat taken out and placed on the mill floor to cool, the elongation should not be less then 20 per cent. The test pieces must not be annealed after they are cut off the plates. When the plates are not taken out of the furnace immediately they are red hot, or if allowed to cool down in the furnace, or are covered with ashes or other non-conducting substance, it should be reported to the Chairman for his consideration and decision. The Inspector should report to the Chairman whether the plates were annealed, or in the normal condition when the test pieces were cut off. The test strips must be carefully prepared and measured, and where practicable, they should be cut from the plate by a planing or shaping machine..

The Inspector should see that the plates for the manhole doors and for the compensating rings around the openings r the doors are tested in the usual manner.

(l.) The bending tests for plates not exposed to flame should be made with strips in their normal condition, and occasionally also some tempering test. Strips cut from furnaces, combustion boxes, &c., should be heated to a cherry red, then plunged into water of about 80 degrees and kept there until of the same temperature as the water and then bent. The bending and tempering strips should be about two inches broad and ten inches long, and they should be bent until they break, or until the sides are parallel at a distance from each other of not more than (3) three times the thickness of plate.

(m.) When any allowance over iron is wished, the tensile stress of the plates not exposed to flame should be not less than 27 tons gross, and should not exceed 32 tons gross, per square inch of section, and 27 tons gross, should be the stress used in the calculations for cylindrical shells, if the plates comply with all the conditions as stated herein, but for each ton the minimum tensile strength of the plates is above 27 tons, 1 ton may be added to the 27 used in the calculations, provided the Inspector witnesses the testing of all the plates. Plates having the stamp or brand marked thereon by the surveyors of British Board of Trade, Lloyds, or British Corporation, may be accepted ; providing the bending and tempering tests are satisfactory, and that the proper official declaration of the tensile tests made and record of same are furnished, and comply with the requirements as herein stated. The tensile strength of furnace, flanging and combustion box plates may range from 26 to 30 ton gross per square inch.

(n.) All plates that are punched, flanged or locally heated must be carefully annealed after being so treated.

(o.) The rivet holes in the furnaces and shell seams should be drilled, but if it is wished to punch them and afterwards bore out the holes or if it is wished to anneal the plates the particulars of the punching and boring or annealing should be submitted to the Chairman for consideration before being done, but all punched holes should be made after bending.

(p.) In all cases where assent has been given by the Chairman for plates to be punched after bending, and then annealed, the maker of the boiler should stamp the plates with the words "punched after bending and then annealed," and in all cases where assent has been given for punching and afterwards boring plates the words "punched and then bored" should be stamped on the plates.

(q.) If the flanging plates and those exposed to flame comply with the foregoing conditions, the constants in these rules for iron boilers may be increased as follows :—

1. The constants for flat surfaces, when they are supported by stays screwed into the plates and riveted, 10 per cent.

2. The constants for flat surfaces, when they are supported by stays screwed into the plates and nutted, or when the stays are nutted in the steam space, 25 per cent. This is also applicable to the constants for flat surfaces stiffened by riveted washers or doubling strips and supported by nutted stays.

3. The constants for combustion box girders, 10 per cent.

(r.) Tube plates of upright boilers must be sufficiently stayed with stay tubes, also all boilers where deemed necessary by the Inspector; and in boilers intended for a working pressure of 120 lbs. per sq. inch and upwards, the tube plates should be stayed.

For steel tube plates in the nest of tubes the strength of plates is found by the following formula :

$$\frac{140 \times T^2}{P^2} = \text{Working pressure in lbs. per sq. inch.}$$ where T = the thickness of the plates in sixteenths of an inch,

P = the mean pitch of stay tubes from centre to centre.

For the wide water spaces between the nests of tubes the strength to be taken from

$$\frac{C \times T^2}{P^2} = \text{working pressure in lbs. per sq. inch.}$$

where P = the horizontal distance from centre to centre of the bounding rows of tubes, and

C = 120 where the stay tubes are pitched with two plain tubes between them and are not fitted with nuts outside the plates,

C = 130 if they are fitted with nuts outside the plates,

C = 140 if each alternate tube is a stay tube not fitted with nuts,

C = 150 if they are fitted with nuts outside the plates,

C = 160 if every tube in these rows is a stay tube and not fitted with nuts,

C = 170 if every tube in these rows is a stay tube and each alternate stay tube is fitted with nuts outside the plates.

Where the flat plates in wide water spaces between the nests of tubes are strengthened with doubling plates, securely riveted to them, having a thickness of not less than two-thirds of that of the plates, the strength to be taken from following formula: where t = thickness of doubling in sixteenths, and C, T and P are as above.

$$\frac{C \times (T + \frac{t}{2})^2}{P^2} = \text{working pressure in lbs. per sq.inch:}$$

(s.) A greater compressive stress should not be allowed on tube plates than 14,000 lbs. to the square inch, which is that used in the following formula :—

$$\frac{(D-d)\ T \times 28{,}000}{W \times D} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

d = Inside diameter of ordinary tubes in inches.

T = Thickness of tube plate in inches.

W = Width of combustion box in inches between the tube plate and back of fire box, or distance between the combustion box tube plates when the boiler is double ended and the box common to the furnaces at both ends.

(t.) The rivet section, if of iron, in the longitudinal seams of cylindrical shells, where lapped and at least double riveted, should not be less than $1\frac{3}{8}$ times the net plate section; but if steel rivets are used, their section should be at least $\frac{2}{2}\frac{8}{3}$ of the net section of the plate if the tensile stress of the rivet is not less than 27 tons gross and not more than 32 tons gross per square inch. Therefore, in calculating the working pressure, the percentage strength of the rivets may be found in the usual way by the rules, but in the case of iron rivets the percentages found should be divided by $1\frac{3}{8}$, and in the case of steel rivets by $\frac{2}{2}\frac{8}{3}$, the result being the percentages required. If the percentage strength of the rivets by calculation is less than the calculated percentage strength of the plate, calculate the working pressure by both percentages. When using the percentage strength of the plate, 4.25 plus the additions, suitable for the method of construction as by the rules for iron boilers, may be used as the nominal factor of safety, but when using the percentage strength of the rivets, 4.25 may be used as the factor of safety. The less of the two pressures so found is the working pressure to be allowed for the cylindrical portion of the shell, or otherwise in accordance with the formulæ in appendix. Sec. 43.

(u.) Local heating of the plates should be avoided, as many plates have failed from being so treated.

(v.) Steel plates which have been welded should not be passed if subject to a tensile stress, and those welded and subject to a compressive stress should be sufficiently annealed. In other respects the boiler should comply with the rules for iron boilers.

Sec. 37. In no case shall a certificate be granted for a boiler, when drift pins have been used in bringing the holes in the sheets together.

Sec. 38. Man-hole openings must be stiffened with compensating plates or rings of at least the same effective sectional area as the plate cut out, and in no case shall such plates or rings be of less thickness than the plate to which they are attached, nor the attachment of less strength than the plate or ring. All openings in the shells of boilers should have their short axis placed longitudinally, and if not so placed must have compensating plates or rings, and attachments, equal to twice the effective sectional area of the plate cut out.

Where cast iron frames are fastened around man-holes in steamboat boilers, a compensating ring in addition must be provided.

Mud-holes or hand-holes should not be placed in boiler shells of a greater short diameter than five inches, unless provided with reinforcing plates, and if on the cylindrical shell of a boiler, their short diameter should be in a line with the axis of the shell.

Sec. 39. Every boiler made after the coming into force of these regulations, shall be stamped with the initial letters of the Inspector's name who inspected and tested it, the year it was made and the pressure under which it was tested, also the actual working pressure allowed upon it.

Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 40. (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular steel furnaces and flues, when subjected to such pressure when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap, shall be determined by the following formula:

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the length of the flue, or furnace, in feet, plus one multiplied by the diameter in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds, adding ten per cent to the result of the formula; provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula: (c)

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times T^2}{(L + 1) \times D} = \text{Working pressure, where}$$

T = Thickness of plate in inches.

D = Diameter of flue outside in inches.

L = Length of flue or furnace in feet, or the length between the rings in feet, if it is strengthened by suitable rings or Adamson joints.

(c.) The product of 10,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter (outside) of the flue or furnace, in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds.

(d.) When the horizontal furnaces of ordinary diameter are constructed of a series of rings welded longitudinally, and the ends of each ring flanged and the rings riveted together, and so forming the furnace, the working pressure is found by the following formula, provided the length in inches between the centres of the flanges of the rings is not greater than (120 T — 12) and the flanging performed at one heat by a suitable flanging machine, and also the conditions which follow the formula are complied with.

T = Thickness of plate in inches.

D = Outside diameter of furnace in inches.

The radii of the flanges on the fire side should be about $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The depth of the flanges from the fire side should be three times the diameter of the rivet plus $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches, and the thickness of the flanges should be as near the thickness of the body of the plate as practicable. The distance from the edge of the rivet holes to the edge of the flange should not be less than the diameter of the rivet, and the diameter of the rivets at least $\frac{1}{8}$ inch greater than the thickness of the plate. The depth of the ring between the flanges should be not less than three times the diameter of the rivets, the fire edge of the ring should be at about the termination of the curve of the flange, and the thickness not less than half the thickness of the furnace plate. It is very desirable that these rings should be turned

The holes in the flanges and rings should be drilled in place if practicable, but if not drilled in place they should be drilled smaller than the size required, and afterwards when in place rimered out until the holes are quite fair, the holes should be slightly tapered and the heads of the rivets of moderate size.

After all the welding, flanging and heating is completed each ring should be efficiently annealed in one operation.

(e.) When the longitudinal seams in such furnaces are made with a single butt strap double riveted, or double butt straps single riveted, with all holes drilled in place, and the flanging of the ends is performed by hand "and then annealed" instead of at one heat by a flanging machine, with all other conditions as to construction as described in subsec. (d) being complied with, then 8800 is to be substituted in place of 9900 in the formula, subsec (d).

Corrugated Steel Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 41. (a.) In steel flue furnaces when new, corrugated, and machine made, of the Fox corrugated and Morrison suspension types, or the John Brown & Co., or of the Purves ribbed and grooved type, or the Deighton and Fox type, if they are practically true circles, and the plates not less than 5-16 inch thick, the working pressure is found by the following formula:

$$\frac{C \times T}{D} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

C = 14,000.

T = Thickness in inches.

D = Outside diameter in inches, measured at the bottom of the corrugations when the furnace is of the corrugated or suspension type, or over the plain parts when it is of the ribbed and grooved description.

In Fox's corrugated furnaces the pitch of the corrugations should not exceed 6 inches, and in Morison's suspension furnace and the Deighton furnace the pitch should not exceed 8 inches. In these descriptions of furnaces the depth from top of corrugations outside to bottom of corrugations inside should not be less than 2 inches.

The ribs of ribbed and grooved furnaces should not be less than $1\frac{5}{16}$ inches above the plain parts, the depth of the grooves not more than $\frac{3}{4}$ inch, and the length between the centre of the ribs not over 9 inches. In each of these descriptions of furnaces the plain parts at the back ends should be so made that the length, measured from the waterside of the back tube plate to the centre of the back end corrugation or rib, does not exceed 9 inches. The plain parts at the front ends should also be so made that the length, measured from the centre of the first corrugation or rib, to the centre of the rivets by which the furnace is secured to the front end plate, does not exceed 9 inches. When the plain parts at the back ends are made conical, and the flange by which the attachment is made to the back tube plate is continuous, a length of $10\frac{1}{2}$ inches may be allowed between the waterside of the back tube plate and the centre of the first corrugation or rib. When this method of construction is adopted, the vertical section through the neck-piece should be kept as circular as is practicable. The set up at the bottom should not exceed 8 inches measured over the plates, and in no case should the vertical axis exceed the horizontal one by more than 14½ per cent. The plates at the ends should not be unduly thinned in the flanging.

(b.) When the furnaces are riveted in two or more lengths the case should be submitted to the Chairman for consideration, as it may be necessary to make a reduction.

Sec. 42. The working pressure for corrugated iron furnaces practically circular and machine made, provided the plane parts at the ends do not exceed 6 inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick, should not be greater than that found by the following formula:—

$$\frac{10{,}000 \times \text{thickness in inches}}{\text{Mean diameter in inches}} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

p = Maximum pitch of rivets in inches, provided it does not exceed 10 inches.

C = Constant applicable from the following table.

| Number of Rivets in one Pitch. | Constants for Lap Joints. | Constants for Double Butt Strap Joints. |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | 1·31 | 1·75 |
| 2 | 2·62 | 3·50 |
| 3 | 3·47 | 4·63 |
| 4 | 4·14 | 5·52 |
| 5 | — | 6·00 |

$$(C \times T) + 1\tfrac{5}{8} = p.$$

When the work is first class, such pitches may be adopted so far of safety is concerned; yet, in some cases, it may be well not to adopt the greatest pitch found by the formula. The maximum pitch should not, however, exceed 10 inches with the thickest plates for boiler shells. If in any case the pitch is found to exceed that arrived at by the foregoing formula, for the particular description of joint and thickness of plate, such pitches should not be passed, but all such cases should be reported.

PART II.

Regulations governing the inspection and testing of boilers now in existence and of boilers now or hereafter to be manufactured, in Canada, for the use of steamboats, whenever in the opinion of the Inspector the regulations contained in Part One of these regulations, on account of the make of such boilers, or for some other reason, not capable of application in the testing thereof; provided that in every such case the Inspector shall issue his certificate, in which he shall state that his inspection has been made under Part Two of this order.

Mode of Inspection.

Sec. 44. Any Inspector may, whenever he deems it necessary so to do, and one Inspector shall, at least once in every year, subject the boiler of every steamboat to a test by hydrostatic pressure, and shall satisfy himself by examination and experimental trials that such boiler is well made of good and suitable materials; the limit of such pressure shall be in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds allowable as a working pressure; for the purposes of such test the owner of the steamboat shall provide the necessary hand-pump and apparatus, and the same shall be worked by the crew of the steamboat; and no Inspector shall make or deliver to the owner or master of any steamboat, any certificate unless he has first subjected the boiler of such steamboat to such test by hydrostatic pressure.

Sec. 45. Before a boiler is subjected to a test by hydrostatic pressure, it shall be opened up for inspection, the man-hole doors and mud-plates removed, and the outside and inside of the boiler cleaned, the furnace grates removed and the furnace swept out clean, so that satisfactory and efficient inspection may be made.

When bulkheads are so placed as to prevent a close examination of the plates of the boiler, they shall be removed; and the owner or master of the steamboat shall see that the foregoing requirements are complied with before applying for inspection.

Sec. 46. In any case in which the test is not satisfactory, the defects shall be made good and the boiler retested satisfactorily before a certificate is granted.

Sec. 47. When the outside of the bottom of the boiler cannot be otherwise perfectly inspected, the boiler shall be lifted for inspection once at least in every four years.

Sec. 48. In subjecting boilers made of iron plates to the hydrostatic test aforesaid, the Inspector shall assume one hundred pounds to the square inch as the maximum pressure allowable as a working power for a new boiler 42 inches in diameter, made of the best refined iron, at least one-quarter of an inch thick, in the best manner and of the quality herein required, and shall rate the working pressure of all iron boilers, whether of greater or less diameter, according to their strength compared with this standard; and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit.

Sec. 49. In subjecting boilers made of steel to the hydrostatic test aforesaid, the Inspector shall assume one hundred and twenty-five pounds as the maximum pressure allowable as a working power for a new boiler 42 inches in diameter, made in the best manner of the best quality of steel plate, at least one-quarter of an inch thick, with all the rivet holes drilled in place, the plates being then taken apart and the burrs removed, the longitudinal seams in the shell being fitted with double butt steel straps cut across the grain of the plate, and each of at least five-eighths or over the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams being at least double riveted and having at least seventy per cent of the strength of the solid plate, and all the flat surfaces stayed in the best manner and all the seams double riveted,—and they shall rate the working pressure of all steel boilers so made, whether of greater or less diameter, according to their strength compared with this standard; and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed for such boilers in the ratio of one hundred and eighty-seven and a half pounds to one hundred and twenty-five pounds, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit.

Sec. 50. If the Inspector is of opinion that any boiler, whether made of iron or steel plates, by reason of its construction or material, will not safely allow so high a working pressure as that hereinbefore specified for each such description of boiler respectively, he may, for reasons to be stated specifically in his certificate, fix the working pressure of such boiler at less than two-thirds of the test pressure.

Sec. 51. The foregoing rules shall be observed in all cases, unless the proportion between such boilers and the cylinders, or some other cause renders it manifest that their application would be unjust, in which case the Inspector may depart from the said rules if it can be done with safety; but in no case shall the working pressure allowed exceed the proportion hereinbefore mentioned, as compared with the hydrostatic test.

Sec. 52. (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular iron furnaces and flues subjected to such pressure, when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap shall be determined by the following formula:—

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches,—divided by the length of the flue or furnace in feet plus 1, multiplied by the diameter in inches,—shall be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds,—provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula:—

(c.) The product of 9,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter of the furnace or flue in inches, shall be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds,—

(d.) The length of the furnace to be used in the first formula being the distance between the rings, if the furnace is made with rings; and that one of the two formulæ which gives the lowest pressure being the one by which the Inspector shall be guided.

Sec. 53. (a.) On flat surfaces the allowable working pressure shall not exceed six thousand pounds to each effective square inch of sectional area of the stays supporting it; the pressure to be allowed on plates forming flat surfaces will be found by the following formula:—

$$\frac{C \times (T+1)^2}{S-6} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

T = Thickness of plate in sixteenths of an inch.

S = Surface supported in square inches.

C = Constant according to the following circumstances:—

C = 100 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays are fitted with nuts and washers, the latter being at least three times the diameter of the stay and two-thirds the thickness of the plate they cover.

C = 90 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays are fitted with nuts only.

C = 70 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays screwed into the plates, having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

C = 60 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the steam in contact with the plates, and the stays fitted with nuts and washers, the latter being at least three times the diameter of the stay, and two-thirds the thickness of the plates they cover.

C = 54 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam in contact with the plates, and the stays fitted with nuts only.

(b.) If the diameter of riveted washers be at least two-thirds the pitch of the stays, and the thickness not less than the plates they cover, the constants may be increased to 150.

(c.) When doubling plates are fitted of the same thickness of the plates they cover, and not less in width than two-thirds the pitch of the stays, the constants may be increased to 160.

(d.) When doubling plates cover the whole of the flat surfaces. See sub-section (d) section 20 for formula.

C = 80 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, with water in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates and fitted with nuts.

C = 60 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, with water in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates, having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

C = 36 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam in contact with the plates, with the stays screwed into the plates, and having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

(e.) In cases where plates are stiffened by T or L irons, and a greater pressure is required for the plate than is allowed by the use of the above constants, the case should be submitted for the consideration of the Chairman.

(f.) When the riveted ends of the screw stays are much worn, or when the nuts are burned, the constants should be reduced, but the Inspector must act according to the circumstances that present themselves at the time of the inspection, and it is expected that in cases where the riveted ends of screw stays in the combustion boxes and furnaces are found in this state it will be often necessary to reduce the constant from 60 to 36.

(g.) When steel plates and stays are used, and under the conditions as described by part I of the rules, the increase to the constants for flat surfaces and stays apply, as defined by subsecs. (g), 1, 2 and 3, sec. 36.

(h.) Flat steel plates, which are in no way exposed to the action of the fire or hot gases and stayed with stays, having nuts with washers at least in diameter one-third pitch of stays, and half the thickness of plate, the working pressure to be allowed may be found by the following formula:—

$$48000 \times \frac{T^2}{P^2} = W.\ P.$$

T = Thickness of plate in inches.

P = Greatest pitch of stay bolts in inches.

(i.) For tube plates see sections 21 and 36, subsections (r) and (s).

Sec. 54. In order to satisfy himself as to the strength and condition of a boiler, the Inspector may, if he deems it necessary, order holes to be cut in it, and may also demand that such information shall be furnished him in respect to the interior construction of the boiler as will enable him to judge correctly of its strength.

Sec. 55. In no case shall a certificate be granted for a boiler when drift pins have been used in bringing the holes in the sheets together.

Sec. 56. Man-hole openings must be stiffened with compensating plates or rings of at least the same effective sectional area as the plates cut out and in no case shall such plates or rings be of less thickness than the plate to which they are attached, nor the attachment of less strength than the plate or ring. All openings in the shells of boilers should have their short axis placed longitudinally and if not so placed must have compensating plates or rings and attachments, equal to twice the effective sectional area of the plate cut out.

When cast iron frames are fastened around man-holes in steamboat boilers, a compensating ring in addition must be provided.

Mud-holes or hand-holes should not be placed in boiler shells of a greater short diameter than five inches, unless provided with reinforcing plates, and if on the cylindrical shell of a boiler, their short diameter should be in a line with the axis of the shell.

Sec. 57. When bars or angle irons are used for sustaining the crown sheet of the furnace of a boiler, three-fifths of the working pressure allowable upon the crown sheet shall be sustained by hanging stays from the shell of the boiler attached to the crown sheet.

Sec. 58. Donkey boilers on steamboats shall be provided with two safety-valves, which may be locked up.

Sec. 59. Boilers in which the longitudinal seams in the cylindrical shell are single riveted, in place of being double riveted, shall be subject to a reduction in the working pressure allowable for a boiler made in the best manner (as prescribed by sections 48 and 49 of these regulations), and the limit of pressure in boilers so made shall not exceed eighty pounds to the square inch in place of one hundred pounds or one hundred and twenty-five pounds, as mentioned in the said section.

Sec. 60. No boiler made and placed on board a steamboat shall be made of boiler plate, whether iron or steel, which has not been stamped with the mark or name of the maker thereof; and no certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler made wholly or in part of plate not so marked; and before a certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler, a declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler, stating the name of the maker of the plates, their quality, and the quality of all materials used in the construction thereof, shall be furnished to the Inspector; such oath may be taken before any justice of the peace in Canada, or before a notary public and certified under his official seal, if taken out of Canada: Provided always, that in any case where such declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler cannot be obtained owing to the death of the maker, or from any other cause deemed sufficient by the Inspector, the affidavit of two practical boiler-makers who have examined the boiler and reported upon the quality of the materials in it, and its workmanship and strength, shall if satisfactory to the Inspector, be deemed sufficient in lieu of such declaration by the maker of the boiler.

Sec. 61. During the construction of every boiler made in Canada, the maker of such boiler shall notify the Inspector of the district in which it is being made, that it is open to his inspection, and shall at all times during such construction, allow the Inspector access to such boiler.

Sec. 62. No boiler or pipe shall be approved which is made in whole or in part of bad material, or is unsafe in its form, or dangerous from defective workmanship, age, use, or any other cause.

Sec. 63. (a.) When cylindrical boilers or the cylindrical parts of boilers composed of iron plates are made of the best material with all the rivet holes drilled in place and all the seams fitted with double butt straps, each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams at least double riveted with rivets having an allowance of not more than 75 per cent over the single shear, and provided that the boilers have been open to inspection during the whole period of construction, then 4 may be used as the factor of safety. The tensile strength of the material is to be taken as equal to 48,000 lbs. per square inch with the grain, and 42,000 lbs. across the grain. When the above conditions are not complied with, the addition, in the following scale, must be added to the factor according to the circumstances of each case.

A·15—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

B·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place before bending.

C·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched after bending instead of drilled.

D·5—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched before bending.

E*·75—To be added when all the holes are not fair and good in the longitudinal seams.

F·1—To be added if the holes are all fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

G·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled before bending.

H·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched after bending.

I·2—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched before bending.

J*·2—To be added if the holes are not fair and good in the circumferential seams.

K·2—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lap and double riveted.

L·1—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lap and treble riveted.

M·3—To be added if only single butt straps are fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are double riveted.

N·15—To be added if only single butt straps are fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are treble riveted.

O1·—To be added when any description of joint in the longitudinal seams is single riveted.

P‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with single butt straps and are double riveted.

Q‡·2—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with single butt straps and are single riveted.

R‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with double butt straps and are single riveted.

S‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are lap joints and are double riveted.

T·2—To be added if the circumferential seams are lap joints and are single riveted.

U·25—To be added when the circumferential seams are lap, and the strakes of plates are not entirely under or over.

V·3—To be added when the boiler is of such a length as to fire from both ends, or is of unusual length, such as flue boilers; and the circumferential seams are fitted as described opposite P., R. and S., but of course when the circumferential seams are as described opposite Q. and T., V·3 will become V·4.

W*·4—To be added if the seams are not properly crossed.

X*·4—To be added when the iron is in any way doubtful, and the Inspector is not satisfied that it is of the best quality

Y†1·—To be added if the boiler is not open to inspection during the whole period of its construction.

(b.) The strength of the joints is found by the following method:—

$$\frac{\text{(Pitch - Diameter of rivet holed)} \cdot 100}{\text{Pitch}} = \text{Percentage of strength of plate at joint compared with the solid plate.}$$

$$\frac{\text{(Area of rivets} \times \text{No. of rows of rivets)} \times 100}{\text{Pitch} \cdot \text{thickness of plate}} = \text{Percentage of strength of rivets as compared with solid plate} \dagger\dagger$$

(c.) Where marked * the allowance may be increased still further if the workmanship or material is very doubtful or unsatisfactory.

†† If the rivets are exposed to double shear multiply the percentage as found by 1·75.

† When surveying boilers that have not been open to inspection during construction the case should be submitted to the Chairman as to the factors to be used.

P‡·1, Q‡·2, R‡·1, S‡·1, shall not apply to the end or circumferential seams, if such seams are sufficiently stayed by through bolts; nor to the seams between the square and round part of shell, in cylindrical boilers with square furnaces, when such seams are double riveted.

(d.) Then take iron as equal in tensile strength to 48,000 pounds per square inch and use the smallest of the two percentages as the strength of the joint, and adopt the factor of safety as found from the preceding scale:—

$$\frac{\text{(48,000} \times \text{percentage of strength of joint)} \cdot \text{twice the thickness of the plate in inches.}}{\text{Inside diameter of boiler in inches} \times \text{factor of safety.}} = \text{Pressure to be allowed per square inch on the safety-valves.}$$

(e.) For steel plates of the best quality which fact must be made apparent to the Inspector who may, if he deems advisable, select any plates and have them tested, the tensile strength may be taken as equal to 60,000 pounds per square inch, using the same factor of safety.

(f.) Plates that are drilled in place must be taken apart and the burr taken off and the holes slightly countersunk from the outside.

(g.) Butt straps must be cut from plates and not from bars, and must be of as good quality as the shell plates, and for the longitudinal seams must be cut across the fibre.

(h.) The rivet holes may be punched or drilled when the plates are punched or drilled out of place, but when drilled in place must be taken apart and the burr taken off and slightly countersunk from the outside.

(i.) When single butt straps are used and the rivet holes in them punched they must be one-eighth thicker than the plates they cover.

(j.) The diameter of rivets must not be less than the thickness of the plates of which the shell is made, but it will be found when the plates are thin, or when lap joints or single butt straps are adopted, that the diameter of the rivets should be in excess of the thickness of the plates.

(k.) The distance of the rivet holes from the ends or edge of the plates shall not be less than the diameter of the rivet.

(l.) Dished ends that are not truly hemispherical must be stayed; if they are not theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed they must be stayed as flat surfaces, but if they are theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed the stays may have a strain of 10,000 pounds per effective square inch of sectional area.

Steam drums having a segmental or spherical head at each end, of a radius not greater than the diameter of drum to which attached, and not exposed to the impact of heat and flame, may be passed without stays, if theoretically equal in strength to the following formula:—

C = Tensile strength of plate in lbs.

T = Thickness of plate in inches.

R = Radius of head in inches.

F = 4 when heads are pressed into shape by machine and annealed, and 5 when heads are worked by hand into shape and annealed.

$$\frac{C \times T}{R \times F} = \text{Allowable working pressure}$$

(m.) Inspectors will remember that the strength of a sphere to resist internal pressure is double that of a cylinder of the same diameter and thickness.

Sec. 64. (a.) The neutral parts of boiler shells under steam domes must be sufficiently stiffened and stayed.

(b.) The sides of boilers having square furnaces and half round tops must be stayed from side to side of the shell, over the furnace, one or more rows of these stays to be placed well above the centre of the cylindrical part.

(c.) Screw stays are not to be used when supporting flat surfaces at any angle but a right angle to the surface supported, their diameter to be measured inside the thread. And when supporting crowns of furnaces, or combustion box crowns should be secured with nuts; and when not so secured, the constant C 36 is to be used for determining the allowable working measure on the plate supported; but if such plates are of less thickness than three eights of an inch, the stays must be nutted.

(d.) The longitudinal seams in the cylindrical shell of boilers should be as far as possible from the bottom.

(e.) The inside diameter of the outside strake or course in the cylindrical shell of a boiler is to be taken as the measure of its diameter.

Sec. 65. (a.) In cylindrical superheaters, the strength of the joints and the factor of safety is found in a similar manner as for cylindrical boilers and steam receivers, but instead of using 48,000 pounds as the tensile strength of iron 30,000 pounds is adopted unless where the heat or flame impinges at or nearly at right angles to the plate, then 22,400 pounds is substituted.

(b.) In all cases the internal steam pipes should be so fitted that the steam in flowing to them will pass over all the plates exposed to the impact of heat or flame.

(c.) Superheaters or water-jackets should, as regards inspection, be deemed to be the most important part of the boilers and must be inspected inside and outside; those that cannot be entered (on account of their size) must have a sufficient number of doors through which a thorough investigation of the whole of the interior can be made.

(d.) Special attention should be paid to the inspection of superheaters, as with high pressure the plates may become dangerously weak and not give any sound to indicate their state when tested with the hammer; the plate should therefore be occasionally drilled. Drain pipes must be in all cases fitted to superheaters in which a collection of water in the bottom is possible.

(e.) Superheaters that can be shut off from the main boilers must be fitted with a Government lock-up safety-valve of sufficient size, but the least size passed shall not be less than 2 inches diameter.

Sec. 66. The areas of diagonal stays are found in the following way:—

Find the area of a direct stay needed to support the surface, multiply this area by the length of the diagonal stay and divide the product by the length of a line drawn at right angles to the surface supported to the end of the diagonal stay, the quotient will be the area of the diagonal stay required.

Sec. 67. (a.) When the tops of combustion boxes or other parts of a boiler are supported by solid rectangular girders, the following formula, which is used by the Imperial Board of Trade, will be useful for finding the working pressure to be allowed on the girders, assuming that they are not subjected to a greater temperature than the ordinary heat of steam, and in case of combustion chambers, that the ends are fitted to the edges of the tube plate and the back plate of the combustion box:

W = Width of combustion box in inches.

P = Pitch of supporting bolts in inches.

D = Distance between the girders from centre to centre in inches.

d = Depth of girder in inches.

T = Thickness of girder in inches.

N = Number of supporting bolts.

$$C = \frac{N \times 1000}{N+1} \text{ when the number of bolts is odd.}$$

$$C = \frac{(N+1)\ 1000}{N+2} \text{ when the number of bolts is even.}$$

(b.) The working pressure for the supporting bolts and for the plate between them, shall be determined by the rule for ordinary stays.

Sec. 68. The flat ends of all boilers, as far as the steam space extends, and the ends of superheaters should be fitted with shield, or baffle plates, where exposed to the hot gases of the up-take, as all the plates subjected to the direct impact of heat or flame are liable to get injured unless covered with water.

"When a superheater is constructed with a tube subject to external pressure, the working pressure should be ascertained by the rules given for circular iron furnaces, but the constants should be reduced as thirty is to forty-seven.

"If steel is proposed to be used in superheaters, the particulars should be submitted to the Board of Steamboat Inspection or to the Chairman, if the Board is not sitting, for consideration, but in all cases it should be discouraged for this purpose; this applies to the unshielded up-takes of all boilers, including ordinary vertical donkey boilers."

Sec. 69. Donkey boilers that are in any way attached to, or connected with the main boilers, or with the machinery used for propelling the ship, must be inspected and fitted the same way as the main boilers and have a water and steam gauge, and all other fittings complete, and as regards safety-valves, must comply with the same regulations as the main boilers, and no safety-valve shall be passed except as hereinafter provided in the rules relating to the inspection of safety-valves.

Sec. 70. (a.) No boiler or steam-chamber is to be so constructed, fitted or arranged as that the escape of steam from it through the safety-valve can be wholly or partially intercepted by the action of any other valve.

(b.) A stop valve must always be fitted between the boiler and the steam pipe, and when two or more boilers are connected with a steam receiver or superheater between each boiler and superheater or steam receiver. The object of this is obvious, viz., to avoid the failure of all the boilers through the failure of one. The necks of stop valves should be as short as practicable.

(c.) Screwed steam connecting pipes of iron may be used on steamboats up to and not exceeding four inches diameter; and if such pipes are over two inches diameter, they must be connected with suitable flanges and bolts. The cocks, valves and pipes shall be substantially made with flanges, bolted and attached to the boilers to the satisfaction of the Inspector who inspected them; cast iron flanges on steam pipes or attached to boiler, shall not be used.

Sec. 71. (a.) Each boiler must be fitted with glass water gauge, at least two test cocks, and steam gauge, that is to say, each boiler must be fitted with all the fittings as complete as if they were only one boiler.

(b.) Boilers that fire at both ends and those of unusual width, must have water gauges and test cocks at each end or side, as the case may be When a steamer has more than one boiler, and those boilers are fitted with stop valves, each boiler must be treated as a separate one and have all the requisite fittings.

Sec. 72. Inspectors are to be most careful not to give any official sanction to any new arrangement or construction of marine steam boilers, without first obtaining the permission of the Chairman in writing, nor are they allowed to give any written approval of any invention or arrangement unless by direction of the Board, and whenever they know that any invention or new arrangement is to be fitted to a vessel that is intended to have a passenger certificate, they should, as soon as possible, obtain plans and submit the same to the Chairman.

Sec. 73. When the longitudinal seams in cylindrical furnaces are not welded or made with a butt strap, as provided in section 52 of these regulations, the following constants will be substituted for 90,000:

| (a.) Furnaces with butt joints and drilled rivet holes. | 90,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 80,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 90,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps. |
| (b.) Furnaces with butt joints and punched rivet holes. | 85,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 85,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps. |
| (c.) Furnaces with lap joints and drilled rivet holes. | 80,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled. |
| (d.) Furnaces with lapped joints and punched rivet holes. | 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled; 60,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled. |

Sec. 74. (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular steel furnaces and flues where subjected to such pressure, when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap, shall be determined by the following formula:—

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the length of the flue, or furnace, in feet, plus 1, multiplied by the diameter in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds, adding ten per cent to the result of the formula, provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula:—(c.)

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times T^2}{(L+1) \times D} = \text{Working pressure, where}$$

T = Thickness of plate in inches.
D = Diameter of flue outside in inches.
L = Length of flue or furnace in feet, or the length between the rings in feet, if it is strengthened by suitable rings or Adamson joints.

(c.) The product of 10,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter (outside) of the flue or furnace, in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds.

(d.) When horizontal furnaces of ordinary diameter are constructed of a series of rings welded longitudinally, and the ends of each ring flanged and the rings riveted together, and so forming the furnace, the working pressure is found by the following formula, provided the length in inches between the centre of the flanges of the rings is not greater than (120 T − 12) and the flanging performed at one heat by a suitable flanging machine, and also the conditions which follow the formula are complied with.

T = Thickness of plate in inches.
D = Outside diameter of furnace in inches.

The radii of the flanges on the fire side should be about $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The depth of the flanges from the fire side should be three times the diameter of the rivet plus $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches, and the thickness of the flanges should be as near the thickness of the body of the plate as practicable. The distance from the edge of the rivet holes to the edge of the flange should not be less than the diameter of the rivet, and the diameter of the rivets at least $\frac{3}{8}$ inch greater than the thickness of the plate. The depth of the ring between the flanges should be not less than three times the diameter of the rivets, the fire edge of the ring should be at about the termination of the curve of the flange, and the thickness not less than half the thickness of the furnace plate. It is very desirable that these rings should be turned.

The holes in the flanges and rings should be drilled in place if practicable, but if not drilled in place they should be drilled smaller than the size required, and afterwards when in place rimered out until the holes are quite fair, the holes should be slightly tapered and the heads of the rivets of moderate size.

After all the welding, flanging and heating is completed each ring should be efficiently annealed in one operation.

(e.) When the longitudinal seams in such furnaces are made with a single butt strap double riveted, or double butt straps single riveted, with all holes drilled in place, and the flanging of the ends is performed by hand, "and then annealed" instead of at one heat by a flanging machine, with all other conditions as to construction as described in subsec. (d) being complied with, then 8800 is to be substituted in place of 9900 in the formula, subsec. (d).

Corrugated Steel Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 75. (a.) In steel flue furnaces when new, corrugated and machine made of the Fox corrugated and Morison suspension types, or the John Brown & Co, of the Purves ribbed and grooved type, or the Deighton and Fox type, if they are practically true circles, and the plates not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick, the working pressure is found by the following formula:—

$$\frac{C \times X}{D} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

C = 14,000.
T = Thickness in inches.
D = Outside diameter in inches, measured at the bottom of the corrugations when the furnace is of the corrugated or suspension type, or over the plain parts when it is of the ribbed and grooved description.

In Fox's corrugated furnaces the pitch of the corrugations should not exceed 6 inches, and in Morison's suspension furnace and the Deighton furnace the pitch should not exceed 8 inches. In these descriptions of furnaces the depth from top of corrugations outside to bottom of corrugations inside should not be less than 2 inches.

The ribs of ribbed and grooved furnaces should not be less than $1\frac{5}{16}$ inches above the plain parts, the depth of the grooves not more than $\frac{3}{4}$ inch, and the length between the centre of the ribs not over 9 inches. In each of these descriptions of furnaces the plain parts at the back ends should be so made that the length, measured from the waterside of the back tube plate to the centre of the back end corrugation or rib, does not exceed 9 inches. The plain parts at the front ends should also be so made that the length, measured from the centre of the first corrugation or rib, to the centre of the rivets by which the furnace is secured to the front end plate, does not exceed 9 inches. When the plain parts at the back ends are made conical, and the flange by which the attachment is made to the back tube plate is continuous, a length of $10\frac{1}{2}$ inches may be allowed between the waterside of the back tube plate and the centre of the first corrugation or rib. When this method of construction is adopted, the vertical section through the neck-piece should be kept as circular as is practicable. The set up at the bottom should not exceed 8 inches measured over the plates, and in no case should the vertical axis exceed the horizontal one by more than 14½ per cent. The plates at the ends should not be unduly thinned in the flanging.

(b.) When the furnaces are riveted in two or more lengths the case should be submitted to the Chairman for consideration, as it may be necessary to make a reduction.

Sec. 76. The working pressure for corrugated iron furnaces practically circular, and machine made, provided the plane parts at the ends do not exceed six inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick, should not be greater than that found by the following formula:—

$$\frac{10,000 \times \text{thickness in inches}}{\text{Mean diameter in inches}} = \text{Working pressure per square inch.}$$

Sec. 77. Inspectors are to fix the working pressure of boilers by a series of calculations of the strength of the various parts, and according to the workmanship and material.

Sec. 78. Before testing a boiler, the Inspector should examine it, take the necessary measurements and calculate what the working pressure should be, in accordance with these regulations. If the test is not satisfactory the defects must be made good and the boiler retested. This instruction applies to superheaters, steam chests and water-jackets as well as boilers.

Sec. 79. If the boiler is too hot for the Inspector to examine it efficiently with safety and convenience, he should decline to examine it, and absolutely refuse to grant a certificate until he can make an efficient examination.

Sec. 80. Inspectors should see all new boilers and boilers that have been taken out of a ship for a thorough repair, tested by a hydrostatic pressure up to at least one and one-half the working pressure that will be allowed previous to the boilers being placed in the vessel to test the workmanship, &c., but the working pressure is to be determined by the stay power, thickness of plates and strength of riveting, &c., and not by the hydrostatic test.

Sec. 81. The hydrostatic test should in no case exceed that provided by section 44 of these regulations, and it is never to be applied until the boiler has been opened up for examination and until the strength has been calculated from the necessary measurements taken from the boiler itself.

Sec. 82. When a boiler is partially inspected by one Inspector, and the inspection is completed and the certificate to be granted by another, if the Inspector who witnesses the test of the boiler by the hydrostatic pressure has an opportunity of examining it inside and outside after the test, such Inspector shall determine the working pressure to be allowed on the boiler in question, taking care to inform the owner or master, or maker or agent, and the Inspector who partially inspected it, what working pressure should in his opinion be allowed on it; and the Inspector who partially inspected the boiler, should inform the Inspector who completes the inspection, of all particulars of his inspection of the boiler.

Sec. 83. Cast iron must not be used for stays, and Inspectors should also discourage the use of cast iron for chocks and saddles for boilers. Particular attention should be paid to chocking and fastening boilers to the vessel.

Sec. 84. A pressure once allowed on the boiler of a passenger steamer is not, under any circumstances whatever, to be increased, unless the Inspector has previously written for and obtained the sanction of the Chairman. In cases where an Inspector is of opinion that an increased pressure may with safety be allowed, he should communicate with the Inspector who last inspected the boiler, and if on learning the reason why the existing pressure was formerly allowed, the Inspector is still of opinion that it may be increased, he should communicate all the facts of the case to the Chairman, but as above stated the pressure should not in any case be increased until the question has been decided by the Chairman.

Sec. 85. In fixing the maximum working pressure on steamboat boilers, Inspectors are to assume one hundred and twenty-five pounds to the square inch as the limit allowable for a new steel boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made in the best manner, of the best quality of steel plates, at least one-quarter of an inch thick, with all the rivet holes drilled in place, the plates being then taken apart and the burrs removed, the longitudinal seams in the shell being fitted with double butt steel straps cut across the grain of the plate and each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams being at least double riveted and having at least seventy per cent of the strength of the solid plate, and all the flat surfaces stayed in the best manner and all the seams double riveted, and they shall rate the working pressure of all steel boilers so made, whether of greater or less diameter according to their strength compared with this standard, and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed for such boilers in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and all percentages added to the factor of safety for inferior workmanship or material, are to be deducted from that pressure.

Sec. 86. In fixing the maximum working pressure on steamboat boilers, Inspectors are to assume one hundred pounds to the square inch as the limit allowable for a new boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made of the best refined iron, at least one quarter of an inch thick, in the best manner and of the quality herein required, and shall rate the working pressure of all iron boilers, whether of greater or less diameter, according to their strength compared with this standard, and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred, using the water in such test at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and all percentages added to the factor of safety, for inferior workmanship or material, are to be deducted from that pressure.

Sec. 87. In the case of zig-zag riveting, the strength through the plate diagonally between the rivets is equal to that horizontally between the rivets, when diagonal pitch $= \frac{6}{10}$ horizontal pitch $+ \frac{4}{10}$ diameter of rivet hole.

PART III.

Rules for Inspection of Water Tube Boilers.

MODE OF INSPECTION OF THE WATER TUBE PIPE OF BOILER KNOWN AS THE ROBERTS SAFETY WATER TUBE BOILER, OR OF SIMILAR TYPE OF BOILER.

Sec. 88. Any Inspector may, whenever he deems it necessary so to do, and one Inspector shall, at least once in every year, subject the water tube boiler of every steamboat to a test by hydrostatic pressure, in the ratio of two hundred pounds to the square inch, to one hundred pounds allowable as a working pressure, using the water in such test at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and shall satisfy himself by examination and experimental trials, under both steam and water tests, that such boiler is well made and of good and suitable materials. For the purposes of such tests, the owner of the steamboat shall provide the necessary hand-pump and apparatus, and fuel and other requisites, the same to be worked and operated by the crew of the vessel; and no Inspector of boilers and machinery shall make or deliver to the master or owner of any steamboat fitted with water tube boiler or boilers, any certificate of inspection unless he has first subjected the boiler or boilers of such steamboat to such tests by hydrostatic pressure, and running under steam, to test both the boilers and the working of the feed pumps while running, and by examination as herein prescribed, the period of test while running under steam to be not less than one hour, but may be extended to a longer time at the option of the Inspector.

Sec. 89. Before a water tube boiler is subjected to a test by hydrostatic pressure it shall be opened up for inspection, the outer covering shall be removed and the outside and inside of the boiler cleaned, the furnace grates removed and the furnace swept out clean, so that satisfactory and efficient inspection may be made. When bulkheads are so placed as to prevent a close examination of the plate and tubes of the boiler, they shall be removed, and the owner or master of the steamboat shall see that the foregoing requirements are complied with before applying for inspection.

Sec. 90. In any case in which the test is not satisfactory, the defects shall be made good and the boiler retested satisfactorily to the Inspector before a certificate is granted.

Sec. 91. Inspectors are to fix the working pressure of water tube boilers by calculations of the strength of the several parts hereafter specified, and by tests of the whole as provided herein.

Sec. 92. If a water tube boiler is too hot for an Inspector to examine it efficiently with safety and convenience, he should decline to do so, and absolutely refuse to grant a certificate until he can make a satisfactory examination.

Sec. 93. In order to satisfy himself as to strength and internal condition of a water tube boiler, the Inspector may, should he deem it necessary, order holes to be cut in it, any section or coils of pipes taken apart, and may also demand that such information by drawings and specifications of the several parts be furnished him of the construction, as will enable him to determine by calculations and tests and by examination their strength.

Sec. 94. During the construction of every water tube boiler intended for use on steamboats in Canada, the maker of such boiler shall notify the Inspector of the district in which it is intended to be used, or the nearest available Inspector, that it is open to his inspection, and shall at all times during such construction allow the Inspector free access to it.

Sec. 95. No part of a water tube boiler shall be made of boiler plate, whether iron or steel, which has not been stamped with the name or stamp of the maker thereof, and no certificate shall be granted with respect to any water tube boiler made partly of plate not so stamped, and before a certificate shall be granted with respect to any water tube boiler, a declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler, stating the name or stamp of the maker of the plates, their quality and the quality of all pipes and materials used in the construction of the boiler, and stating the quality of the workmanship, shall be furnished the Inspector; such oath may be taken before any justice of the peace in Canada, or before a notary public and certified under his official seal, if taken out of Canada: Provided that in any case such declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler cannot be obtained from any cause deemed sufficient by the Inspector, the affidavit of two practical water tube boiler makers who have examined the boiler and reported upon the quality of the materials in it, and its workmanship and strength, shall if satisfactory to the Inspector be deemed sufficient in lieu of such declaration by the maker of the boiler.

Sec. 96. To prevent questions arising after a water tube boiler is commenced, particulars of its construction by drawings or specifications should be furnished the Inspector by the maker or contractor for his approval, as to its general design and construction, the Inspector having received such drawings and specifications, and not disapproving of them, will be careful to see that they are followed in construction, or to make deductions to the working pressure if not followed; this regulation will also apply to boilers undergoing alterations.

Sec. 97. No water tube boiler or pipe in connection therewith shall be approved, which is made in whole or in part of bad or faulty material, or bad workmanship, or is unsafe in its form, or from age, or from use, or from any other cause.

Sec. 98. Inspectors should see all new water tube boilers, and water tube boilers that have been taken out of a ship for thorough repair, tested by hydraulic pressure up to at least twice the working pressure that will be allowed, previous to the boiler being placed in the vessel, to test the workmanship and materials; but the working pressure is not to be determined by the test alone, as the stay power, thickness of plate and tubes, and the strength and workmanship are all to be considered.

Sec. 99. The hydraulic test should not exceed twice the working pressure allowed, and it is never to be applied until the boiler has been opened up for examination, and the strength of the parts has been decided on, from the measurements and examination of those parts of the boiler.

Sec. 100. When a water tube boiler is partially inspected by one Inspector, and the inspection is completed and the certificate to be granted by another Inspector, if the Inspector who witnesses the tests of the boiler by hydrostatic pressure, and while running under steam, has an opportunity of examining the boiler inside and outside after the tests, such Inspector shall determine the working pressure to be allowed on the boiler, taking care to inform the owners or maker, or master or agents, and the Inspector who partially inspected it, what working pressure should in his opinion be allowed, and the Inspector who partially inspected the boiler should inform the Inspector who completes the inspection of all particulars of his inspection of the boiler.

Sec. 101. Cast iron must not be used for stays, pipes or elbows in water tube boilers; Inspectors should also discourage the use of cast iron for chocks and saddles for boilers; particular attention should be paid to chocking and fastening boilers to vessels to guard against shifting or breaking loose, and all pipes to be of the best quality of metal, lapwelded or solid drawn.

Sec. 102. A pressure once allowed on a water tube boiler is not under any circumstances to be increased, unless the Inspector has previously written for and obtained the sanction of the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection. In cases where an Inspector is of opinion that an increased working pressure may with safety be allowed, he should communicate with the Inspector who last inspected the boiler; and if on learning the reason why the existing pressure was formerly allowed, the Inspector is still of the opinion that it may be increased, he should communicate all the facts of the case to the Chairman; but, as above stated, the working pressure should not in any case be increased, until the question has been decided by the Chairman.

Sec. 103. In the event of any novelty in construction of a water tube boiler, or any departure from the practice of staying and strengthening as prescribed in these regulations and rules, the Inspector shall report full particulars to the Chairman before fixing the working pressure.

Sec. 104. An Inspector shall not declare a water tube boiler safe, unless he is fully informed as to its construction and material and workmanship; he should therefore be very careful when he proposes to give a certificate for a boiler that he is not called in to inspect until after it is completed and fitted in the ship.

Sec. 105. In the case of new water tube boilers the Inspector may allow a stress not exceeding 5,000 pounds per square inch of net section on solid iron screw stays supporting flat surfaces, but the stress should not exceed 4,000 pounds when the stays have been welded; where the head of drum is held by one stay in the centre, the area to be supported by it will be one quarter of the whole area of the head, measuring from inside of drum. Stays in water tube boilers may have an allowance of 6,000 pounds per square inch of sectional area, when under conditions similar to boilers to which rules in parts I. and II. apply.

Sec. 106. The pressure on plate forming flat surfaces is found by the following formulæ: –

$$\frac{C \times (T + 1)^2}{S - 6} = \text{Working pressure per square inch.}$$

When the head of drum is supported by one stay in the centre the area of flat surface supported and the working pressure will be found by the formula:

$$\frac{C \times (T + 1)}{\left(\frac{d}{2} - 1\right)^2 - 6} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

d = Inside diameter of drum head in inches.
T = Thickness of plate in sixteenths of an inch.
S = Surface supported in square inches.
C = Constant as follows:

(a.) C = 80 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat, flame or hot gases, and the water and steam (as in the Roberts Safety Water Pipe Boiler) in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates, fitted with nuts, or well riveted over with a good head.

(b.) When the riveted ends of the screw stays are much worn, or when the ends are burned, the constants should be reduced, but the Inspector must act according to the circumstances that present themselves at the time of the inspection, as when the ends of the screw stays are found in this condition, the constant may be reduced from 80 to 36. In doubtful cases, the Inspector should refer the case to the Chairman.

Sec. 107. The boiler shall be open to inspection during construction, the Inspector to satisfy himself that, in regard to all boilers constructed of this type made after the first day of February, 1891, the quality of the plate or material of which the drum is made is of the "best quality," and stamped with the name or stamp of the manufacturer thereof, and if of steel the tensile strength to be not less than 60,000 pounds, and the tests for plates (applicable when the drum is riveted longitudinally) and for stays to be similar to tests required in section 36 of the foregoing "Rules for inspection of boilers of steamboats."

(a.) The constant for calculating the working pressure to be allowed on the drum if of iron or steel plates when exposed to the impact of heat, flame or hot gases, and not protected by water or other satisfactory means, to be 30,000 pounds per square inch of sectional area, and when not so exposed the constants applicable are those as provided under parts 1 and 2 of the rules, due regard being had to percentage of seams if riveted, and to percentage of plate left by line of holes where the water tubes are attached, using a factor of not less than 5, with additions as provided in the foregoing "Rules for inspection of boilers of steamboats."

(b.) The distance between the edges of the tube holes in drum, must be not less than one half the diameter of such holes, and the least percentage of strength of plate either longitudinally, or diagonally, to be used for calculating the strength of drum at that section.

Sec. 108. The thickness of plate in drums of water tube boilers of less than ten inches diameter to be not less than three-eighths of an inch, and of ten inches diameter and up to fourteen inches diameter to be not less than half an inch thick, and the drum heads to be in no case less than half-inch thickness, and after being flanged, if of steel plate, to be annealed.

The drum heads of water tube boilers may be welded to the drum, instead of being riveted or bolted to the drum, when the drum and heads are made of iron, and of not over nine inches in diameter. If welded tube is used for drum, it must be made of iron.

Sec. 109. The safety-valves for the Roberts or similar type of boiler to be placed one on the steam pipe near the drum, and one on the drum; the number and dimensions of safety-valves will be the same as provided by "Rules relating to the inspection of safety-valves."

(a.) The aggregate safety-valve area required on each twin water tube boiler (connected by valves or cocks), over the same grate area, may be divided into or among four safety-valves, two being on each part of boiler.

PART IV.

Rules Relating to the Inspection of Safety-Valves.

Sec. 110. (a.) After the following rules come into operation, every boiler made or placed on board a steamboat shall be fitted with two or more lock-up safety-valves of a practically equal area, and of a construction approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection, or by the Chairman, if the Board is not then in session; the aggregate area of said lock-up safety-valves shall not be less than that given in the following tables opposite the boiler pressure intended, the safety-valves should be upon the boiler, or as near the boiler as practicable without pipes, cocks, valves, or other possible obstructions between the safety-valves and the boiler.

Every Inspector, when inspecting, visiting or examining the boiler or machinery of any steamboat, shall satisfy himself that the safety-valves attached thereto are of suitable dimensions, sufficient in number, well managed and in good working order, and only loaded so as to open at or below the certified working pressure; and he may, if he thinks proper, order and cause two or more of such safety-valves which together shall be of sufficient dimensions to discharge all the steam the boiler can generate, and of such construction as he approves, to be locked up and taken wholly away from the control of the engineer when the steam is up; but the engineer shall have access to the safety-valves when the steam is not up, and shall see that they are kept in working order, and the master of the steamboat shall see that the engineer has access to them for that purpose, and keeps them in proper working order.

The cocks, valves and pipes attached to the boiler shall be substantially made with flanges, bolted and attached to the boilers to the satisfaction of the Inspector who inspected them.

No valve, under any circumstances, shall at any time be so loaded or so managed in any way, as to subject a boiler to a greater pressure than that allowed by the Inspector at the then last inspection thereof.

Every safety-valve made or placed on board of a steamboat and attached to a boiler shall have a lift equal to at least one-fourth of its diameter; the openings for the passage of steam to and from the valves shall each have an area not less than the area of the valve, as shall also the waste steam pipe, and the valve box shall have a waste water pipe; if the lever of a lever safety valve is not bushed with brass the pin shall be of brass,—iron and iron working together shall not be allowed; every such safety-valve shall be fitted with a lifting gear so that it can be worked by hand, either from the engine room or the fire-hold, or by the master or person in charge on deck.

(b.) Safety-valves should not be passed of a diameter less than one inch and provided they are of approved construction, and the proportion of area of safety-valve to area of grate be complied with as given by the tables of safety-valve areas.

(c.) The grate area shall be ascertained by measuring the length of the grate from the inner edge of the dead plate to the front of the bridge, and the width from side to side of the furnace on top of the bars at the middle of their length.

(d.) The safety-valves should be tested (by the Inspector) on new boilers, or on other boilers if he wishes to test their efficiency, under full steam and full fires, for at least 15 minutes with the feed water shut off and stop valve closed: if the accumulation of pressure exceed 10 per cent of the loaded pressure, he should not issue a certificate without reporting to the Chairman full particulars of the test, and the strength pressure of the boiler, with sketch of safety-valve, and in no case is an Inspector to give a certificate for safety-valves unless he has examined them and is acquainted with the details of their construction.

Sec. 111 (a.) Inspectors are instructed that in all new boilers and whenever alterations can be easily made, the valve chest should be placed directly on the boiler, and the neck or part between the chest and the flange which bolts on to the boiler should be as short as possible.

(b.) In any case in which an Inspector is of opinion that it is positively dangerous to have a length of pipe between the boilers and the safety-valve chest, he shall at once insist on the requisite alterations being made before granting a certificate.

(d.) If lever safety-valves are used, the distance between the centre of the valve and the centre of the fulcrum, should not be less than the diameter of the valve.

(e.) Safety-valves must be placed in convenient and accessible places, that their adjustment and examination may be readily and efficiently made. The Inspector in his examination of the boilers and machinery is particularly to direct his attention to the safety-valves, and whenever he considers it necessary, he is to satisfy himself as to the pressure on the boiler by actual trial. The Inspector is to examine the safety-valves, weights, and springs at every inspection.

(f.) The valve seats should be secured so that they cannot lift with the valve.

(g.) The spindle should be attached to the valve, so that when it is lifted, the valve will also lift. It should also extend through the covers and be fitted with sockets and cross handles, allowing them to be lifted and turned around in their seats, and their efficiency tested at any time.

(h.) The size of the steel of which the spring is made in spring safety-valves is found by the following formula taken from the Imperial Board of Trade Rules:—

$c = 11{,}000$ for square steel.
$S =$ the load on the springs in pounds.
$D =$ the diameter of the spring (from centre to centre of the wire in inches).
($d =$ diameter, or side of square, of the wire in inches.)

The spring should be protected from the steam and impurities issuing from the boiler, and in case of the spring breaking, means be provided to keep it in position on the valve.

(i.) A standard spring if made of the best square cast steel, contains ·25 of a square inch, the inside diameter is two inches, and the outside diameter is three inches, it has thirteen complete coils with the ends and is 11½ inches long. The working load is assumed at 600 pounds, one-sixth of its breaking load when hardened to a temper, just sufficient to break it, at which load it should deflect just one inch.

(j.) To find the sectional area of any other spring the pressure or weight on the valve being given:—

600 : 700 : ·25 : : ·29 = sectional area of spring at 700 pounds load. The other dimensions of the spring would be in like proportion, the number of coils thirteen being constant.

PART V.

Duties and Liabilities of Engineers.

Sec. 112. (a.) Engineers are required in all cases upon stopping of the engine to open the safety-valves, so as to keep the steam in the boiler below the limit allowed by the Inspector's certificate as prescribed by law, to open the doors or close the dampers, and when from accident or other cause, the water in the boiler has fallen below the point of safety, to put out the fires immediately.

(b.) Engineers shall keep the fire pump and hose and their connections in perfect condition ready for immediate use, and when found unfit for use from age or other cause, shall report their condition to the Inspector of Hulls by whom the steamer was last inspected.

(c.) Engineers when laying up a steamer in the fall, or when finally leaving her, are required to report to the owner and also to the Inspector of the nearest district any defects of, or injury to, the boilers and machinery by which the safety of the same may be endangered. They shall also report to the Inspector of the district at which the steamer next arrives, any accident happening to the boilers or machinery during the trip, and in case of omission to make such report, the license of the engineer so omitting shall be revoked.

(d.) The Chief Engineer of a steamer is held accountable by the Department of Marine for the proper care and management of the boilers and machinery under his charge. He is, therefore, in no case to absent himself from the vessel while on her regular trips, unless a competent substitute be provided to fill his place during his absence.

(e.) Engineers on first taking charge of a steamer, and at least once a year thereafter, shall satisfy themselves by close examination that the braces, stays and pins of the boiler are in good order, and sufficient for the strain to which they may be subjected; they shall also satisfy themselves that the safety-valves are in good working order and sufficient for the requirements of sections 65 and 110 of these regulations.

(f.) Engineers are to exhibit their certificates in the engine room along with a copy of these regulations.

Management of Boilers.

Sec. 113. (a.) Getting up steam.—Warm the boiler gradually. Steam should not be raised from cold water in less than four hours. If practicable light the fires over night. By getting up steam too quickly, the boiler will soon be destroyed.

(b.) Firing.—Fire regularly. Keep the sides up, and use the slice gently and as seldom as possible.

(c.) Feed water.—Let the feed be regular and constant.

(d.) Glass gauge and try cocks.—Keep the glass free and try the gauge cocks every fifteen minutes.

(e.) Safety-valves.—Lift each safety-valve at least once a day, and always before getting up steam.

(f.) Low water.—Put out the fires by drawing them or throwing ashes on them. Never use water. Low water should never occur.

(g.) Blowing off the boiler.—Do not blow off by steam pressure; let the water run off if possible. See that the fires are all out and hot ashes removed.

(h.) Boiler Purgers.—Never use any compositions to keep down incrustation, or oil or other impurities to remove it, without the approval of the Chairman.

(i.) General Rules.—Keep the boiler clean inside and outside and free from leak. Never throw water in the furnace. Under high pressure, raise the safety-valve gently. Lower the fires, or, if necessary stop the engine (if in the master's opinion it can be done with safety to the vessel), when foaming, to find a water level.

PART VI.

Sec. 4. A candidate for first class engineer's certificate must be at least twenty-two years of age.

(a.) In addition to the qualifications required for a second class engineer, he must have at least twelve months' service as senior engineer in the engine room, in a steamboat or in steamboats of one hundred nominal horse power or over, during which time he must have held a second class engineer's certificate of competency.

(b.) He shall be competent to calculate the thickness of plates for a boiler of given dimensions to carry a fixed pressure of steam per square inch, also the pressure a boiler may be allowed as a working pressure, its dimensions, stays and other parts, method of construction and thickness of plates being given.

(c.) He shall be able to calculate the direct strain, the twisting strain, and the bending strain in rectangular bars, and in round bars with given loads. The required capacity of the feed pump, and the area of the safety-valves for a boiler of given dimensions, and the power of the engine from an indicator diagram of its work.

(d.) He shall know the relative volumes of steam at different temperatures and pressures, the chemical constituents of coal, and the quantity of air required for its combustion.

(e.) He must have a knowledge of surface condensation, superheating and the working of steam expansively.

(f.) He must be able to explain the operations of the engine, and to make a working drawing of any of its parts.

(g.) His knowledge of arithmetic must include the extraction of the square and cube root, and the mensuration of superficies and solids.

Interpretation.

The term "apprenticeship" refers to one who has been employed continuously for the period mentioned, gaining the instructions as required under a master, and if such service has not been continuous in one employ, the applicant must have at least forty-eight months service, on the making or repairing of steam engines.

The term "journeyman mechanic" refers to a person who has been employed as competent to perform the duties of shaping and fitting the parts of steam engines and erecting them.

The term "engineer on the watch" means the person in charge of the propelling engines and boilers, and responsible for the bells or signals, while on duty under way.

Applications for examination are to be made to the Board of Steamboat Inspection, or to the Inspector of the division where the candidate resides, the application to be made on forms furnished for that purpose by the Inspector, and to be accompanied with proofs of service, and testimonials as to sobriety, experience and ability, and to character, and to general good conduct for at least the twelve months immediately preceding the date of application to be examined. If the service has been on shore the testimonials must be signed by an employer; if at sea by the master and chief engineer; if not so signed satisfactory reasons must be given the examiner, who will not accept proofs of service or testimonials which are not entirely satisfactory. In the absence of the necessary verification the candidate cannot be examined.

The examiner should be particularly careful to ascertain that there are no gaps in the candidates service which are not properly accounted for, before he is allowed up for examination.

Engineers who from any cause have had their certificates cancelled will be re-examined before they are again allowed to hold a certificate of the same grade. Upon their passing the examination a new certificate will be issued to them. The Minister of Marine may, however, in special cases, upon report of the Board of Steamboat Inspection, if the circumstances warrant it, dispense with the re-examination.

QUALIFICATION REQUIRED FOR SECOND OR FIRST CLASS ENGINEERS' CERTIFICATES VALID IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

Candidates for second or first class Canadian (engineers') certificates valid in the United Kingdom will be required to pass examinations equal to the examinations in the United Kingdom.

The service required, proof of which the examination papers of the applicant must exhibit, is as follows:—

Sec 5. A candidate for a second class engineer's certificate must be 21 years of age.

(a.) He must have served as an apprentice engineer for four years at least, and prove that during the period of his apprenticeship he has been employed on the making or repairing of steam engines, boilers, &c. Three years of the apprentice time must have been passed in the fitting or erecting shops, or in both. In calculating the four years of artisan service which are to constitute the required apprenticeship, which should not begin at an earlier age than 15, time spent at a technical school (recognized by the Board of Steamboat Inspection as suitable) where there is an engineering laboratory, may be taken into account and accepted as equivalent to artisan service at the ratio of three years in the technical school to two in artisan service, provided that the applicant was over 15 years of age, and can produce the principal's certificate for regular attendance and satisfactory progress, and provided also that in such case the other portion of the time was spent in the fitting or erecting shops of an engineer, as indicated above.

Journeyman's time will be considered as equivalent to apprenticeship.

Every applicant must produce testimonials of ability as an engineer workman to the satisfaction of the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection.

If the candidate has not served for four years as an apprentice engineer, or as a journeyman, he will be required to have served, in lieu thereof, four years at sea as engineer on regular watch on the main engines or boilers of a foreign-going steamer of not less than 66 nominal horse power, or six years in a home trade steamer of not less than 66 nominal horse power.

(b.) In addition to the apprenticeship as above described, or the alternative sea service, the applicant must have served one year at sea as engineer on regular watch on the main engines or boilers of a foreign-going steamer of not less than 66 nominal horse power; or eighteen months in a home trade steamer of not less than 66 nominal horse power.

(c.) He must be able to give a satisfactory description of boilers, and the methods of staying them, together with the use and management of the different valves, cocks, pipes and connections.

(d.) He must understand how to correct defects from accident, decay, &c., and the means of repairing such defects.

*No period of service in a drawing office of over six months can be allowed to count for workshop service.

(f.) He must state the causes, effects, and usual remedies for incrustation and corrosion

(g.) He must be able to explain the method of testing and altering the setting of the slide valves, and method of testing the fairness of shafts and adjusting them.

(h.) He must be able to calculate the suitable working pressure for a steam boiler of given dimensions, and the stress per square inch on crank and tunnel shafts when the necessary data are furnished.

(i.) He must understand the construction of steering engines, evaporators, feed filters, and feed heaters.

(j.) He must understand the construction of centrifugal, bucket, and plunger, pumps, and the principle on which they act.

(k.) He must be able to state how a temporary or permanent repair could be effected in case of derangement of a part of the machinery, or total break down.

(l.) He must write a legible hand, and have a good knowledge of arithmetic up to and including vulgar and decimal fractions and square and cube root. He must also understand the application of these rules to questions about safety valves, coal consumption, consumption of stores, capacities of tanks, bunkers, &c.

(m.) He must be able to pass a creditable examination as to the various constructions of paddle and screw engines in general use; as to the details of the different working parts, external and internal, and the use of each part.

(n.) He must possess a creditable knowledge of the prominent facts relating to combustion, heat and steam.

First Class Engineer.

Sec. 6. A candidate for a first class engineer's certificate must be not less than 22 years of age.

In addition to the qualification required for a second class engineer,

(a.) He must:—

(1.) Have served at sea for 12 months, with a second class certificate of competency, or service, as senior engineer in charge of a watch on the main engines or boilers of a foreign-going steamship of not less than 99 nominal horse power; or

(2.) have served at sea for 18 months, with a second-class certificate of competency or service, as first engineer of a home trade steamer of not less than 99 nominal horse power; or 2 years with a second-class certificate of competency or service as a second engineer of a home trade steamer of not less than 99 nominal horse power; or

(3.) have served 2½ years with a second-class certificate of competency or service as third engineer of a home trade steamer of not less than 99 nominal horse power, if, during the whole of that period he has been the senior engineer in charge of a watch on the main engines and boilers; or

(4.) possess, or be entitled to, a first-class certificate of service.

(b.) He will be required to make an intelligent hand sketch, or a working drawing of some one or more of the principal parts of a steam-engine, and to mark in, without a copy, all the necessary dimensions in figures, so that sketch or drawing could be worked from. See Appendix D.

(c.) He must also be able to take off and calculate indicator diagrams.

(d.) He must be able to calculate safety-valve pressures, and the strength of the boiler shell, stays and riveting.

(e.) He must be able to state the general proportions borne by the principal parts of the machinery to each other, and to calculate the direct stress, the torsional stress, and the bending stress in round bars, and the direct stress and the bending stress in rectangular bars with given loads.

(f.) He must be able to explain the method of testing and altering the setting of the slide valves, and to sketch about what difference any alteration in the slide valve will make in the indicator diagram, and also the method of testing the fairness of shafts, and of adjusting them.

(g.) He must be conversant with surface condensation superheating and the working of steam expansively.

(h.) His knowledge of arithmetic must include the mensuration of superficies and solids and the extraction of the square and cube roots, and the application of these rules to questions relating to the power, duty and economy of engines and boilers, and to the stresses in rods, shafts and levers of the engine.

(i.) He must understand the construction of, and be able to maintain in working condition the auxiliary machinery which is placed under his charge, viz.: refrigerating machinery, electric light engines, and dynamos, electric motors fitted to ships' boats, hydraulic machinery, and the various descriptions of steering engines, &c.

Sec. 7. When the workshop service has been performed in a place where steam engine are not made or repaired, and the class of work done is similar to that required in engine making, the service may be accepted with an additional year in the engine room; that is, four years' workshop service and two years in the engine room (of which one year must have been at sea), or one year at sea in the engine room and one year at engine fitting in a suitable marine engine workshop. The approval of the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection must be obtained in every such case before the candidate is examined.

Sec. 8. When the workshop service has been performed in a place where engines are made, and the department in which the applicant has been principally engaged is not "fitting" or "erecting," the case must be referred to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection with a report upon the service performed. If the service be such as is useful training for an Engineer, the Chairman may accept the service, but in every such case the applicant must prove additional engine room or marine engine workshop service as required above.

Sec. 9. In the case of candidates for First Class Certificates qualifying service means service on regular watch as Senior Engineer in charge of the main engines or boilers. During the whole of the period claimed, candidates must have been in possession of Second Class Certificates.

In the case of candidates for Second Class Certificates, qualifying service means service as Engineer on regular watch on the main engines or boilers. In no case will time spent in clerical work be allowed to count.

Sec. 10. In all cases the candidates' names must have been duly entered on the ship's Articles as Engineers in their proper ratings.

Sec. 11. Being on regular watch means being on watch for at least eight hours a day.

Sec. 12. Only such service as gives the experience required to make a man thoroughly competent as a sea-going Engineer is accepted as qualifying service. Even for a Second Class Certificate the candidate must prove to the satisfaction of the Examiner that he is qualified by experience and knowledge to act as Chief Engineer in an under-powered steamer of 99 nominal horse-power on a voyage, say, Canada to England, taking full responsibility for engines and boiler.

Sec. 13. The sea-service required by these Regulations is, unless otherwise stated, service performed in foreign-going ships.

Sec. 14. Service in the home or coasting trade is regarded as being equivalent to two-thirds of the same period of time served in the foreign trade.

Sec. 15. Service as watchkeeper on a lake or river steamer of not less than 66 nominal horse-power may be accepted under the following conditions:—

(1. the service will only count half as much as sea service; i.e., every two months of lake or river service is only equivalent to one month's sea service;

(2. candidates for second class certificates must prove, in addition to the lake or river service, at least three months' qualifying service at sea in a steamship of not less than 66 nominal horse-power;

(3.) candidates for first class certificates must prove, in addition to lake or river service in vessels of 99 nominal horse-power, at least six months' qualifying service at sea, with a Second Class Engineer's Certificate, in vessels of not less than 99 nominal horse-power.

Sec. 16. Service performed on board auxiliary screw whalers and other vessels with auxiliary steam power of not less than 66 nominal horse-power, in the capacity of Engineer may be allowed to count towards qualifying candidates for examination for Second Class Engineers' Certificates of Competency to the extent of one-half the time the vessel is actually at sea. If the candidate is able to prove a larger amount of time under steam, he will be allowed to count the whole of such extended time.

Sec. 17. Service in sea-going steam dredgers, trawlers, or tug-boats may be accepted under the following conditions:—Two months of such service is only equivalent to one month's qualifying service. Candidates for second class certificates may perform all their sea service in sea-going steam dredgers, trawlers, or tug-boats, but they must have been on regular watch on the main engines or boilers, and the vessels must not be less than 66 nominal horse-power. Candidates for first class certificates must have served in vessels of at least 99 nominal horse-power, and have been in charge of a watch on the main engines or boilers. They must, in addition, have served in a qualifying capacity for at least six months in a foreign-going cargo or passenger steamship, or nine months in a home trade cargo or passenger steamship.

Sec. 18. All candidates will be required to produce, in addition to the official discharge certificates, testimonials as to their workshop service and as to their service at sea. The testimonials as to workshop service must be signed by the employer, and must testify to the candidate's conduct and ability, and state what kind of work he was engaged on (e.g., fitting, erecting, etc.), and for how long.

Sec. 19. Testimonials as to service at sea must testify to the applicant's sobriety, experience, ability, and general good conduct for at least the last twelve months' service at sea preceding the date of application to be examined. They must be signed by the master and chief engineer (or in the case of testimonials to chief engineers, by the master and superintending engineer) and must clearly state whether the applicant was on regular watch, and in regular charge of a watch on the main engines or boilers. It is desirable that testimonials of candidates should be endorsed by the superintending engineer. No time spent in clerical work will be allowed to count.

Sec. 20. In cases where a testimonial from the chief engineer, or from the master, is for any sufficient reason not obtainable, one may be submitted from the superintending engineer in place of that of the chief engineer, and one from the managing owner or secretary or chairman of a large company in place of that of the master; but in every such instance the testimonial must declare that the facts stated are in accordance with the reports made by the chief engineer or the master, as the case may be, or else that the facts are within the writer's personal knowledge.

Sec. 21. When a candidate is observed to be hard of hearing, or is labouring under any other obvious physical defect, the signatories of his testimonials are required to mention that fact specifically, and to state whether it in any way interfered with the efficiency of the candidate as an engineer on watch. When these modified testimonials are such as to completely satisfy the examiner that the defect is not such as to interfere with the efficient discharge of the applicant's duties as engineer, the examination is proceeded with; otherwise the case is referred to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection. Candidates afflicted with nervous impediment in speech may write their answers to viva voce questions.

Sec. 22. The testimonials of service of foreign engineers and of British engineers serving in foreign vessels, which cannot be verified by the Registrar-General of Seamen, must be confirmed either by the Consul of the country to which the ship in which the candidate served belonged, or by some other recognized official authority of that country; or by the testimony of some credible person on the spot having personal knowledge of the facts required to be established. The production, however, of such proofs will not of necessity be deemed sufficient. Each case must be decided on its own merits; and if the sufficiency of the proofs given appears to be at all doubtful, the point must be referred to the Chairman.

Sec. 23. Service which cannot be verified by proper entries in the articles of agreement of the ships in which the candidates have served cannot be counted.

Sec. 24. Foreign engineers must prove to the satisfaction of the examiners that they can speak and write the English language sufficiently well to perform the duties required of them on board a British vessel. In every case, before failing a candidate for insufficient knowledge of the English language the examiner should refer the matter to the Chairman. Examiners will be guided in the elementary and arithmethical questions by the regulations issued; as stated therein, complying with British Board of Trade requirements as per copies supplied.

APPENDIX D.

Examination in Rough Working Drawing for a First-Class Engineer's Certificate of Competency (Form Exn. 17).

1. The regulations of the Board of Trade in regard to the qualifications of a candidate for a first-class engineer's certificate of competency specify that,—

"He must be able to make working rough drawings of the different parts of the engines and boilers.

"He must be able to state the general proportions borne by the principal parts of the machinery to each other."

2. In accordance with these clauses, a candidate for a first-class certificate is required to make a rough working drawing of the parts specified as on specimen Form Exn. 17*a*. An engineer who has been some years in charge of marine engines and boilers ought to have familiarly in his mind the general construction of at least one set of engines and boilers, say that set he was last with. Fine drawing is not expected, and in the proportions of the parts a wide margin will be allowed, absurd dimensions will be failure in practical knowledge.

3. The drawing must, however, be practically a working drawing, giving a sufficient number of views to show the parts fully—sections, plans, or elevations just as the candidate would require to be supplied to him if he had to make the parts to the design of another person.

4. A clear and sketch showing the construction completely, and fully dimensioned, will be accepted if the candidate prefers this alternative.

5. A portion only of the parts specified may be accepted in place of the whole, if that portion is sufficient to show that the candidate has a good practical idea of the construction of the parts, and a fair notion of their general proportions or dimensions.

6. Candidates are hereby cautioned not to put on paper what they have not fully considered, and deliberately intend to be understood, as their statement of what they know about the construction of any part required.

7. The statements given in by a candidate may be in themselves, apparently, of little importance, but, as sample material from which the state of the candidate's knowledge of engines and boilers is to be inferred, every detail which is glaringly inconsistent with a sound knowledge of the use of the part, or in which an essential consideration has evidently been overlooked, is an important element in the description which the candidate is giving of his own qualifications.

8. The candidate is advised not to begin more than he can clearly finish in the time allowed. An important object in this part of the examination is to ascertain whether the candidate can be trusted to mark all necessary dimensions upon a sketch or a drawing. The test of this is, practically, the making of the part from the sketch without having to supply additional dimensions, and without measuring the drawing. To prove this ability the candidate must fully dimension the part shown in his sketch or drawing, notwithstanding that the parts may be correctly drawn to scale. A drawing is fully dimensioned when no part of it is left to the option of the party who is to work to the drawing.

9. To prevent misunderstanding, however, when the candidate has been led into showing more of the details than he has time fully to finish, he should name, in the statement on the other side, the particular parts which he has fully dimensioned.

10. All dimensions should have lines and darts, to indicate distinctly the points between which the dimensions are given.

11. Beware of writing cross dimensions upon centre lines, or upon longitudinal dimension lines. This is not an order but a recommendation.

12. The candidate is not expected to design anything; he has merely to sketch or draw a something with which he is expected to be already familiar. At the same time he should call attention to any defect in the design of the article or apparatus. Omission to do so will imply want of practical knowledge.

13. Pencil in nothing after half-past 3; all the dimensions, the figures, and the darts must be inked in; employ the remaining time in examining the drawing and in inking in any figures which may have been before overlooked, and in checking the dimensions.

14. Make sure that you will have sufficient room on the drawing sheet to show all the necessary views. You can have another sheet of drawing paper if necessary. All the paper used must be forwarded with the drawing.

Interpretation.

"Coasting or home trade" refers to service in steamships plying between any place or places in Canada, and any other place or places in Canada, not being a port or place on the inland waters; also to service between a place or places in Canada and another place or places in North America which does not necessitate passing south of the parallel of 30° north latitude. Service in the coasting trade is regarded as being equivalent to two-thirds of the same period of time served in the foreign trade.

"Sea service" or "foreign trade" refers to service in steamships engaged in the foreign sea trade, and plying between some place or places in Canada and some place or places outside of Canada; and outside of the limit of the coasting trade as hereinbefore defined.

PART VII.

Inspection of Hulls and Equipment of Steamboats.

Sec. 1. Inspectors of Hulls, before granting a certificate, must be satisfied that the following particulars have been complied with, in accordance with the requirements of the Act relating to steamboat inspection :—

(a.) That the hull of the vessel is sufficient for the service intended, and in good condition, and in addition having ample shelter and accommodation; with a sufficient number of sanitary closets for the use of passengers and crew.

(b.) That the boats, life-preservers, buoys, lights, signals and compasses are in good condition, and the certificates of the master and mate, or mates, are such as are required by the Act governing same.

(c.) The time (if less than 12 months) for which the said hull will be deemed sufficient.

(d.) The limits (if any) beyond which, as regards the hull and equipments, the vessel is, in the Inspector's judgment, not fit to ply.

(e.) The number of passengers, besides the crew, the vessel is allowed to carry, distinguishing, if necessary, between the respective numbers to be carried on the main deck and upper deck.

Sec. 2. (a.) Inspectors shall make their inspections when the owner, or master, and engineer of the vessel are present, if possible. Repairs can then be required, and defects can be pointed out to the proper persons without incurring delay. If these persons are not present, the Inspectors will make their inspection without them.

(b.) In order to prevent any mistakes as to the nature and extent of repairs required by the Inspectors, whenever they can not give a certificate until the repairs are effected or alterations made, a written statement of the defects to be remedied or alterations required, shall in all cases, be handed to the owner or master of the vessel, whether such statement is applied for by him or not, a copy of which should be always taken and transferred to the office press letter book.

(c.) If any difference of opinion arises between the Inspector and the owner or master, the facts should at once be submitted to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection for consideration, and for reference to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, when necessary.

Sec. 3. If a vessel usually plying in one district, is taken to another district to be inspected, the Inspector in the latter district shall not give a certificate without first communicating with the Inspector for the former district; nor, if there is any difference of opinion, without referring the question to the Chairman aforesaid for decision.

Sec. 4. It is the duty of the Inspector of Hulls to satisfy himself personally upon every detail of the inspection of a vessel's hull and equipment and not to trust to any certificate, or other document given by any person not responsible to his Department, who will hold him responsible to the fullest extent for the performance of the duty entrusted to him, and will support him in any reasonable step he may think necessary, in order to the fullest performance of his duty.

Sec. 5. In case the Inspector has reason to believe that the hull or equipment is not fit for so long a time as twelve months, he is to grant his certificate for such shorter period as he may deem proper, informing the owners of his reasons for so doing.

Sec. 6. It is most desirable that an Inspector should complete the inspection of a vessel in every detail when he has commenced it; and, if possible, arrangements should always be made with the owners to secure this. Delays and inconveniencies may be prevented, if notice is given by owners when the vessel is ready for inspection, and her equipment in place on board.

Sec. 7. Every person who knowingly and wilfully makes or assists in making, or procures to be made, a false or fraudulent certificate with respect to any steamboat, or who forges or assists in forging, or procures to be forged, fraudulently alters or assists in fraudulently altering any certificate required by the Steamboat Inspection Act, or any words or figures in any such certificate or any signatures thereto, is guilty of a misdemeanour.

Sec. 8. A certificate for twelve months shall not be granted, whenever the Inspector has any doubts whatever, as to the efficiency of any part of the vessel or equipment for such period.

Sec. 9. Inspectors shall determine whether hulls of steamers are in good condition and fit for the service for which they are intended; and shall examine the hulls of passenger steamers outside and inside, once a year if possible, or oftener, as deemed advisable by the Inspector with due consideration of the owner, and owners at all times so as to avoid repeated expenses should notify Inspectors when their vessels are being docked, or undergoing any repair.

Sec. 10. New steamboats shall be inspected before painting or completion, but any such inspection is not to interfere with the complete inspection of hull and equipment, after completion, the object being to form an opinion of the workmanship, material and construction.

Sec. 11. When a steamboat which has been inspected for a passenger certificate, is not in every respect in good condition, although the defects may not be sufficient to warrant the withholding the certificate, and although the vessel may be practically fit for the service intended, the Inspector should, when he grants the certificate, forward to the Chairman aforesaid a report showing the nature of the defects in question.

Sec. 12. For examining the internal parts of a steamboat, the Inspector shall, if he considers it necessary, have parts of the ceiling removed, in order that he may ascertain the condition of the hull, frames, floors, &c., particularly in the engine room and boiler space, and also in the coal bunkers, they being empty.

Sec. 13. The date of the last inspection shall be entered in an office inspection book with particulars of the condition of the hull at that time, with approximate sketches of the midship section, showing the form, build, and dimensions of the vessel, and parts, sufficiently to judge of her shape and strength. Any question or doubt as to the strength of the vessel for the route on which she is placed, should be referred to the Chairman aforesaid.

Sec. 14. The height of the coamings around all openings in main deck, and the means provided for securely protecting or fastening down all skylights, bunker openings, &c., are important items to be noticed by the Inspector in steamboats subject to heavy seas. All gangways and openings, on, or below weather deck, should be fitted with covers in such a manner that they can be quickly and efficiently secured. Hatch covers should be provided with means for effectually securing them down. Grating and hatch covers must be kept and secured in a suitable place, at all times accessible, and near to the openings for which they are intended.

Sec. 15. All boats should be hung on the davits and kept ready for service at any moment. Inspectors should see that in all boats the full complement of oars is provided, that each boat has two plugs to each plug hole, attached with lanyards or chains, and one set and a half of thole pins or crutches attached to the boat by sound lanyards, a bailer, a rudder and tiller or yoke and yoke lines; a painter of sufficient length and a boat-hook. The rudder and bailer shall be attached to the boats by sufficient long lanyards and ready for use; means for speedily detaching the boats from the lower blocks of the davit tackles should be insisted upon. An ordinary fixed hook in the lower block shipped into a fixed eye in the boat should not be allowed.

Sec. 16. Inspectors should see that the davits are strong enough, that they are so spaced that the boat can be swung out without unnecessary labour; that the boat chocks can be expeditiously removed, and that the boats will not foul the ship's sides when lowering, when the ship has no list. The whole of the tackling, including the davits, falls, blocks, eye-bolts and rings, &c., shall be of sufficient strength to lower the boat with its full equipment on board. The davit tackle falls must be long enough to lower the boat into the water, when the vessel is light. Life lines shall be fitted to the davits long enough to reach the water when the vessel is light, and allowance made for the extreme roll of the vessel.

Sec. 17. Inspectors will refuse a certificate in cases in which these instructions are not carried out, but it is to be left to the owners of steamboats to furnish such methods as they please for lowering boats so long as the intention of the Act is complied with. Any unusual or doubtful method of lowering boats must be submitted to the Board of Steamboat Inspection for its consideration and approval before it is passed. All boats should be lowered into the water at every inspection.

Sec. 18. Life-buoys with lines attached should be secured by a toggle or becket, or any other similar method, so that they may be quickly released. They must not be lashed or seized to the rail or any other part of the vessel, but must be kept so as to be ready for use at a moment's notice in case of emergency. Life-buoys and jackets shall be carefully examined when inspecting the vessel to see that the materials of which they are composed have not become sodden and that the lines attached to them are of sufficient length, serviceable and in good order.

Masts and Sails and Gangboards.

Sec. 19. "The Steamboat Inspection Act" empowers the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to require steamships above sixty tons registered tonnage, carrying passengers on the sea-coasts of the Dominion or on any, or on all the waters of the Dominion, with certain exceptions, to be provided with a mast or masts and sail or sails, suitable for such steamboat; and to prescribe the dimensions of such mast or masts, and sail or sails respectively.

Sec. 20. Inspectors of hulls when inspecting passenger steamboats employed on the sea-coast, or on the great lakes of the Dominion, are to see that they are fitted with sufficient sail power to enable them to steer in the event of their machinery becoming disabled. All such sails must be examined by the Inspector, who must be assured of their efficiency, as also with that of the standing and running gear at every inspection, and in any case of doubt to apply to the Chairman.

Sec. 21. Inspectors shall see that suitable and safe gangboards are provided with means for securing them safely at both ends.

Sec. 22. In the first inspection of a steamboat employed on the seacoast or on the great lakes of the Dominion, whether built of iron or wood, the Inspector shall require the compasses to be properly adjusted, or verified by a competent person, selected by the owner, whereupon such competent person shall grant a certificate to the owner to the effect that the compasses of the ship are properly adjusted, and a table of errors shall be furnished and handed by the owners to the Inspector before he gives the certificate of inspection.

Sec. 23. Inspectors of hulls shall see that the deck pumps, whether for fire or bilge purposes, are properly placed, sufficient in number, and that provision is made to get at the end of the suction pipes in case of fouling. No deck pump shall be passed which requires charging by hand before taking suction. When such is found to be the case, the Inspector shall insist upon proper provision being made to make the pump efficient at all times. Fire hose should be stretched to their length and thoroughly examined and tried under pressure from the pumps at least once a year, and at any other time the Inspector may deem necessary. The hose should be connected with the pumps for immediate use. Also, that efficient means are provided for relieving the bilges of water, as required by Section 25-61 Vict. Chap. 46; which means are to be noted in the office inspection book.

Sec. 24. A spare tiller shall be provided, with relieving tackles, to be kept near the after-steering gear, ready for immediate use on sea-going steamers and steamers on the great lakes. The steering gear shall be inspected and thoroughly examined at least once a year.

Sec. 25. Inspectors of hulls must be careful to see that every seagoing steamer, subject to the Act, and every steamer employed on the great lakes, is provided with suitable chain cables, anchors and ground tackle, in good condition sufficient for the service in which the vessel is employed, and so placed as to be handled in the most expeditious manner, and that the cable is removed from the lockers at least once in a year and cleaned, if necessary, and the pins knocked out of the shackles.

Sec. 26. (a.) Inspectors of hulls shall keep an office register book for new steamers in which they shall enter particulars of their registration, official number, name, port of registry, dimensions, tonnage, ownership, and names of masters; also a general description of build, showing a sketch of the midship section, giving sizes of frames, planking, deck beams, clamps, knees, covering boards and fastenings, as the case may be, sufficient to judge of the vessel and the fitness for the route on which it is to be placed. A description of the upper works on passenger steamers shall also be given stating how the same are secured to the hull, and what provision is made against rolling in a heavy sea.

(c.) The fitness of the boats and other equipments for saving life, whether sufficient for the number of passengers the steamer is allowed to carry, together with the crew on the route she is to be placed, shall also be given in the said particulars. A copy of these particulars in full made out neatly on foolscap paper shall be sent to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection and shall be filed for reference in the office for the information of the Department of Marine.

Sec. 27. (a.) Each Inspector of hulls will also keep an office docking book, in which he shall enter the date of last docking of each steamer inspected by him, with particulars of repairs made upon her; also memoranda of her last inspection, as made by him; the condition in which he then found the hull and equipment; with copy of any correspondence between the owner and master, relating to any repairs, fittings, equipment or other things which may require proof, in the event of their not having been complied with.

(b.) Inspectors of hulls shall not consider their duty as finished, in respect to a steamboat for which they have granted a certificate for a year or any shorter period, but are expected by the Department to have supervision over all steamboats subject to the Act, within, or coming within their district. Should any infractions of the law on the part of an owner or master of steamboats come to the knowledge of an Inspector, whereby the safety of life or property is endangered, it will be his duty at once to cause steps to prevent such occurrence by reporting the case to the Department of Marine, with the grounds of the complaint.

Passengers.

Sec. 28. (a.) The number of passengers allowed on passenger steamers may be found, by multiplying the length, by the breadth of the vessel at the water line, (in feet) and dividing the product by a factor of safety, according to the class of vessel, thus:—

|---|---|
| For ocean steamers the factor shall be..... | 10 |
| For ocean coasting steamers ..... | 10 |
| For steamers navigating in the great lakes | 9 |
| For lake coasting, harbour, river, ferry and excursion steamers ..... | 6 |

(b.) No deviation shall be made from this regulation unless with the consent of the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection and with the approval of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

(c.) In excursion steamers carrying passengers within the hold of the vessel, the limit shall be at the discretion of the Inspector, but in no case shall exceed as many as can find accommodation.

(d.) These factors may be increased to a further limit, if from age or unfitness, the vessel is not considered safe for the carriage of so many passengers.

(e.) Where for any reason false sides are added to the hull of a steamer, the breadth at water line on such steamer for estimating the number of passengers; if in the opinion of the inspector with approval of the Chairman, the additional breadth of one false side at water line may be added to the original breadth, or whatever portion of same they may deem advisable.

PART VIII.

Rules and Regulations

RESPECTING THE INSPECTION OF BOATS, LIFE-PRESERVERS AND OTHER LIFE-SAVING APPLIANCES, TO BE CARRIED ON STEAMBOATS OR OTHER VESSELS, UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF THE STEAMBOAT INSPECTION ACT AND AMENDMENTS THERETO.

Boats for Great Lakes and Other Inland Waters.

Sec. 1. The following provisions shall be observed with respect to boats to be carried on steamboats:—

(a.) No steamboat with passengers on board shall proceed to sea from any port or place in Canada, or depart from any port or place, or ply on any of the Lakes St. John, Memphremagog, Ontario, Erie, Huron or Georgian Bay, Simcoe, Superior, or Lake of the Woods, or on the River St. Lawrence, or on the Rivers Ottawa or St. John, or any lake or river in Manitoba, British Columbia, or the North-west Territories, or the District of Keewatin, except as hereinafter provided;—

(b.) Unless there are on board thereof, or attached to such steamboat, good, suitable, sufficient and properly equipped boats in good condition, each being not less than seventeen feet length over all, five feet breadth of beam, and one foot nine inches inside depth, with sufficient oars not less than four, and other necessary tackle;

Which boats shall be in the following proportion to the registered tonnage of such steamboat, that is to say:—

At least one boat for every steamboat of fifty tons and less;

At least two boats for every steamboat over fifty tons, but less than (300) three hundred tons;

At least three boats for every steamboat of three hundred tons and upwards; and if such steamboat is twenty five tons or less registered tonnage, she shall carry one good boat of the size and description, and equipped in the manner approved of in each case by the Inspector; the least dimensions permissible, to be fourteen feet long, four feet breadth of beam, and eighteen inches depth inside.

Steamboats of three hundred tons registered tonnage, and upwards, plying on the lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron, Superior, Georgian Bay, or River St. Lawrence below Isle Verte, or similar waters; the dimensions of boats to be not less than twenty-two feet length over all, six feet breadth of beam, by two feet six inches inside depth, and having at least six oars and other necessary tackle.

(c.) If such steamboat is of the registered tonnage of one hundred tons, or upwards to two hundred tons, unless in addition to the boats hereinbefore required, there is on board thereof or attached thereto :—

One good and sufficient life-boat, which life-boat may be considered of sufficient capacity if made of the following dimensions: length over all, eighteen feet, breadth of beam outside five feet, two inches, depth from top of keel to top of gunwale at bottom of rowlock, two feet two inches, or—

(d.) If such steamboat is over the registered tonnage of two hundred tons or upwards to three hundred tons, one good and sufficient life-boat which life-boat may be considered of sufficient capacity if made of the following dimensions; length over all twenty-two feet, breadth of beam outside six feet, depth from top of keel to top of gunwale at bottom of rowlocks, two feet six inches. Or, two good and sufficient life boats of eighteen feet length, as aforesaid described.

(e.) If such steamboat is over the registered tonnage of three hundred tons or upwards to six hundred tons, two good and sufficient life boats of twenty-two feet as aforesaid mentioned, and for every three hundred tons upwards, an additional twenty-two foot life-boat to be added.

Sec. 2. Every life-boat shall be made of suitable metal, in thickness not less than No. 18 wire gauge, or of wood, and built whaleboat form, with a shear of about $\frac{3}{4}$ inch to 1 foot length from midships, rising equally to the stem and stern, with sufficient air-tight compartments in the ends and sides made of suitable metal or of wood, and so constructed as to be air-tight and serviceable, the air-tight compartments to have a capacity in cubic feet of one-tenth the capacity of the life-boat, which is found by multiplying the length and breadth outside, and the depth inside from bottom of rowlocks, or top of gunwale in feet, and by ·6, the result equals the cubic feet required in the inside and outside compartments, about one-half of which should be on the outside; and dividing by 10, gives the number of persons the life-boat shall be deemed fit to carry. Solid cork may be used instead of air-tight compartments on the outside, 1·25 cubic feet of cork being considered equal to 1 cubic foot of air case.

(a.) Zinc shall not be used in the construction of a life-boat or of her air-tight compartments, which must be of a metal approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection, or by the Chairman.

(b.) The air-tight compartments must be so distributed as to give the boat good buoyancy and stability; whether a part of the air-tight buoyancy apparatus should be under the thwarts, or whether it should be in the ends and along the sides, will be, so long as an efficient life-boat is obtained, left to the opinion of the maker or owner, but the Inspector must be satisfied that the life-boat is efficient.

(c.) Spaces filled with or containing any material are not to be deemed air spaces.

(d.) A square stern boat is not to be passed as a life-boat and all boats intended for use of life saving purpose on steamboats employed on the waters specified in sub. sec. (b.) section 1, shall be built whale-boat fashion.

(e.) Suitable life-lines with sustaining buoys shall be securely attached to the sides or gunwales of the life-boats.

Sec. 3. The life-boats and other boats intended for life saving purposes must be provided with the full complement of oars, one for each rowlock, and two spare oars, all securely lashed inside ready for use.

(a.) With two plugs for each plug hole, attached with lanyards or chains, and one and one-half sets of thole pins or crutches attached to the boat by lanyards and ready to slip in place.

(b.) With a rudder and tiller, or yoke and yoke lines, a painter of sufficient length to reach from the davits to the boat in the water and to tow her, a bailer, a hatchet in each end of boat, and a boat-hook, each attached to the boat with a good sound lanyard.

(c.) Means for detaching quickly the boats from the lower blocks of the davits must be provided, an ordinary fixed hook in the lower block shall not be allowed, the boat's davits must be strong enough and so spaced that the boat can be swung out readily, so that the boat's chocks can be readily removed, and that the boat will not foul the ship's sides in lowering when the ship has no list, and that the whole of the tackling, davits, falls, blocks, eye-bolts, and apparatus are of sufficient strength to lower the boat in safety with its full complement of crew and equipments; the boat's falls are to be long enough to lower the boat into the water with safety, when the vessel is light.

Sec. 4. Every boat shall be kept in good condition, water-tight, with suitable covers and ready for immediate use; when wood is used as fuel for heating the boilers of high-pressure (non-condensing) steamboats, the covers of such boats shall be made of wood covered with zinc; and every boat shall have the name of the steamboat to which it belongs, and the name of her port of registry, legibly painted on her bows and stern.

Sec. 5. Every such steamboat shall be provided with sufficient means for lowering from on board safely and expeditiously the boats hereinbefore required to be on board of or attached to such steamboat; and masters of steamboats shall detail their crews and exercise them in lowering and handling the said boats, and life-boats at least once a week, alternately.

Sec. 6. Every such boat shall be hung in separate davits, with lowering apparatus complete and ready for instant lowering; provided, that in any case where any such steamboat carries two life-boats, one of the other boats may be carried on the hurricane deck without davits.

Sec. 7. Steamboats employed in the carriage of freight on the great lakes or similar waters, shall be required to have on board or attached to such steamboat, two boats as prescribed in sub-sec. (b), sec. 1, and if required one of those boats may be square sterned; and if carrying a limited number of passengers not exceeding in number twenty-five, shall be required to have in addition, one life boat as described in sub-sections c, d, and e, sec. 1.

Sec. 8. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries may authorize the use in individual, specified cases, of a greater or less number of boats, or of different dimensions from those hereinbefore specified, and upon such authorization being granted, it shall be sufficient for any such steamboat to carry and be provided with boats of the dimensions specified in such authorization.

Sec. 9. Steamboats confined to the navigation of the River St. John above Fredericton, the waters in the district of Muskoka, the County of Victoria, and the County of Peterborough, in the Province of Ontario, and the waters of the Ottawa River and its tributaries above the City of Ottawa, including Rideau Canal, or the lakes or rivers not exceeding one mile in width at any point on the route of such steamboat, and which are employed in the carriage of passengers, shall carry at least one good boat as prescribed in section 1 (b) provided with four oars, and if such steamboat is twenty-five tons or less registered tonnage, the least dimensions of boat to be not less than forty cubic feet capacity.

Sec. 10. Every steamboat employed in the carriage of passengers, and used only in the navigation of rivers or inland waters, other than the rivers and inland waters hereinbefore provided for, shall, if such steamboat exceeds one hundred and fifty tons registered tonnage, carry at least two good boats as prescribed in section 1 (b), provided with four oars each; and if such steamboat does not exceed one hundred and fifty tons and is not less than twenty-five tons registered tonnage, she shall not be required to carry more than one such boat; and if such steamboat is less than twenty-five tons registered tonnage, she shall carry one good boat of the size and description, and equipped in the manner approved of in each case by the Inspector.

Sec. 11. Every steamboat not employed in the carriage of passengers, and every steamboat to which the foregoing provisions of the preceding sections do not apply, shall at all times, when the crew thereof is on board, be provided with and have on board or attached to such steamboat in some convenient place, a good, suitable and sufficient boat, or good, suitable and sufficient boats, in good condition and properly equipped, and provided with oars in sufficient number and other necessary tackle, and of sufficient capacity to carry all the crew of such steamboat, and with sufficient means for lowering such boat or boats from on board safely and expeditiously; and freight, canal and tug steamers, less than fifty gross tons may be equipped with boats, or rafts when boats cannot be utilized, as in the opinion of the Inspector may be necessary in case of disaster, to secure the safety of all on board.

Sec. 12. The carrying capacity in the number of persons for boats shall be determined by multiplying the length over all by the breadth outside, and by the depth inside from top of keel to gunwale in feet, and by ·6, and divide by eight, the quotient being the number of persons allowed to each boat. If the oars are pulled in rowlocks, the bottom of the rowlock is to be considered the gunwale of the boat for ascertaining her depth.

(a.) In carrying these instructions into effect, Inspectors are to be careful not to interfere unnecessarily with boats supplied previous to 1904 in accordance with the rules of 1897, but in the case of new boats coming under survey for the first time, as well as in all cases in which the fittings, or the boats require renewal, the rules contained in these instructions are to be strictly adhered to. This also applies to the other equipments required on board the steamboat.

Life-Rafts and Life-Buoys.

Sec. 13. Life-rafts must be approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection before the number of persons they may be allowed to carry can be determined, provided that not less than three cubic feet of strong serviceable inclosed air-tight compartments, constructed so that water cannot find its way into them, shall be the amount of air space to each person carried on the raft.

Sec. 14. Approved buoyant apparatus must not require to be inflated before use; shall be of approved construction, and marked in such a way as to plainly indicate the number of adult persons it can carry.

The buoyancy of such apparatus for the number of persons to be carried may be ascertained by dividing the number of pounds of iron it is capable of supporting in fresh water by 32.

Sec. 15. An approved life-buoy may be built of solid cork capable of floating in the water for at least 24 hours with 32 pounds of iron suspended from it; or—

(a.) A strong life-buoy of any other approved pattern and material, provided that it is capable of floating in the water for at least 24 hours with 32 pounds of iron suspended from it, and provided that it is not stuffed with rushes, cork shavings or other shavings, or loose granulated cork or other loose material, and does not require inflation before use. There must not be a less number than two life-buoys on each passenger steamboat carrying by law two boats, with good line of suitable length attached to each buoy and kept at all times ready for instant use.

(b.) The air cases for life-rafts are not to exceed the length approved by the Board (four feet), with hooked, hammered and soldered joints, or riveted, and if made of iron to be galvanized, to be substantially inclosed with wood to be close jointed.

The covering of the air cases in boats should be fastened with brass screws so they can be readily taken off to examine the air cases.

Collapsible boats may be used if approved by an Inspector, with the consent of the Chairman.

Sec. 16. No new pattern of or material in life-boats, life-rafts or life-buoys is to be passed unless approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection.

Life-Preservers.

Sec. 17. Every steamboat not exempt from the provisions of The Steamboat Inspection Act, shall before proceeding to sea from any port or place in Canada, or to ply on any of the waters of Canada, be provided with and carry on board thereof on every such voyage, one life preserver (life belt) for each person on board including the crew.

Sec. 18. Each of such life-preservers (life-belts) shall be capable of floating in fresh water for 24 hours with 15 pounds of iron suspended from it. It shall be cut out at least 2 inches under the arm pits, properly rounded, and fitted so as to remain securely in its place when put on, with shoulder straps, and waist belt, of cotton line or other material, approved by the Inspector. When any other material than solid cork is used for buoyancy it must first be specially approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection, and the life-preservers (life-belts) shall at all times be kept in convenient and accessible places in the state rooms or on the deck of such steamboat, under cover and in readiness for immediate use, the places where kept to be marked so that their position may be known to those for whom they are intended.

Sec. 19. A cork jacket with shoulder straps and waist lines for fastening the same around the body, or such other description of life-preservers as the Governor in Council may approve, shall be the form of life-preserver to be used on steamboats.

Passenger Barges, Towed.

Sec. 20. Any barge, boat, bateau, scow, or undecked vessel having passengers on board, towed by a steamboat, before being granted a certificate of inspection, must be equipped with a boat or boats, life-preservers, life-buoys, and life-rafts, or any or all of the equipment named in this section in addition to the equipment named in The Steamboat Inspection Act; to the satisfaction of the Steamboat Inspector who inspects her, who shall require her to be equipped with suitable life-saving equipment for the waters on which she is to ply, as well as suitable private conveniences or closets for the use of the passengers.

BOATS AND LIFE-SAVING APPLIANCES TO BE CARRIED ON STEAMSHIPS NAVIGATING THE OCEAN.

Division (A)—Class 1.

Rules for sea-going Steamships having a certificate to carry Passengers.

Sec. 21. (a.) Ships of Division (A) Class 1, shall carry boats placed under davits, fit and ready for use, and having proper appliances for getting them into the water, in number and capacity as prescribed by the Table in these Rules (see section 37); such boats shall be equipped in the manner required by, and shall be of the description defined in, the General Rules appended hereto.

(b) Masters or owners of ships of this class claiming to carry fewer boats under davits than are given in the table must declare before the collector or other officers of Customs, at the time of clearance, that the boats actually placed under davits are sufficient to accommodate all persons on board, allowing 10 (ten) cubic feet of boat capacity for each adult person, or "statute adult."

(c) Not less than half the number of boats placed under davits, having at least half the cubic capacity required by the tables shall be boats of section (a), or section (b). The remaining boats may also be of such description, or may, in the option of the shipowner, conform to section (c), or section (d), provided that not more than two boats shall be of section (d).

(d.) If the boats placed under davits in accordance with the table do not furnish sufficient accommodation for all persons on board, then additional wood, metal, collapsible or other boats of approved description (whether placed under davits or otherwise), or approved life-rafts, shall be carried. One of these boats may be a steam launch; but in that case the space occupied by the engines and boilers is not to be included in the estimated cubic capacity of the boat.

Subject to the provisions contained in paragraph (f) of these rules, such additional boats or rafts shall be of at least such carrying capacity that they and the boats required to be placed under davits by the table provide together in the aggregate, in vessels of 5,000 tons gross and upwards, three-fourths, and in vessels of less than 5,000 tons gross, one-half, more than minimum cubic contents required by column 3 of that table. For this purpose 3 cubic feet of air case in the life-raft is to be eslimated as 10 cubic feet of internal capacity. Provided always that the rafts will accommodate all the persons for which they are to be certified under the rules, and also have 3 cubic feet of air case for each person.

All such additional boats or rafts shall be placed as conveniently for being available as the ship's arrangements admit of, having regard to the avoidance of undue encumbrance of the ship's deck, and to the safety of the ship for her voyage.

(e.) In addition to the life-saving appliances before mentioned, ships of this Class shall carry not less than one approved life-buoy for every boat placed under davits. They shall also carry approved life-belts or other similar approved articles of equal buoyancy suitable for being worn on the person, so that there may be at least one for each person on board the ship.

(f.) Provided nevertheless that no ship of this class shall be required to carry more boats or rafts than will furnish sufficient accommodation for all persons on board.

Division (B).—Class 1.

Rules for Sea-going or Coasting Steam Ships having Passenger Certificates authorizing them to carry Passengers within certain specified Limits.

Sec. 22. (a.) Ships of this class shall, according to their tonnage, carry boats placed under davits, as required by the Table (Section 37).

(b.) Masters or owners of ships of this class claiming to carry fewer boats under davits than are given in the Table must declare before the collector or other officer of Customs that the boats actually placed under davits are sufficient to accommodate all persons on board, allowing 10 (ten) cubic feet of boat capacity for each adult person, or "statute adult." Not less than half the number of boats placed under davits, having at least half the cubic capacity required by the Tables, shall be of boats of Section (A) or Section (B). The remaining boats may also be of such description, or may, in the option of the shipowners, conform to Section (C) or Section (D), provided that not more than two boats shall be of Section (D).

(c). If the boats placed under davits in accordance with the above requirements do not furnish sufficient accommodation for all persons on board, then additional wood, metal, collapsible, or other boats of approved description (whether placed under davits or otherwise), or approved life-rafts, or approved buoyant deck seats, or other approved buoyant deck fittings, shall be carried of at least such cubical capacity that they and the boats required to be placed under davits by the Table provide together in the aggregate one-half more than the minimum cubic contents provided by column 3 of the Table. For this purpose 3 cubic feet of air case in the life-raft is to be estimated as 10 cubic feet of internal capacity; provided always that the rafts will accommodate the persons for which they are certified under the Rules, and also have 3 cubic feet of air case for each person.

(d.) Ships of this Class shall also carry approved life-belts or other similar approved articles of equal buoyancy suitable for being worn on the person, so that there may be at least one for each person on board the ship.

(e.) At least one approved life-buoy shall also be provided for each boat of wood or metal carried by the ship, but in no case shall less than six approved life-buoys be provided.

(f.) Provided nevertheless that no ship of this class shall be required to carry more boats, rafts, and other buoyant deck fittings than will furnish sufficient accommodation for all persons on board.

Division (A).—Class 2.

Rules for Foreign Sea-going or Coasting Steam Ships not certified to carry Passengers.

Sec. 23. (a.) Ships of this Class shall carry, on each side at least so many and such boats of wood or metal placed under davits (of which one on one side shall be a boat of Section (A), or Section (B), and on the other side shall be a boat of Section (A), or Section (B), or Section (C),) that the boats on each side of the ship shall be sufficient to accommodate all persons on board.

(b.) They shall carry approved life-belts, so that there may be one for each person carried on board the ship.

(c.) They shall carry not less than four approved life-buoys.

In the case of small steam ships a discretion may be exercised by the Inspector to modify the requirements as to boats with consent of the Chairman.

Division (B).—Class 2.

Steam Fish Carriers, Tug Boats, and Steam Lighters which proceed to Sea.

Sec. 24. (a.) Ships of this Class shall carry one boat of Sections (A), (B), or (C), so fitted that it can be readily put out on either side of the ship, and amply sufficient to carry all the persons on board.

(b.) They shall carry two approved life-buoys.

(c.) They shall carry life-belts, so that there may be one for each person on board the ship.

GENERAL RULES.

Sec. 25. (1.) All boats shall be constructed and properly equipped as provided by these Rules, and all boats and other life-saving appliances are to be kept ready for use to the satisfaction of the Inspector. Internal buoyancy apparatus may be constructed of wood, or of copper or yellow metal, of not less than 18 oz. to the superficial foot or of other durable material.

Section (A)—A boat of this section shall be a life-boat, of whale-boat form, properly constructed of wood or metal, having for every 10 cubic feet of her capacity, computed as in Rule (2), at least 1 cubic foot of strong and serviceable inclosed air-tight compartments, so constructed that water cannot find its way into them, In the case of metal boats an addition will have to be made to the cubic capacity of the air-tight compartments, so as to give them buoyancy equal to that of the wooden boat.

Section (B).—A boat of this section shall be a life-boat of whale-boat form, properly constructed of wood or metal, having inside and outside buoyancy apparatus together equal in efficiency to the buoyancy apparatus provided for a boat of Section (A). At least one-half of the buoyancy apparatus must be attached to the outside of the boat.

Section (C).—A boat of this section shall be a life-boat properly constructed of wood or metal, having some buoyancy apparatus attached to the inside and (or) outside of the boat equal in efficiency to one-half of the buoyancy apparatus provided for a boat of section (A) or section (B). At least one-half of the buoyancy apparatus must be attached to the outside of the boat.

Section (D).—A boat of this section shall be a properly constructed boat of wood or metal.

Section (E).—A boat of this section shall be a boat of approved construction, form and material, and may be collapsible.

Sec. 26. (2.) The cubic capacity of a boat shall be deemed to be her cubic capacity, ascertained (as in measuring ships for tonnage capacity) by Stirling's rule; but as the application of that rule entails much labour, the following simple plan, which is approximately accurate, may be adopted for general purposes, and when no question requiring absolute correct adjustment is raised:—

Measure the length and breadth outside and the depth inside. Multiply them together and by ·6; the product is the capacity of the boat in cubic feet. Thus a boat 28 ft. long, 8 ft. 6 in. broad, and 3 ft. 6 in. deep, will be regarded as having a capacity of $28 \times 8{\cdot}5 \times 3{\cdot}5 \times {\cdot}6 = 499\ 8$, or 500 cubic feet. If the oars are pulled in rowlocks, the bottom of the rowlock is to be considered the gunwale of the boa for ascertaining her depth.

Sec. 27. (3.) The number of persons a boat of section (A.) shall be deemed fit to carry shall be the number of cubic feet ascertained as in rule (2) divided by 10.

The number of persons a boat of section (B), section (C), section (D), or section (E), shall be deemed fit to carry shall be the number of cubic feet ascertained as in rule (2) divided by 8. The space in the boat shall be sufficient for the seating of the persons carried in it, and for the proper use of the oars.

Sec. 28. (4.) Appliances for getting a boat into the water must fulfil the following conditions:—Means are to be provided for speedily, but not necessarily simultaneously or automatically, detaching the boats from the lower blocks of the davit tackles; the boats placed under davits are to be attached to the davit tackles and kept ready for service; the davits are to be strong enough and so spaced that the boats can be swung out with facility; the points of attachment of the boats to the davits are to be sufficiently away from the ends of the boats to ensure their being easily swung clear of the davits; the boat's chocks are to be such as can be expeditiously removed; the davits, falls, blocks, eyebolts, rings, and the whole of the tackling are to be of sufficient strength; the boat's falls are to be long enough to lower the boat into the water with safety when the vessel is light. The life-lines shall be fitted to the davits, and be long enough to reach the water when the vessel is light; and hooks are not to be attached to the lower tackle blocks.

Sec. 29. (5.) In order to be properly equipped each boat shall be provided as follows:—

(a.) With the full single-banked complement of oars, and two spare oars.

(b.) With two plugs for each plug-hole, attached with lanyards or chains, and one set and a half of thole pins or crutches, attached to the boat by sound lanyards.

(c.) With a sea-anchor, a bailer, a rudder and a tiller, or yoke and yoke lines, a painter of sufficient length, and a boat-hook. The rudder and bailer to be attached to the boat by sufficiently long lanyards, and kept ready for use. In boats where there may be a difficulty in fitting a rudder a steering oar may be provided instead.

(d.) A vessel to be kept filled with fresh water shall be provided for each boat.

(e.) Life-rafts shall be fully provided with a suitable approved equipment.

Sec. 30. (6.) In order to be properly equipped, each boat of sections (A) and (B), in addition to being provided with all the requisites laid down in rule (5), shall be equipped as follows, but not more than four boats in any one ship require to have this outfit, and where boats of sections (A) or (B) are carried in lieu of boats of sections (C) or (D), this additional outfit need not be insisted on:—

(a.) With two hatchets or tomahawks, one to be kept in each end of the boat, and to be attached to the boat by a lanyard.

(b.) With a mast or masts, and with at least one good sail, and proper gear for each.

(c.) With a line beckett d round the outside of the boat and securely made fast.

(d.) With an efficient compass.

(e.) With one gallon of vegetable or animal oil, and a vessel of an approval pattern, for distributing it in the water in rough weather.

(f.) With a lantern trimmed, with oil in its receiver sufficient to burn eight hours.

Sec. 31. (7.) The number of persons that any approved life-raft for use at sea shall be deemed to be capable of carrying shall be determined with reference to each separate pattern approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection; provided always, that for every person so carried there shall be at least three cubic feet of strong and serviceable inclosed air-tight compartments, constructed so that water cannot find its way into them. Any approved life-raft of other construction may be used, provided that it has equivalent buoyancy to that hereinbefore described. Every such approved life-raft shall be marked in such a way as to plainly indicate the number of adult persons it can carry.

Sec. 32. (8.) Approved buoyant apparatus shall be deemed sufficient, so far as buoyancy is concerned, for a number of persons, to be ascertained by dividing the number of pounds of iron which it is capable of supporting in fresh water by 32. Such buoyant apparatus shall not require to be inflated before use, shall be of approved construction, and marked in such a way as plainly to indicate the number of persons for whom it is sufficient.

Sec. 33. (9.) An approved life-belt shall mean a belt which does not require to be inflated before use, and which is capable at least of floating in the water for 24 hours with 15 lbs. of iron suspended from it. Life-belts are to be cut out 2 inches under the armpits, and fitted so as to remain securely in their place when put on.

Sec. 34. (10.) An approved life-buoy shall mean either—

(a.) A life-buoy built of solid cork, capable of floating in the water for at least 24 hours with 32 lbs. of iron suspended from it; or

(b.) A strong life-buoy of any other approved pattern or material, provided that it is capable of floating in the water for at least 24 hours with 32 lbs. of iron suspended from it, and provided also that it is not stuffed with rushes, cork shavings, or other shavings, or loose granulated cork, or other loose material, and does not require inflation before us.

All life-buoys shall be fitted with beckets securely seized, and not less than two of them shall be fitted with life-lines 15 fathoms in length.

Sec. 35. (11.) All life-buoys and life-belts shall be so placed as to be readily accessible to all persons on board, and so that their position may be known to those for whom they are intended.

Sec. 36. (12.) When ships of any class are divided into efficient water-tight compartments to the satisfaction of the Steamboat Inspector with approval of Chairman, they shall only be required to carry additional boats, rafts, and buoyant apparatus of one-half of the capacity required by these Rules, but the exemption shall not extend to life-jackets or similar approved articles of equal buoyancy suitable to be worn on the person.

NOTE.—Where in ships already fitted the required cubic contents of boats placed under davits is provided, although by a smaller number of boats than the minimum required by this table, such ships shall be regarded as complying with the rules as to boats to be carried under davits.

In the case of vessels under 200 tons gross tonnage the capacity of any boat to be supplied should not be less than 125 cubic feet. If, however, in any case this rule be found to be impracticable, a discretion may then be exercised by the Inspector, with approval of Chairman.

In cases where a small vessel is unable to carry more than one boat, a discretion may be exercised by the Inspector, with approval of Chairman, but whenever one boat only is carried there must be proper provision to enable it to be placed readily in the water on either side of the ship.

INSTRUCTIONS AS TO INTERPRETATION OF RULES RESPECTING LIFE-SAVING APPLIANCES.

Sec. 38. As regards the boats of Sections A, B, C and D, Section 25, the Inspector will see that the requirements of the rules are observed, and that the capacity of the boats, and the number of persons they are fit to carry, are ascertained by Rules 2 and 3, Sections 26 and 27. In measuring boats the length and breadth are to be regarded as the extreme dimensions measured to the outside of the plank. The number of persons for which a boat is to be passed is, however, subject to the further condition that the space in the boat shall be sufficient for the seating of them all, and the proper use of the oars. That this requirement is fulfilled must be ascertained by actual experiment in all cases before a declaration is granted, unless one or more boats in a ship are of the same pattern, when one only of such boats needs be so tested. Life-boats (except those of Section C) should be built whale-boat fashion, both ends alike. In ships which have been fitted with boats previous to the rules coming into force, square-sterned boats need not be condemned if fitted with the required amount of buoyancy, but all life-boats of Sections A and B subsequently supplied or supplied to new ships must be built whale-boat fashion. All collapsible boats, and all boats whether collapsible or not, if constructed of any material other than wood or metal, must be in accordance with a pattern approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection before they are passed as a portion of the life-saving appliances required by the rules.

Sec. 39. All boats required by the rules to be placed under davits are to be kept fit and ready for use, and when they are swung inboard and resting on the chocks, the chocks are to be so constructed that the boat can be at once swung outboard without requiring to be lifted by the tackles—i.e., it should not be necessary to do more than take the weight of the boat

The manner in which the additional boats not requiring to be placed under davits are to be stowed will vary in different ships, but they must be stowed to the satisfaction of the Inspectors, so as to be as readily available for use as is practicable, having due consideration to the circumstances mentioned in the rules.

Sec. 40. The equipments of all boats are provided for in the rules, and Inspectors are to see that the requirements are carefully complied with. The painters for boats are not to be less than 20 fathoms in length.

When the rules require a life-boat of Section C to be carried, and owners choose to provide a boat of Section A or Section B, the additional equipment required by general Rule 6 for boats of Section A and Section B need not be insisted on.

In some of the collapsible boats it is difficult to fit a rudder; in this case a steering oar properly fitted may be passed instead.

The buoyancy of life-boats of Section B must be partly inside and partly outside the boat, and a boat in which it is wholly inside or wholly outside should not be passed as a boat of Section B.

In the case of life-boats of Section C, one half the buoyancy must be outside the boat; the remainder may be either inside or outside, or partly inside and partly outside.

The inside buoyancy for boats of Sections A. B. and C. must consist of strong and serviceable inclosed air-tight compartments, such that water cannot find its way into them.

The outside buoyancy for boats of Section B must consist of solid cork covered with canvas, and painted and attached to the outer skin of the boat to the satisfaction of the Inspectors, both as regards its position and also as regards its attachment. No other material is to be used unless expressly sanctioned by the Steamboat Inspection. The outside buoyancy must be equal to at least half the buoyancy required for boats of Section A, and the inside and outside buoyancy together must equal in efficiency the buoyancy required for a boat of Section A.

To effect this 1·25 cubic feet of cork is to be considered as equivalent to 1 cubic foot of air-case.

The foregoing remarks apply to outside buoyancy for boats of Section C, excepting that the total buoyancy is only required to be half that of boats of Section A or Section B. When the solid cork is not permanently attached to the side of a boat in such a manner that moisture cannot collect between the two surfaces, it will require to be removed every time a declaration is granted to ascertain (1) whether the cork is becoming sodden; (2) whether moisture is collecting between the cork and the skin of the boat, and in that way rotting the wood. The consideration (2) will not apply to metal boats.

Sec. 41. Air-cases are required by the rules to be constructed of wood, or of copper or yellow metal of not less than 18 oz. to the superficial foot, or of other durable material.

The average weight of 18 oz. copper air-cases is about 5 lbs. per cubic foot, and if air-cases of other material exceed this weight the cubic capacity of the air-cases must be correspondingly increased.

As yellow metal in time becomes extremely brittle, copper is far preferable. Zinc is not durable material, and should not be passed; neither should galvanized iron or steel cases be passed for new boats.

A note should be made in each district of all ships whose boats are already fitted with galvanized iron or steel air-cases, with a view to their being frequently inspected. Steel or iron air-cases previously passed of less thickness than 21 oz. are not to be rejected so long as they continue in good condition.

Copper and yellow metal air-cases are to be made with proper hook joints not less than three-eighths of an inch in width, hammered well down and soldered, and no other joint is to be passed unless specially approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection.

The cases are not to exceed four feet in length: they are to be substantially enclosed with wood, which is to be close-jointed, so as to cover any exposed part of the air-case, and the wood forming the top is not to be less than one inch in thickness.

The coverings in the boats over the air-cases should be secured with brass screws, so as to enable the cases to be removed without difficulty for examination.

Spaces filled with or containing any material are not to be deemed air-spaces unless specially approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection.

Copper or yellow metal air-cases must not be carried in contact with the skin of the metal boats.

Where boats not required by the rules to be fitted with air-cases are so fitted, as, for instance, in some of the collapsible or semi-collapsible boats, these provisions as to air-cases need not be insisted upon.

Sec. 42. In the case of launches or other boats propelled by steam power, which are carried as part of the additional boat-equipment required by the rules made under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, an inspection of the boat, machinery, and boilers, and of the mounting and fitting thereof, should be made. Steam launches must not be passed as part of the boat equipment required to be under davits.

In the case of any vessel provided with a steam launch or boat in addition to the boat capacity required under the rules, the Inspector need not interfere unless they have reason to believe that there is some defect in the boat, machinery, or boiler, or in the fittings or arrangements thereof, which might be dangerous to life.

Sec. 43. In carrying these instructions into effect, Inspectors are to be careful not to interfere unnecessarily with boats supplied before November, 1904, but in the case of new boats coming under survey for the first time, as well as in all cases in which the fittings of the boats require renewal, the rules contained in these instructions are to be strictly adhered to.

Sec. 44. The appliances for lowering boats must be in accordance with Rule 4 of the General Rules, and must, in the Inspectors' opinion, be such as not to endanger human life. They should be tested at each survey for renewal of a passenger certificate.

The question of determining whether the requirements of the Rules respecting appliances for lowering boats are complied with in the case of any particular kind of gear coming under the Inspector's notice shall be left to the Chairman.

In order to ensure uniformity of practice, each Inspector, who may pass any particular disengaging gear, should request the maker to supply 50 copies of the plans and specifications for distribution among the Inspectors in the several districts. These copies should be sent to the Chairman by the Inspector, together with his report upon the gear. No certificates of approval for disengaging gear will be issued.

The Inspector should also report to the Chairman when any particular disengaging gear has been inspected and deemed unsatisfactory or unsafe, and should explain fully in such report the details which, in his opinion, render it undesirable. No formal certificate of approval will, however, be granted by the Board of Steamboat Inspection or their officers for any special kind of gear.

No part of the gear which is intended to bear the weight of the boat must be made of cast metal.

Sec. 45. Life-rafts are to be approved by the Board o Steamboat Inspection; they are to be supplied with a suitable equipment to the satisfaction of the Inspector, and this must include a sea anchor, not less than 20 fathoms of hawser, and oars in proportion to the size of the raft.

The number of persons that any approved life-raft for use at sea is to be deemed capable of carrying is the number that the raft is able to seat safely, provided always that for every person so carried there are at least three cubic feet of strong and serviceable inclosed air-tight compartments.

Approved buoyant apparatus is to be deemed sufficient for a number of persons, to be ascertained by dividing the number of pounds of iron which it is capable of supporting in fresh water by 32, provided also that the sides and ends of the apparatus shall afford a space of one horizontal foot for each person for whom it is certified, and that a line for the people to cling to is properly becketted all round it. Such buoyant apparatus shall not require to be inflated before use, and shall be of approved construction.

Sec. 46. Inspectors will note that both rafts and buoyant apparatus shall be marked in such a way as to plainly indicate the number of adult persons for which they are deemed sufficient. As determined by the net cubic feet contents, as per ratio in sections 31 and 45, and no raft or buoyant apparatus is to be regarded as finally approved until so marked, in a firm, and legible manner.

Sect. 47. The instructions in the case of life-boats apply equally to life-rafts and buoyant apparatus, so far as the length, weight, and inclosure of the air-cases are concerned, excepting that as life-rafts and buoyant apparatus are only intended to be used in cases of extreme need, and are consequently not exposed to the same wear and tear as the life-boats, a minimum weight of 16 oz., copper or yellow metal, may be passed.

Sect. 48. No life-belt is to be passed that is not capable of floating in fresh water for 24 hours with 15 lbs. of iron suspended from it. It shall be cut out 2 inches under the arm-pits, and fitted so as to remain securely in its place when put on. When any other material than solid cork is used for bouyancy it must be specially approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection. All new life-belts should be fitted with adjustable shoulder-straps.

Sec. 49. No life-buoy stuffed with rushes or with cork shavings or other shavings, or granulated cork, or any loose material is to be passed. All cork life-buoys are to be built of solid cork and fitted with lines becketted and securely seized to the life-buoy, and none are to be passed that will not float for 24 hours in fresh water with 32 lbs. of iron suspended from them. If life-buoys are n t made of solid cork, the pattern and material must be approved by the Board of Steamboat Inspection. No contrivance is to be passed as a life-buoy that requires inflation before use. Life-buoys are to be secured by a toggle and becket, or any other similar method, so that they can be quickly released; they must not be lashed nor seized to the rail or any other part of the vessel, but must be kept so as to be ready for use at a moment's notice in case of an emergency.

Not less than two of the life-buoys, one on each side of the ship, are to be fitted with life-lines 15 fathoms. in length.

Vessels for distributing oil are to be to the satisfaction of the Inspector, and are to be so constructed as to distribute the oil evenly and gradually on the surface of the water.

Sec. 50. The life-belts, life-buoys, and other buoyant apparatus should be carefully examined at every survey, when the Inspectors should satisfy themselves that the buoyant material has not becsme soddeu, and that the straps and liues are sufficient. Special attention should be paid to the question of buoyancy in the case of any approved life-belt which is not constructed of solid cork.

Sec. 51. The full supply oi life-saving appliances required for the maximum number of persons for which a declaration is granted must in all cases be on board at the time of the survey. If any of the appliances are removed when the vessel does not carry her full number of passengers, the responsibility must rest with the owner. When a reduction is made in the total number of passengers for whom accommodation is provided, on account of the insufficiency of the life-saving appliances, the actual reduced number of persons to be carried in each class should be stated in the declaration.

Sec. 52. In all cases in which claims are made for the exemption provided for by rule 12, section 36, for vessels which are divided into efficient water-tight compartments the Inspectors of the district should examine such of the bulkheads and the parts of the iron decks (or steps) which may be in combination with the bulkheads, for the purpose of either making the bulkhead complete in its height, or or support; should also examine the water-tight doors, the doors through which coal is worked, the covers of other openings, the arrangements for closing all doors, and the index showing whether the door is closed, And should report to the Chairman, with full particulars, whether in their opinion such are efficient and satisfactory for the exemption claimed.

PART IX.

For Precaut ons against Fire.

1. Every steamboat employed in the carriage of passengers, whether by sea, bay, lake or river navigation, shall be provided with and have on board, in some convenient place, not less than twenty-five sufficient fire buckets of metal or leather, five axes, and six good and sufficient lanterns approved of by the Inspector: Provided always, that passenger steamboats of more than seventy-five, and less than one hundred and fifty tons gross shall not be required to be provided with and have on board a greater number of fire buckets than twelve, and that passenger steamboats of seventy-five tons gross and under, and steam tugs under one hundred and fifty tons gross, shall not be required to be provided with and have on board a greater number of fire buckets than six, or a greater number of axes than three.

2. Every steamboat not employed in the carriage of passengers and every steamboat to which the provisions of the next preceding section do not apply, shall be provided with and have on board, in convenient places, a number in due proportion to that of the crew of good and sufficient fire buckets of metal, leather or other suitable material, and of axes and lanterns to the satisfaction of the Inspector.

3. Every passenger steamboat shall have at least three double-acting forcing pumps, with chambers at least four inches in diameter with a stroke of not less than six inches, two to be worked by hand, and one by steam, if steam can be employed independently of and not worked by the main engine, otherwise, all three by hand,—one whereof shall be placed near the stern, one near the stem, and one amidship, each having a suitable well-fitted hose of at least two-thirds the length of the steamboat, with suitable nozzle attached and kept at all times in perfect order, clear of freight or other obstructions, with hose coupled and ready for immediate use; each pump and coupling shall be provided with a hose wrench chained to the pump, and each of the said pumps shall be supplied with water by a pipe connected therewith, and passing through the side of the steamboat, so low as to be at all times in the water when the boat is afloat.

4. In passenger steamboats not exceeding two hundred tons gross, two of such pumps may be dispensed with; if over two hundred tons, but not exceeding five hundred tons gross, one of such hand pumps may be dispensed with; but in such cases the hose shall be of such length as to reach easily to every part of the steamboat; and in passenger steamboats where only one pump is used, such pump shall be placed as directed by the Inspector.

5. In passenger steamboats under one hundred tons gross, one steam pump of suitable size, or if steam cannot be employed, one force pump of suitable size worked by hand, shall be sufficient.

6. In passenger steamboats not exceeding two hundred tons gross, requiring only one pump, such pump shall be placed aft, unless the space forward is kept free to admit of ready access to the pump and hose, in which case the pump may be placed forward.

7. All steam pumps shall be supplied with suitable bilge connection having proper rose or mud box attachments, and also a steam syphon, ejector or other suitable means with which to relieve the hold of water.

8. When it is found that a metal tube or tubes are fixed on any steamboat not less in diameter than the hose carried by such steamboat connected with a force pump or pumps and provided with suitable connections placed at not more than thirty feet from each other, or from either end of the steamboat, to which the hose carried by the steamboat can be readily attached, it shall not be necessary that the hose should be of greater length than will be sufficient to reach from some one of such connections to either end of the steamboat, and each connection shall be provided with a stop valve or stop cock with keys and hose wrench properly secured or chained to each stop valve or stop cock, or connection so that one or more of such hose attachements may be used as may be required.

9. Every passenger steamboat of more than sixty tons, registered tonnage, shall be provided with a steam pony pump that may be used as a fire engine, to be worked independently of the main engine; such steam pony pump shall be placed in a suitable place, near the engine-room convenient to the control of the engineer; and in all cases the pump hose shall be coupled to the pony and hand fire pumps, ready for immediate use in case of fire.

RULES RELATING TO THE INSPECTION OF STEAMBOAT SHAFTS.

Shafts.

Main, tunnel, propeller and paddle shafts should not be passed if less in diameter than that found by the following formulæ, without previously submitting the case to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection. It will be found that first-class makers generally put in larger shafts than those obtained by the formulæ.

For compound condensing engines with two or more cylinders, when the cranks are not overhung:—

Where S = diameter of shaft in inches.

Where $d^2$ = square of diameter of high pressure cylinder in inches or sum of squares of diameters, when there are two or more high pressure cylinders.

Where $D^2$ = square of diameter of low pressure cylinder in inches or sum of squares of diameters, when there are two or more low pressure cylinders.

Where P = absolute pressure in lbs. per square inch, that is boiler pressure plus 15 lbs.

Where C = length of crank in inches.

NOTE.—Intermediate pressure cylinders do not appear in the formulæ.

For ordinary condensing engines, with one, two, or more cylinders, when the cranks are not overhung:—

$$S = \sqrt[3]{\frac{C \times P \times D^2}{3 \times f}}$$

$$P = \frac{3 \times f \times S^3}{C \times D^2}$$

Where S = Diameter of shaft in inches.

$D^2$ = Square of diameter of cylinder in inches, or sum of squares of diameters when there are two or more cylinders.

P = Absolute pressure in lbs. per square inch, that is boiler pressure plus 15 lbs.

C = Length of crank in inches.

| *For two Cranks. Angle between Cranks. | For Crank Thrust and Propeller Shafts. | | For Tunnel Shafts. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 90° | For paddle engines of ordinary type multiply constant in this column suitable for angle of cranks by 1·4. | 1,047 | 1,221 |
| 100° | | 966 | 1,128 |
| 110° | | 904 | 1,055 |
| 120° | | 855 | 997 |
| 130° | | 817 | 953 |
| 140° | | 788 | 919 |
| 150° | | 766 | 894 |
| 160° | | 751 | 877 |
| 170° | | 743 | 867 |
| 180° | | 740 | 864 |
| For three Cranks 120°. | | 1,110 | 1,295 |

* When there is only one crank the constants applicable are those in the table opposite 180°.

 The constants in this column should be produced by 15 per cent when dealing with propeller shafts of new vessels. The portion of the propeller shaft which is forward of the stern gland, and all the thrust shaft with the exception of the part enclosed in the thrust bearing, may be of the same diameter as the intermediate tunnel shafting.

RULES RELATING TO THE TESTING OF NEW ENGINES ON PASSENGER STEAMBOATS.

In the case of new engines on passenger steamboats, Inspectors should see them tested while under way, with full steam, in order to assure as far as possible that no flaws in the several parts of the engine have escaped the examination made by the Inspector, as provided by The Steamboat Inspection Act.

RULES FOR ESTIMATING THE NOMINAL HORSE-POWER OF MARINE ENGINES.

FOR ORDINARY CONDENSING ENGINES.

D = Diameter of Cylinder in inches.
N = Number of Cylinders.

Then $\frac{D^2 \times N}{30}$ = Nominal Horse Power.

FOR COMPOUND CONDENSING ENGINES.

D = Diameter of low pressure cylinder in inches.
d = Diameter of high pressure cylinder in inches.
N = Number of low pressure cylinders.
n = Number of high pressure cylinders.

CHAMBER OF THE SENATE.

OTTAWA, Wednesday, 11th January, 1905.

This day, at THREE o'clock P.M., the Honourable the Chief Justice of Canada, in his capacity of Deputy-Governor, proceeded to the Chamber of the Senate, in the Parliament Buildings. The Members of the Senate being assembled, the Deputy-Governor was pleased to command the attendance of the House of Commons ; and the House being present, the Speaker of the Senate said, on behalf of the Deputy-Governor, that he had it in command to let them know that His Excellency the Governor General did not think fit to declare the causes for which the present session of Parliament has been summoned until a Speaker of the House of Commons had been chosen according to law. After which the Members of the House of Commons withdrew to their own Chamber. The Deputy-Governor then retired.

CHAMBER OF THE SENATE.

OTTAWA, Thursday, 12th January, 1905.

This day, at THREE o'clock P.M., HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL proceeded in state to the Chamber of the Senate, in the Parliament Buildings, and took his seat upon the Throne. The Members of the Senate being assembled, His Excellency was pleased to command the attendance of the House of Commons. The Members of that body preceded by their Speaker, appeared at the Bar. The Honourable ROBERT FRANKLIN SUTHERLAND then informed His Excellency that the choice of the House of Commons had fallen upon him to be their Speaker.

After which HIS EXCELLENCY was pleased to open the FIRST SESSION of the TENTH PARLIAMENT OF THE DOMINION OF CANADA, with the following Speech :—

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I desire on this occasion to assure you how sensible I am of the great honour conferred on me by the King, in appointing me to the distinguished position of Governor General.

My pleasure in being called upon to represent His Majesty in the Dominion has been heightened by the cordial welcome I have received on all sides and from all classes.

This favoured land, with its vast resources and improving facilities for transportation, is attracting people on an ever ascending scale, not only from the United Kingdom, but also from the United States and from many other countries.

As the opportunities for settlement under the advantageous conditions which exist are better known, this Dominion will become the home of an increasing number of happy and contented people, whose character and prosperity will add strength to the great Empire of which you are so important a part.

It is gratifying to note that the trade of the Dominion, which in recent years has so steadily increased, is not diminishing, the aggregate trade for the last fiscal year being the largest on record. The revenue for the past six months is also greater than for the corresponding period of the preceding year.

On the invitation of the President of the United States, my Government has joined in the formation of an international commission composed of three representatives from each country to investigate and report upon the conditions and uses of the waters adjacent to the boundary line between the United States and Canada, and to make such recommendations for improvements and regulations as shall best subserve the interest of navigation in said waters.

The rapid growth in the population of the North-west Territories during the past two years justifies the wisdom of conferring on these Territories Provincial autonomy. A bill for that purpose will be submitted for your consideration.

The surveys necessary for the location of the line of the National Transcontinental Canadian Railway are being vigorously prosecuted, and it is confidently believed that tenders for the construction of several sections may be invited during the coming season.

The display of Canadian products made last year at the St. Louis Exhibition proved such a marked success in attracting emigrants to the western prairies, that it is proposed to accept the invitation of the Government of Belgium to send samples of our products and manufactures, to the exhibition to be shortly held at Liège.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The accounts of the last year will be laid before you. It will be satisfactory to you to learn that the expenditure has been less than the revenue, leaving a surplus over all charges.

The estimates for the coming year will be submitted at an early date ; they have been prepared with a due regard for economy consistent with the development of the resources of the Dominion.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I invite your best attention to the subjects I have mentioned and invoke the Divine blessing on your deliberations.

[Ref. 475,138.]

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

Saturday, the 17th day of December, 1904.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

ON a Report dated 29th November, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, submitting that in February, 1900, Mr. James Haddock, of Dawson, applied for a lease under the provisions of the regulations then in force, of an hydraulic mining location situated on Dublin Gulch, a tributary of Haggart Creek, a branch of the McQuesten River, in the Yukon Territory, and certificates were issued by the proper officers of the Department of the Interior at Dawson to the effect that it had been proved that the applicant himself, or a person acting for him, had been upon and actually prospected the ground included in this location, and that the ground included in such location was not being worked and was not suitable to be worked under the regulations governing placer mining.

The Minister states that owing to a succession of delays which took place in connection with this application, through no fault of the applicant, it was not granted up to the 2nd of February, 1904, on which date, by an Order of the Governor in Council, the regulations governing the issue of leases for hydraulic mining purposes in the Yukon Territory were rescinded, but the Minister of the Interior was still authorized to deal in accordance with the provisions of the regulations with all leases already issued, and with all applications already granted.

The Minister further states that in August, 1903, application was made to the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory for instructions for the survey of the location applied for, but the applicant was informed that as his application had not been granted by the Department of the Interior, instructions for the survey of the location could not be issued. Upon further consideration, however, the Commissioner authorized the issue of the instructions for the survey of the location, upon the understanding that the issue thereof would not convey to the applicant any guarantee that the application for a lease would be favourably considered, and this provision was inserted in the instructions for the survey. The survey, however, was made, and the returns thereof were approved by the Director of Surveys at Dawson, and were forwarded to the Department of the Interior at Ottawa.

That the Commissioner in May last reported that the location applied for by Mr. Haddock is, in his opinion, quite unlikely to be worked except by hydraulic mining methods ; that, if it were feasible, there would be no objection to granting an hydraulic mining lease for the location applied for by Mr. Haddock ; and that he is quite convinced that mining operations will never be carried on upon Dublin Gulch to any extent, unless some large operators obtain the property and work it on an extensive scale by hydraulic methods.

That as it appears from the evidence on file in the Department of the Interior that the applicant made an earnest effort to have his application granted during the period that the regulations were in force, and as the provisions of the regulations under which the application was made have been fully complied with, the Minister is of the opinion that the interests of placer miners in that locality would not suffer if the tract for which Mr. Haddock has applied were included in an hydraulic mining lease.

The Minister, therefore, recommends that he be authorized to issue a lease in favour of Mr. Haddock of the location, as shown on the plan of survey thereof filed in the Department of the Interior, excluding thereout any placer mining claims for which entries may have been granted, and which are in force on the date of the issue of such lease, and he further recommends that provision shall be made in the lease that the lessee shall, during the first two years from the date of the issue, complete the ditches and flumes necessary for the conveyance of water for the efficient working of the location by hydraulic mining methods, and shall commence such hydraulic mining on a sufficiently extensive scale within that period, otherwise the lease issued in his favour will be null and void ; and that if the location is at any time worked by any method other than hydraulic mining or dredging, the lease will be subject to cancellation. The lease issued in favour of the applicant to be on the prescribed form, with such additions and alterations as he, the Minister of the Interior, may find it necessary to make and shall provide for an expenditure of at least $10,000 within one year from the date of the lease.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

ON a Memorandum dated 28th November, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, stating with reference to an Order in Council dated 25th August, 1891, vesting certain swamp lands in Her late Majesty the Queen for the purposes of the Province of Manitoba,—

That Legal Subdivision 13 of Section 14, Township 13, Range 13, West Principal Meridian, was included through oversight in schedule attached to the said Order in Council, but this land was not available for the purpose of transfer to the Province as it was patented in the name of Kenneth McKenzie by patent bearing date 7th March, 1881.

The Minister therefore recommends that the Order in Council dated 25th August, 1891, vesting certain lands in Her late Majesty the Queen for the purposes of the Province of Manitoba, be amended by eliminating from the schedule attached to the said Order in Council, Legal Subdivision 13, of Section 14, Township 13, Range 13, West Principal Meridian.

SALLE DU SÉNAT,

Ottawa, mercredi, 11 janvier 1905.

Aujourd'hui, à Trois heures P.M., l'Honorable Juge en chef du Canada, en qualité de Député-Gouverneur, s'est rendu à la Salle du Sénat dans l'édifice du Parlement. Les membres du Sénat étant assemblés, il a plu au Député-Gouverneur d'y faire requérir la présence de la Chambre des Communes ; et cette Chambre s'y étant rendue, l'Orateur du Sénat a dit de la part du Député-Gouverneur, qu'il avait eu ordre de les informer que Son Excellence le Gouverneur Général ne jugeait pas à propos de déclarer les causes pour lesquelles la présente session du Parlement avait été convoqué avant qu'il ait été procédé, suivant la loi, à l'élection d'un Orateur pour la Chambre des Communes. Après quoi les membres de la Chambre des Communes se sont retirés à leur Chambre. Alors le Député-Gouverneur s'est aussi retiré.

SALLE DU SÉNAT,

Ottawa, jeudi, 12 janvier 1905.

Aujourd'hui, à Trois heures P.M., Son Excellence le Gouverneur Général s'est rendu, avec le cérémonial ordinaire, à la Salle du Sénat, dans l'édifice du Parlement, et a pris son siège sur le Trône. Les membres du Sénat s'étant assemblés, il a plu à Son Excellence d'y faire requérir la présence de la Chambre des Communes. Les membres de ce corps précédés par leur Orateur, ont paru incontinent à la Barre. Alors l'Honorable Robert Franklin Sutherland a informé Son Excellence que le choix de la Chambre des Communes comme Orateur était tombé sur lui.

Après quoi, Son Excellence a ouvert la Première Session du Dixième Parlement de la Puissance du Canada, par le discours suivant :—

Honorables Messieurs du Sénat :

Messieurs de la Chambre des Communes:

Je désire, à cette occasion, vous assurer combien je suis sensible au grand honneur que le Roi m'a conféré en me nommant au poste éminent de Gouverneur général.

Ma satisfaction d'avoir été appelé à représenter Sa Majesté dans le Dominion a été avivée par l'accueil cordial que j'ai reçu de toutes parts et de toutes les classes de la société.

Grâce à ses vastes ressources et à l'amélioration de ses moyens de transport, ce pays favorisé attire des immigrants de plus en plus nombreux, non seulement du Royaume-Uni, mais aussi des Etats-Unis et de plusieurs autres pays.

A mesure que la possibilité de s'y établir aux conditions avantageuses qui existent aujourd'hui sera mieux connue, ce Dominion deviendra la patrie d'un nombre croissant de gens heureux et contents d'y vivre, et qui, par leurs qualités et leur prospérité, ajouteront à la puissance du grand empire dont vous formez une partie si importante.

Il est satisfaisant d'observer que le commerce du Dominion, qui a augmenté d'une façon si constante depuis quelques années, ne diminue pas, celui du dernier exercice étant le plus considérable qui se soit fait. Le revenu du dernier semestre excède aussi celui de la période correspondante de l'exercice précédent.

Sur l'invitation du Président des Etats-Unis, mon Gouvernement a consenti à prendre part à l'institution d'une commission internationale composée de trois représentants de chaque pays et chargée d'étudier les conditions et l'utilité des eaux adjacentes à la frontière qui sépare les Etats-Unis du Canada et de faire rapport, et de faire aussi, à propos d'améliorations et de règlementation, les recommandations les plus conformes à l'intérêt de la navigation sur les dites eaux.

L'augmentation rapide de la population des Territoires du Nord-Ouest depuis deux ans a fait voir qu'il serait sage d'accorder à ces territoires l'autonomie provinciale. Un bill à cette fin sera soumis à votre considération.

Les explorations nécessaires à la localisation de la ligne du Chemin de fer Transcontinental National Canadien se poursuivent avec vigueur, et on a la ferme confiance que des soumissions pour la construction de plusieurs sections pourront être demandées pendant la prochaine saison.

L'étalage des produits canadiens à l'exposition de Saint-Louis, l'année dernière, a si bien réussi à attirer des immigrants vers les prairies de l'Ouest, qu'on se propose d'accepter l'invitation du gouvernement de Belgique à envoyer des échantillons de nos produits et de nos objets manufacturés, à l'exposition qui doit avoir lieu bientôt à Liège.

Les comptes de l'année dernière seront déposés devant vous. Vous serez heureux d'apprendre que la dépense a été inférieure au revenu et que, déduction faite de tous frais, il est resté un excédent de recette.

Les estimations budgétaires pour le prochain exercice vous seront bientôt soumises, on les a préparées, de façon à concilier l'économie avec le développement des ressources du Dominion.

Honorables Messieurs du Sénat :

Je vous invite à étudier avec la plus grande attention les sujets que j'ai mentionnés et je prie Dieu de bénir vos délibérations.

Que la subdivision légale 13 de la section 14, township 13, rang 13 à l'ouest du principal méridien, avait été incluse par erreur dans la liste attachée au dit arrêté en conseil, mais n'était pas disponible pour être transférée à la province parce qu'elle avait été concédée au nom de Kenneth McKenzie en date du 7 de mars 1881,—

PARTIE I.

Art. 1. Tout inspecteur pourra, chaque fois qu'il le jugera nécessaire, et un inspecteur devra, au moins une fois chaque année, éprouver la chaudière de tout bateau à vapeur par une pression hydrostatique dans la proportion de cent cinquante à cent livres permises comme pression effective, et la température de l'eau dont il sera fait usage dans l'épreuve n'excédera pas soixante degrés Fahrenheit, et il devra s'assurer, par un examen personnel et des épreuves expérimentales, que cette chaudière est bien faite et que ses matériaux sont sains et sans défauts. Le propriétaire du bateau à vapeur fournira la pompe à bras et les appareils nécessaires pour faire l'épreuve, et l'équipage du navire les fera fonctionner ; et nul inspecteur de chaudières et machines ne fera ni ne donnera aucun certificat au propriétaire ou au capitaine d'un bateau à vapeur à moins qu'il n'ait préalablement soumis la chaudière ou les chaudières du bateau à cette épreuve hydrostatique et à cet examen tel que prescrit par le présent.

Art. 2. Avant qu'une chaudière ne soit soumise à l'épreuve par la pression hydrostatique, elle sera ouverte pour la visite de l'inspecteur ; les portes du trou d'homme et les plaques de la vidange seront enlevées, l'extérieur et l'intérieur de la chaudière seront nettoyés, les grilles enlevées et le fourneau déchargé et balayé, afin qu'il puisse en faire une inspection satisfaisante et complète ; lorsque les cloisons seront placées de manière à empêcher une inspection minutieuse de la tôle de la chaudière, elles seront enlevées ; et le propriétaire ou capitaine du bateau veillera à ce que toutes ces dispositions soient prises avant de demander une inspection.

Art. 3. Chaque fois que l'épreuve n'aura pas été satisfaisante, les défauts seront réparés et la chaudière sera soumise à une seconde épreuve, qui devra être satisfaisante avant qu'un certificat ne soit délivré.

Art. 4. L'inspecteur doit fixer la pression effective des chaudières au moyen d'une série de calculs de résistance de leurs diverses parties et en raison de la nature de la main-d'œuvre et des matériaux qui les composent.

Art. 5. Avant d'éprouver une chaudière, les inspecteurs devront l'examiner, faire les mesurages et calculs nécessaires pour s'assurer que la pression effective est conforme aux présents règlements ; ces instructions s'appliquent aux surchauffeurs, récipients à vapeur et chemises à eau aussi bien qu'aux chaudières.

Art. 6. Si une chaudière est trop chaude pour qu'un inspecteur puisse l'examiner efficacement avec sûreté et facilité, il devra refuser de l'examiner, et refuser absolument d'accorder un certificat jusqu'à ce qu'il en ait fait un examen satisfaisant.

Art. 7. Pour s'assurer de la force et de l'état d'une chaudière, à l'intérieur, l'inspecteur pourra, s'il le juge nécessaire, y faire percer des trous, et pourra aussi demander qu'on lui fournisse au moyen de dessins et de devis des différentes parties de la chaudière, des renseignements suffisants sur sa construction pour lui permettre au moyen de calculs et d'un examen de déterminer leur force de résistance.

Art. 8. Pendant la confection de toute chaudière destinée à servir sur des bateaux à vapeur en Canada, le fabricant devra notifier l'inspecteur du district dans lequel elle est destinée à être employée, ou l'inspecteur le plus à portée, qu'il peut la venir inspecter, et il devra, en tout temps pendant cette confection, donner à l'inspecteur libre accès à la chaudière.

Art. 9. Afin d'empêcher qu'il ne s'élève de différends après qu'une chaudière aura été commencée, le fabricant ou l'entrepreneur, devra fournir à l'inspecteur, pour son approbation quant à son dessin et sa construction en général, les détails relatifs à sa construction, au moyen de dessins et de devis ; l'inspecteur, lorsqu'il aura reçu ces plans ou devis et les aura approuvés veillera à ce qu'ils soient suivis dans la construction, ou, qu'il y soit fait des déductions comme le veut l'article 25. Le présent règlement s'appliquera aussi aux chaudières subissant des changements.

Art. 10. Aucune chaudière ne devra être faite de tôle à chaudière, soit en fer soit en acier, qui n'aura pas été estampée du nom ou de la marque du fabricant, et nul certificat ne sera délivré pour une chaudière faite en entier ou en partie de tôle ne portant pas une pareille marque ; et avant qu'un certificat puisse être délivré pour une chaudière, le fabricant devra fournir à l'inspecteur une déclaration, attestée sous serment, du nom du fabricant de la tôle employée, de la qualité de celle-ci et de la qualité de tous les matériaux employés dans la confection de la chaudière ; ce serment pourra être prêté devant un juge de paix en Canada, ou devant un notaire public, et attesté sous son sceau officiel, s'il est prêté en dehors du Canada ; pourvu toujours que, dans les cas où cette déclaration sous serment, par le fabricant de la chaudière, ne pourrait être obtenue par suite de son décès, ou pour quelque autre cause jugée suffisante par l'inspecteur, l'affidavit de deux fabricants de chaudières pratiques qui auront examiné la chaudière et fait rapport sur la qualité des matériaux qui y ont été employés, celle de l'ouvrage et la force de la chaudière, sera, s'il est trouvé satisfaisant par l'inspecteur, considéré comme suffisant et tiendra lieu de la déclaration requise du fabricant de la chaudière.

Art. 11. Aucune chaudière, ni aucun tuyau s'y rattachant, ne sera approuvé s'il est fait en entier ou en partie de mauvais matériaux, ou si l'ouvrage est défectueux ou s'il est dangereux à cause de sa forme, de sa vétusté, de sa détérioration par l'usage, ou pour toute autre cause.

Art. 12. Les inspecteurs veilleront à ce que toutes les chaudières neuves et les chaudières qui auront été sorties d'un navire pour être réparées, soient éprouvées au moyen de la pression hydrostatique dans la proportion d'au moins un et demi de la pression effective qui sera permise, avant que les chaudières ne soient placées dans le navire, et éprouver l'ouvrage, etc., mais la pression effective sera établie par la force des armatures, l'épaisseur de la plaque, la force des rivets, etc., et non pas par l'épreuve hydrostatique.

Art. 13. L'épreuve hydrostatique ne devra, dans aucun cas, excéder la proportion d'un et demi la pression effective permise, et ne doit jamais être appliquée avant que la chaudière n'ait été ouverte pour l'examen, ni avant que la force de toutes les parties de la chaudière n'ait été calculée d'après les mesurages nécessaires pris sur la chaudière même.

Art. 14. Lorsqu'une chaudière est partiellement inspectée par un inspecteur, et que l'inspection est complétée et le certificat accordé par un autre, si l'inspecteur qui était présent à l'épreuve de la chaudière par la pression hydrostatique a l'occasion de l'examiner à l'intérieur et à l'extérieur après l'épreuve, cet inspecteur fixera la pression qui sera permise sur la chaudière, en ayant soin d'informer les propriétaires, fabricants ou agents, et l'inspecteur qui l'a partiellement inspectée, de la pression qu'il croit devoir être permise sur cette chaudière, et l'inspecteur qui a partiellement inspecté la chaudière devra informer l'inspecteur qui complète l'inspection de tous les détails de son inspection de la chaudière.

Art. 16. La pression permise sur la chaudière ne doit jamais, dans aucune circonstance, être augmentée, à moins que l'inspecteur n'ait préalablement écrit au président du bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, pour en obtenir la permission. Dans les cas où un inspecteur croira qu'une plus forte pression peut avec sûreté être permise, il devra en informer l'inspecteur qui aura inspecté la chaudière en dernier lieu ; et si, en apprenant pourquoi la pression actuelle avait autrefois été permise, l'inspecteur est encore d'opinion qu'elle peut être augmentée, il devra communiquer tous les faits au président ; mais comme il est dit plus haut, la pression ne devra, dans aucun cas, être augmentée tant que la question n'aura pas été décidée par le président.

Art. 18. Un inspecteur ne déclarera pas qu'une chaudière est sûre à moins qu'il n'en connaisse tout à fait la construction, les matériaux et la main-d'œuvre. Il devra par conséquent prendre des précautions avant de s'aventurer à sanctionner une chaudière qu'il n'aura pas été appelé à inspecter, avant qu'elle ait été terminée et mise en place dans le navire.

Art 19. Dans le cas de chaudières neuves, les inspecteurs autoriseront une tension n'excédant pas 7,000 livres par pouce carré de la section nette des entretoises en fer plein filetées supportant des surfaces planes ; mais la tension ne devra pas dépasser 6,000 livres si les entretoises ont été soudées ou travaillées au feu.

Art. 20. (a.) La pression sur les plaques formant des surfaces planes est déterminée par la formule suivante :—

$$\frac{C \times (T + 1)^2}{S - 6} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en seizièmes de pouces.

S = la surface supportée en pouces carrés.

C = 100 lorsque les tôles ne sont pas exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, et que les entretoises sont munies d'écrous et de rondelles, ces dernières ayant au moins trois fois le diamètre de l'entretoise et les deux tiers de l'épaisseur de la tôle qu'elles recouvrent.

C = 60, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, la vapeur étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont munies d'écrous et de rondelles, celles-ci ayant au moins trois fois le diamètre de l'entretoise et deux tiers de l'épaisseur de la tôle qu'elles recouvrent.

C = 140 pour le fer, et 175 pour les plaques d'acier.

T et S, comme ci-dessus.

C = 60, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, l'eau étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont vissées dans la tôle, leurs extrémités étant rivées en forme d'une tête résistante.

C = 36, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, la vapeur étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont vissées dans la tôle, et avec leurs extrémités rivées en forme de tête résistante.

$$48000 \times \frac{T^2}{P^2} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
P = le plus grand écartement des boulons en pouces.

Art. 21. Les inspecteurs ne doivent en aucun cas autoriser un effort de compression sur les plaques à tubes de plus de 9,000 livres, c'est-à-dire plus grand que celui qui est donné par la formule suivante :—

$$\frac{(D-d)}{W} \frac{T \times 18{,}000}{D} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

D = la plus petite distance horizontale entre les centres des tubes, en pouces.
d = le diamètre intérieur des tubes ordinaires, en pouces.
T = l'épaisseur de la plaque à tubes, en pouces.
W = la largeur en pouces, de la chambre de combustion, entre la plaque à tubes, et le dos de la boîte à feu, ou distance entre les plaques à tubes de la chambre de combustion si la chaudière est à double face et si cette chambre est commune aux foyers des deux extrémités.

Art. 22. Lorsque les tirants empêchent l'inspecteur d'entrer dans une chaudière, il doit ordonner leur enlèvement; il doit aussi s'assurer qu'ils ont été convenablement replacés avant de délivrer son certificat.

Art. 23. Dans le cas de rivure ordinaire en zigzag, la force à travers la tôle diagonalement entre les rivets est égale à la force horizontale entre les rivets, lorsque l'écartement diagonal égale six dixièmes de l'écartement horizontal plus quatre-dixièmes du diamètre du rivet.

Art. 24. Lorsque l'extérieur du fond d'une chaudière ne pourra pas être parfaitement inspecté sans cela, la chaudière devra être soulevée au moins une fois tous les quatre ans.

D·5—sera ajouté lorsque tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures longitudinales, mais percés à l'emporte-pièce avant le cintrage.
E*·75—sera ajouté lorsque tous les trous ne sont pas justes et bons dans les sutures longitudinales.
F·1—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais forés hors de place après le cintrage.
G·15—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais forés avant le cintrage.
H·15—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais percés après le cintrage.
I·2—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais percés avant le cintrage.
J*·2—sera ajouté si tous les trous ne sont pas justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles.
K·2—sera ajouté si des couvre-joints doubles ne sont pas assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont rabattues et à double rivetage.
L·1—sera ajouté si des couvre-joints doubles ne sont pas assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont rabattues et à triple rivetage.
M·3—sera ajouté si seulement des couvre-joints simples sont assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont à double rivetage.
N·15—sera ajouté si seulement des couvre-joints simples sont assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont à triple rivetage.
O1·0—sera ajouté lorsqu'une espèce quelconque de joint dans les sutures longitudinales est à un simple rivetage.
P‡·1—sera ajouté lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties avec des couvre-joints simples et sont à double rivetage.
Q‡·2—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties par des couvre-joints simples et sont à un simple rivetage.
R‡·1—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties par des couvre-joints doubles et sont à un simple rivetage.
S‡·1—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont à joints rabattus et sont à double rivetage
T·2—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont à joints rabattus et sont à un simple rivetage.
U·25—sera ajouté lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont rabattues et que les rebords des plaques ne sont pas complètement en dessous ou en dessus.
V·3—sera ajouté lorsque la chaudière est d'une telle longueur qu'elle nécessite un foyer à chaque bout, ou lorsqu'elle est d'une longueur inaccoutumée, comme les chaudières à carneaux, et que les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties tel que décrit vis-à-vis P, R et S; mais naturellement lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont telles que décrites vis-à-vis Q et T, V·3 deviendra V·4.
W*4—sera ajouté si les sutures ne sont pas convenablement croisées.
X*·4—sera ajouté lorsque le fer est sous quelque rapport d'une qualité douteuse, et que l'inspecteur n'est pas convaincu qu'il est de la meilleure qualité.
Y†·1·65—sera ajouté si la chaudière n'est pas ouverte à l'inspection pendant tout le temps de sa construction.

(b.) La force des joints ordinaires sera établie d'après la méthode suivante :—

(e.) Les plaques qui sont forées en place doivent être séparées et les bavures ébarbées, et les trous légèrement fraisés à l'extérieur.

(i.) Le diamètre des rivets ne doit pas être moindre que l'épaisseur des plaques dont est faite l'enveloppe, mais on s'a ercevra, là où les plaques sont minces, ou lorsque des joints rabattus ou des couvre-joints simples sont adoptés, que le diamètre des rivets doit excéder l'épaisseur des plaques. On trouvera à l'annexe et à l'article 43, une formule pour les joints rivés et écartement maximum de la mesure, et aussi diagrammes des diverses descriptions de joints rivés.

*Les cylindres à vapeur ayant des fonds segminiformes ou sphériques à chaque bout, d'un rayon n'excédant pas le diamètre du cylindre auquel ils sont attachés, et qui ne sont pas exposés au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, peuvent être acceptés sans entretoises, s'ils sont théoriquement égaux en force à la formule ci-dessous :—

C = la force de tension de la plaque en livres.
T = l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
R = le rayon du fonds en pouces.
F = 4 lorsque les fonds sont pressés à la machine et recuits, et 5 lorsque les fonds sont façonnés à la main et recuits.

$$\frac{C \times T}{R \times F} = \text{la pression effective permise.}$$

(e.) Le diamètre intérieur de la ceinture extérieure de l'enveloppe cylindrique d'une chaudière sera pris comme mesure de son diamètre.

Art. 27 (a.) Dans les surchauffeurs cylindriques la force des joints et le facteur de sûreté se trouvent de la même manière que pour les chaudières cylindriques et les récipients à vapeur, mais au lieu de prendre 47,000 livres comme force de tension du fer, on prend 30,000 liv. à moins que la chaleur ou la flamme ne frappe la plaque à angle droit ou à peu près; dans ce dernier cas on y substituera 22,400.

Trouvez l'aire d'une armature directe nécessaire pour supporter la surface, multipliez cette aire par la longueur de l'armature diagonale, et divisez le produit par la longueur d'une ligne tirée à angle droit avec la surface supportée jusqu'à l'extrémité de l'armature diagonale, le quotient sera l'aire de l'armature diagonale voulue. Lorsque des entretoises en goussets sont employées, leur aire devra excéder celle trouvée par le moyen ci-haut.

Art. 29. (a.) Lorsque le ciel des chambres de combustion ou autres parties d'une chaudière sont supportées par de solides traverses rectangulaires, la formule suivante, employée par le Conseil du Commerce Impérial, sera utile pour trouver la pression effective permise sur les traverses, en supposant qu'elles ne seront pas soumises à une plus haute température que la chaleur ordinaire de la vapeur, et que les extrémités sont ajustées aux rebords de la plaque de tubulure et à la plaque du fond de la chambre de combustion.

W = la largeur en pouces de la chambre de combustion.
P = l'écartement des boulons d'appui, en pouces.
D = la distance entre les traverses, d'axe en axe, en pouces.
L = la longueur de traverse en pieds.
d = la hauteur de la traverse en pouces.
T = l'épaisseur de la traverse en pouces.
N = le nombre de boulons d'appui.

$$C = \frac{N \times 1000}{(N + 1)} = \text{lorsque le nombre de boulons est impair.}$$

$$C = \frac{(N + 1)\ 1000}{N + 2} = \text{lorsque le nombre de boulons est pair.}$$

(b.) La pression effective pour les boulons d'appui et pour la plaque entre eux, sera établie au moyen de les règles prescrites pour les armatures et tôles ordinaires.

Art. 30 Les bouts plats de toutes chaudières, jusqu'où la vapeur s'étend, et les extrémités des surchauffeurs, seront munis d'écrans ou plaques de protection, lorsqu'ils sont exposés au gaz échauffés dans la culotte du courant de flammes, vu que toutes plaques exposées au choc direct de la chaleur ou de la flamme sont sujettes à être endommagées à moins d'être couvertes par l'eau.

Si l'on se propose d'employer de l'acier dans des surchauffeurs, les détails devraient être soumis au Bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, ou au président, si le Bureau ne siège pas, pour sa considération ; mais on ne doit jamais encourager un tel emploi ; ceci s'applique aux courants de flammes non munis d'écrans de toutes les chaudières, y compris les petites chaudières alimentaires verticales ordinaires.

Art. 31. Les petites chaudières alimentaires attachées ou reliées d'une manière quelconque à de grandes chaudières, ou à des machines employées pour faire marcher un navire, doivent être inspectées et garnies de la même manière que les grandes chaudières, et avoir un indicateur d'eau et un manomètre et tous autres accessoires complets, et sont, quant aux soupapes de sûreté, sujettes aux mêmes règlements que les grandes chaudières ; et aucune soupape de sûreté, ne sera permise, sauf tel que prescrit par les règlements concernant l'inspection des soupapes de sûreté.

Art. 32. (a.) Aucune chaudière ou fourneau à vapeur ne sera construit, ajusté ou arrangé de façon à ce que l'échappement de la vapeur par la soupape de sûreté puisse être complètement ou partiellement intercepté par l'action d'aucune autre soupape.

(b.) Une soupape d'arrêt doit toujours être placée entre la chaudière et le tuyau à vapeur, et (lorsque deux chaudières ou plus sont reliées par un récipient à vapeur ou surchauffeur) entre chaque chaudière et le surchauffeur ou récipient à vapeur. Le but de ceci est évident, savoir: éviter que toutes les chaudières soient affectées par le défaut d'une seule d'entre elles. Le col des soupapes d'arrêt sera aussi court que possible.

Art. 34. Les inspecteurs auront grand soin de ne donner aucune sanction officielle à aucun nouvel arrangement ou construction de chaudières à vapeur, dites "de marine," sans avoir d'abord obtenu la permission par écrit du président ; ils ne devront pas non plus donner aucune approbation par écrit en faveur d'aucune invention ou arrangement, à moins d'y être autorisé par le président ; et chaque fois qu'ils apprendront qu'une invention ou arrangement nouveau doit être appliqué à un navire qui doit porter un certificat pour transporter des passagers, ils devront aussitôt que possible s'en procurer des plans et des devis et les soumettre au président.

Art. 35. Les fourneaux circulaires avec des joints longitudinaux soudés ou faits avec des bandes bout-à-bout, à double rivetage ou doubles bandes bout-à-bout à simple rivetage :—

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times \text{par le carré de l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces.}}{\text{Longueur en pieds} \times 12 \times \text{par le diamètre en pouces.}} = \text{la pression effective par pouce carré, pourvu qu'il n'excède par ce qui est trouvé par la formule suivante :—}$$

La seconde formule limite la force broyante sur la matière à 4,500 livres par pouce carré.

Art. 36. (a.) Les règles suivantes devront servir de guide aux inspecteurs lorsque la qualité générale de l'acier aura été jugée convenable pour les chaudières marines.

(j.) L'inspecteur n'est pas obligé d'être témoin des essais prescrits, bien qu'il soit très désirable qu'il soit présent chaque fois que ces autres devoirs lui permettent de le faire, mais il doit veiller à ce que toutes les tôles soient convenablement marquées. Il doit, toutefois, choisir au moins une tôle sur quatre de chaque épaisseur, qui doit entrer dans la construction de la chaudière, et être présent à l'essai d'au moins une bande ou pièce coupée de chaque tôle choisie, mais lorsque les tôles à chaudières excèdent 15 pieds de longueur, il doit y avoir un essai de tension à chaque bout, et lorsqu'elles excèdent 20 pieds de longueur et en même temps excèdent 6 pieds de largeur, ou excèdent $2\frac{1}{2}$ tonnes pesant, il doit y avoir un essai de tension à chaque coin. Dans ce dernier cas l'essai de chaque tôle doit être vu par l'inspecteur. La moyenne des résultats des essais, si ces derniers remplissent les conditions du président, tel qu'énoncé plus bas, doit être étampée sur la tôle. Si un grand nombre de manquements ont lieu sur les 25 pour cent choisis, l'inspecteur doit choisir et voir essayer un nombre additionnel de tôles, le nombre d'essais additionnels étant en proportion du nombre de manquements. Si l'on désire avoir pour les tôles parmi lesquelles l'inspecteur choisit la susdite proportion, une plus forte tension que celle permise pour le fer, des essais pour la force tensile et l'allongement doivent avoir lieu, aussi quelques essais de trempe et de flexion. Et celles pour lesquelles il n'est pas demandé de réduction d'épaisseur peuvent être essayées pour résistance à la flexion et la trempe seulement, au choix. Dans ce dernier cas la force tensile et l'allongement étampés sur la tôle doit être énoncés dans le rapport de l'inspecteur au président, ainsi que les résultats des essais de flexion et de trempe. D'entre les tôles éprouvées par le fabricant d'acier, mais dont l'inspecteur n'a pas été témoin, l'inspecteur peut, s'il le juge à propos, choisir toutes tôles après qu'elles sont arrivées dans la cour, et en faire couper, et essayer des échantillons. Si les résultats ne sont pas satisfaisants toutes les tôles, sauf celles essayées et trouvées satisfaisantes, peuvent être rejetées.

1. Constantes pour les surfaces planes, supportées par des tirants vissés dans la tôle et rivés, 10 pour 100.

2. Constantes pour les surfaces planes, supportées par des tirants vissés dans la tôle et munis d'écrous placés dans la chambre à vapeur, 25 pour 100. Cette augmentation est aussi applicable aux constantes pour les surfaces planes renforcées par des rondelles rivées ou des bandes formant doublure, et supportées par de tirants munis d'écrous.

3. Constantes pour armature des chambres de combustion, 10 pour 100.

Pour les tôles d'acier dans le cœur des tubes, la force de la tôle est trouvée au moyen de la formule suivante:—

si T = l'épaisseur des tôles en seizièmes de pouces.

P = l'écartement moyen des entretoises de centre à centre.

Pour les espaces plus grands entre les cœurs des tubes la force à prendre de

si P = la distance horizontale de centre à centre des rangées de tubes, et

C = 130 si elles sont ajustées avec des écrous en dehors des tôles,

C = 140 si chaque tube alterne est une entretoise non ajustée avec des écrous,

C = 150 si elles sont ajustées avec des écrous en dehors des tôles,

C = 160 si chaque tube dans ces rangées est une entretoise et non ajustée avec des écrous,

C = 170 si chaque tube dans ces rangées est une entretoise et chaque tube alterne est ajusté avec des écrous en dehors des tôles.

si T = l'épaisseur des plaques à doublure en seizièmes, et C, t et P sont comme plus haut.

$$\frac{C \times (T + \frac{t}{2})^2}{P^2} = \text{la pression effective en liv. par pc. carré.}$$

$$\frac{(D-d)\ T \times 28{,}000}{W \times D} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

D = la plus petite distance horizontale entre les centres des tubes, en pouces.

d = le diamètre intérieur des tubes ordinaires, en pouces.

(t.) Dans les sutures longitudinales des enveloppes faites à recouvrement et munies d'un double rang de rivets, la section des rivets, lorsque ceux-ci sont en fer, ne doit pas être moindre des $\frac{1}{8}^3$ de la section nette de la tôle; mais si l'on emploie des rivets en acier, leur section doit être au moins les $\frac{2}{2}\frac{3}{4}$ de la section nette de la tôle, pourvu que la résistance à la traction de ces rivets ne soit pas au-dessous de 27 tonneaux bruts et ni au-dessus de 32 tonneaux bruts par pouce carré. Par conséquent, dans le calcul de la pression effective, la résistance proportionnelle des rivets doit être déterminée de la manière ordinaire par les règles, mais dans le cas des rivets de fer, les proportions trouvées doivent être divisées par $\frac{1}{8}^3$, et dans le cas de rivets en acier, par $\frac{2}{2}\frac{3}{4}$, les résultats étant les proportions cherchées. Si le calcul donne pour la résistance proportionnelle des rivets une valeur moindre que pour la résistance proportionnelle de la tôle, il faut calculer la pression effective à l'aide des deux résultats. En employant la résistance proportionnelle de la tôle, on peut prendre 4·25 plus les additions correspondant au système de construction, tel qu'il ressort des règles pour les chaudières en fer; mais en employant la résistance proportionnelle des rivets on peut prendre 4·25 pour facteur de sûreté. La plus faible des deux pressions ainsi trouvées est la pression effective à admettre pour la portion cylindrique de l'enveloppe de chaudière, ou autrement en conformité des formules qui se trouvent à l'annexe. Art. 43.

Art. 37. Dans aucun cas un certificat ne sera donné pour une chaudière lorsque les plaques en auront été forcées par des fiches rabattues pour ramener les uns sur les autres les trous des plaques.

Art. 38. Les trous d'hommes seront renforcés au moyen de plaques ou d'anneaux compensateurs au moins de la même aire de profil effective que la plaque coupée, et dans aucun cas ces plaques ou anneaux ne seront d'une épaisseur moindre que les plaques auxquelles ils seront attachés, et l'attache ne sera pas d'une force moindre que la plaque ou l'anneau. Les axes les plus courts de toutes les ouvertures dans les enveloppes de chaudières devront être placés longitudinalement, et s'ils ne sont pas ainsi placés, ils devront avoir des plaques ou anneaux compensateurs, et des attaches, égaux à deux fois l'aire de profil effective de la plaque coupée.

On ne devra pas faire de trous de nettoyage dans les enveloppes des chaudières, d'un plus grand diamètre intérieur que cinq pouces, à moins d'être munis de plaques de renfort, et s'ils sont pratiqués dans l'enveloppe cylindrique d'une chaudière, leur diamètre intérieur devra être en ligne avec l'axe de l'enveloppe.

Art. 39. Toute chaudière construite après que les présentes règles seront devenues exécutoires, porteront étampées les initiales du nom de l'inspecteur qui l'aura inspectée et éprouvée, l'année de sa construction, et la pression à laquelle elle a été soumise lors de l'épreuve, ainsi que la pression effective qui lui a été assignée.

Art. 40. (a.) La pression effective extérieure qui sera permise sur les fourneaux et tuyaux en acier, unis ou circulaires, lorsque soumis à cette pression, quand les joints,

(b.) Le produit de 90,000 multiplié par le carré de l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces, divisé par la longueur du tuyau, ou du fourneau, en pieds, plus un multiplié par le diamètre en pouces, sera la pression effective permise par pouce carré en livres, ajoutant dix pour cent au résultat de la formule ; pourvu qu'elle ne dépasse pas celle trouvée au moyen de la formule suivante :—(c)

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times T^2}{(L + 1) \times D} = \text{la presssion effective lorsque}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur du carneau en pouces.
L = la longueur du carneau ou du fourneau en pieds, ou la longueur entre les anneaux en pieds, s'il est renforcé par des anneaux propices ou des joints Adamson.

L = la longueur entre le centre des brides en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur du fourneau en pouces.

Le rayon des brides du côté du feu devrait être d'environ 1½ pouce. La profondeur des brides partant du côté du feu devrait avoir trois fois le diamètre du rivet plus 1½ pouce, et l'épaisseur des brides devrait être autant que possible de l'épaisseur du corps de la tôle. La distance entre le bord des trous des rivets et le bord de la bride devrait être au moins du diamètre du rivet, et le diamètre des rivets devrait être au moins ⅛ de pouce plus épais que la tôle. La profondeur de l'anneau entre les brides ne devrait pas être moindre que trois fois le diamètre des rivets, le bord de l'anneau touchant le feu devrait être vers la fin de la courbe de la bride, et son épaisseur avoir au moins la moitié de l'épaisseur de la tôle du fourneau. Il est très à désirer que ces anneaux soient tournés.

Les trous dans les brides et les anneaux devraient être forés en place si c'est possible, mais s'ils ne sont pas forés en place ils devraient être forés plus petits que la dimension requise, et ensuite, lorsque en place, alésés jusqu'à ce que les trous soient très justes, les trous devraient aller un peu en rétrécissant et les têtes des rivets d'une dimension modérée.

Fourneaux et tuyaux en acier ridé.

Art. 41. (a.) Pour les fourneaux à carneaux d'acier, neufs, ridés et faits à la machine, du modèle Fox ondulé, et modèle Morison suspendu, ou le John Brown et Cie, du type Purves à nervures et cannelé, ou du genre Deighton et Fox, s'il sont pratiquement circulaires, et les tôles d'au moins $\frac{5}{16}$ de pouce d'épaisseur, la pression effective se trouve au moyen de la formule suivante :—

C = 14,000.
T = l'épaisseur en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur en pouces, mesuré depuis le fond des ondulations lorsque le fourneau est du modèle ondulé ou suspendu, ou sur les parties planes lorsqu'il est du modèle à nervures et cannelé.

Dans les fourneaux ondulés de Fox, l'écartement des ondulations ne doit pas dépasser 6 pouces, et dans les fourneaux suspendus de Morison et le fourneau Deighton, l'écartement ne doit pas excéder 8 pouces. Dans ces sortes de fourneaux la profondeur depuis le dessus des ondulations à l'extérieur jusqu'au fond des ondulations à l'extérieur ne doit pas excéder 2 pouces.

Les côtes des fourneaux à nervures et cannelés doivent dépasser d'au moins $1\frac{5}{16}$ pouce les parties planes, la profondeur des cannelures pas plus que ¾ pouce, et la longueur entre le centre des côtes pas plus que 9 pouces. Dans chacun de ces genres de fourneaux les parties planes aux bouts d'arrière doivent être faits de façon à ce que la longueur, mesurée depuis le côté de l'eau de la plaque tubulaire d'arrière jusqu'au centre de la cannelure ou côte du bout d'arrière n'excède pas 9 pouces. Les parties planes aux bouts d'avant doivent aussi être faits de façon que la longueur mesurée depuis le centre de la première cannelure ou nervure jusqu'au centre des rivets qui assujétissent le fourneau à la plaque d'avant n'excède pas 9 pouces. Lorsque les parties planes aux bouts d'arrière sont de forme conique, et que la collerette par laquelle l'attachement est fait à la plaque tubulaire d'arrière ost continue, une longueur de 10½ pouces peut être allouée entre le côté de l'eau de la plaque tubulaire d'arrière et le centre de la première cannelure ou nervure. Quand ce genre de construction est adopté, la section verticale à travers le collet doit être gardée aussi circulaire que possible. La disposition au fond ne doit pas excéder 8 pouces mesuré par-dessus les plaques, et l'axe vertical ne doit jamais excéder l'axe horizontal de plus de 14½ pour cent. Les plaques aux extrémités ne doivent pas être trop amincies en faisant le rebord.

Art. 42. La pression effective pour les fourneaux en fer ridé, pratiquement circulaires et faits à la machine, pourvu que les parties unies aux extrémités n'excèdent pas six pouces de longueur et que les plaques n'aient pas moins de $\frac{5}{16}$ de pouce d'épaisseur, ne devrait pas excéder celle trouvée par la formule suivante :—

$$\frac{10{,}000 \times \text{l'épaisseur en pouces}}{\text{Moyenne du diamètre en pcs.}} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

JOINTS A TROUS FORÉS.

S = la résistance à la traction en livres par pouce carré de section.
$S_1$ = la force tensile des tôles en tonnes brutes.
T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces.
$T_1$ = l'épaisseur de chaque couvre-joint, en pouces.
% = la plus faible des proportions r, R, ou $R_1$, suivant le cas, divisée par 100.

| Nombre de rivets dans un écartement. | Constantes pour les joints recouverts. | Constantes pour joints bout-à-bout doubles. |
| 1 | 1·31 | 1·75 |
| 2 | 2·62 | 3·50 |
| 3 | 3 46 | 4·63 |
| 4 | 4·14 | 5·52 |
| 5 | — | 6·00 |

$$(C \times T) + 1\tfrac{5}{8} = p.$$

Lorsque le travail est de première classe, on peut adopter les écartements en tant que nécessaire pour la sûreté, cependant, dans quelques cas il serait bon d'adopter le plus grand écartement trouvé par la formule. L'écartement maximum ne doit pas, toutefois excéder 10 pouces avec la plus épaisse tôle pour envelopper des chaudières. S'il arrivait que l'écartement excède celui obtenu par la formule ci-dessus, pour la description particulière de joint et d'épaisseur de tôle, ces écartements ne doivent pas être admis, mais tous ces cas doivent être rapportés.

PARTIE II.

RÈGLEMENTS APPLICABLES À L'INSPECTION ET À L'ÉPREUVE DES CHAUDIÈRES MAINTENANT EN EXISTENCE OU DE CELLES QUI SONT OU QUI POURRONT À L'AVENIR ÊTRE FABRIQUÉES EN CANADA, POUR L'USAGE DES BATEAUX À VAPEUR, CHAQUE FOIS QUE DANS L'OPINION DE L'INSPECTEUR, LES RÈGLEMENTS CONTENUS DANS LA PREMIÈRE PARTIE DE CET ARRÊTÉ, NE POURRONT PAS, SOIT À CAUSE DE LA CONSTRUCTION DE CES CHAUDIÈRES, SOIT POUR TOUTE AUTRE CAUSE, S'APPLIQUER À LEUR ÉPREUVE; POURVU QUE DANS TEL CAS, L'INSPECTEUR DONNE UN CERTIFICAT ÉTABLISSANT QUE SON INSPECTION A ÉTÉ FAITE CONFORMÉMENT À LA SECONDE PARTIE DU PRÉSENT ARRÊTÉ.

une examen personnel et des épreuves expérimentales, que cette chaudière est bien faite et que ses matériaux sont sains et sans défauts; le maximum de cette pression sera dans la proportion de cent cinquante livres à cent livres permises comme pression effective; le propriétaire du bateau à vapeur fournira la pompe à bras et les appareils nécessaires pour faire l'épreuve, et l'équipage du bateau à vapeur les fera fonctionner; et aucun inspecteur ne fera ni ne donnera aucun certificat au propriétaire ou au capitaine d'un bateau à vapeur à moins qu'il n'ait préalablement soumis la chaudière du bateau à cette épreuve hydrostatique.

Art. 45. Avant qu'une chaudière ne soit soumise à l'épreuve par la pression hydrostatique, elle sera ouverte pour la visite de l'inspecteur; les portes ou trous d'homme et les plaques de la vidange seront enlevées, l'extérieur et l'intérieur seront nettoyés, les grilles enlevées et le fourneau déchargé et balayé, afin qu'il puisse en faire une inspection satisfaisante et complète; lorsque des cloisons seront placées de manière à empêcher une inspection minutieuse de la tôle de la chaudière, elles seront enlevées; et le propriétaire ou le capitaine du bateau veillera à ce que toutes ces dispositions soient prises avant de demander une inspection.

Art. 46. Chaque fois que l'épreuve n'aura pas été satisfaisante, les défauts seront réparés et la chaudière sera soumise à une seconde épreuve, qui devra être satisfaisante avant qu'un certificat ne soit délivré.

Art. 48. En soumettant les chaudières faites en tôle de fer à l'épreuve hydrostatique susdite, l'inspecteur prendra la pression de cent livres par pouce carré pour maximum de la pression permise comme force effective pour une chaudière neuve de quarante-deux pouces de diamètre, faite du meilleur fer affiné, d'au moins un quart de pouce d'épaisseur, de la meilleure manière et de la qualité requise par le présent; et il établira la pression effective de toutes les chaudières en fer, qu'elles soient d'un moindre ou d'un plus grand diamètre, d'après leur force comparativement à cette règle; et dans tous les cas, l'épreuve excédera la pression effective permise dans la proportion de cent cinquante à cent livres, et la température de l'eau dont il sera fait usage dans les épreuves n'excédera pas soixante degrés Fahrenheit.

Art. 49. En soumettant les chaudières faites en tôle d'acier à l'épreuve hydrostatique susdite, l'inspecteur prendra la pression de cent vingt-cinq livres par pouce carré pour maximum de la pression permise comme force effective pour une chaudière neuve de quarante-deux pouces de diamètre, faite de la meilleure manière, avec la meilleure qualité de tôle d'acier, d'au moins un quart de pouce d'épaisseur, les trous des rivets devant être percés en place, les plaques étant ensuite séparées et les bavures ébarbées, les sutures longitudinales de la chemise étant assujéties au moyen de couvre-joints d'acier coupés en travers du grain de la tôle, et chacune d'au moins cinq-huitièmes ou plus de l'épaisseur des plaques qu'elles couvrent, et toutes les sutures des plaques étant au moins à double rivetage et ayant pour le moins soixante-dix pour cent de la force de la tôle solide, et toutes les surfaces planes devant être étayées de la meilleure manière et toutes les sutures à double rivetage; et il établira la pression de toutes les chaudières en acier ainsi faites, qu'elles soient d'un moindre ou d'un plus grand diamètre, d'après leur force comparativement à cette règle; et dans tous les cas l'épreuve excédera la pression effective permise pour ces chaudières dans la proportion de cent quatre-vingt-sept livres et demie à cent vingt-cinq livres, et la température de l'eau dont il sera fait usage dans les épreuves n'excédera pas soixante degrés Fahrenheit

Art. 50. Si un inspecteur est d'opinion qu'une chaudière, qu'elle soit en tôle de fer ou d'acier, ne peut supporter avec sûreté, à cause de sa construction ou des matériaux dont elle est faite, une pression effective aussi élevée que celle ci-dessus spécifiée pour chaque espèce de chaudière respectivement, il pourra, pour les raisons qu'il devra spécialement énoncer dans son certificat, fixer la pression effective de la chaudière à moins des deux tiers de la pression d'épreuve.

Art. 51. Les règles qui précèdent seront suivies dans tous les cas, à moins que les proportions des chaudières par rapport aux cylindres, ou quelque autre chose, ne fassent voir manifestement que l'application en serait injuste, auquel cas l'inspecteur pourra déroger à ces règles, s'il le peut faire avec sûreté; mais en aucun cas la pression effective permise n'excédera la proportion ci-dessus, calculée d'après l'épreuve hydrostatique.

(c.) Le produit de 9,000 multiplié par l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces, divisé par le diamètre du fourneau ou du carneau en pouces, sera la pression effective permise par pouce carré en livres ;

$$\frac{C \times (T+1)^2}{S-6} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en seizièmes de pouces.
S = la surface supportée en pouces carrés
C = la constante déterminée suivant les circonstances suivantes :

C = 100 lorsque les tôles ne sont pas exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, et que les entretoises sont munies d'écrous et de rondelles, ces dernières ayant au moins trois fois le diamètre de l'entretoise et les deux tiers de l'épaisseur de la tôle qu'elles recouvrent.

C = 90, lorsque les tôles ne sont pas exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds et que les entretoises sont seulement munies d'écrous.

C = 60, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, la vapeur étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont munies d'écrous et de rondelles, celles-ci ayant au moins trois fois le diamètre de l'entretoise et deux tiers de l'épaisseur de la tôle qu'elles recouvrent.

C = 60, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, l'eau étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont vissées dans la tôle, leurs extrémités étant rivées en forme de tête résistante.

C = 36, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, la vapeur étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont vissées dans la tôle, avec leurs extrémités rivées en forme de tête résistante.

(g.) Lorsque des plaques et étais d'acier sont employés et dans les conditions décrites dans la partie I des règlements, l'augmentation aux constantes pour les surfaces planes et étais s'appliquera, tel que défini par les paragraphes (g) 1, 2 et 3 de l'article 36.

$$48000 \times \frac{T^2}{P} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
P = le plus grand écartement des boulons en pouces.
(i,) pour les plaques à tubes voir articles 21 et 36, paragraphes (r) et (s).

Art. 54. Pour s'assurer de la force et de l'état d'une chaudière, l'inspecteur pourra, s'il le juge nécessaire, y faire percer des trous, et pourra aussi demander qu'on lui fournisse les renseignements relatifs à sa construction intérieure qui lui permettent de juger exactement de sa force de résistance.

Art. 55. Dans aucun cas un certificat ne sera donné pour une chaudière lorsque les plaques en auront été forcées par des fiches rabattues pour ramener les uns sur les autres les trous des plaques.

Art. 56. Les trous d'homme seront renforcés au moyen de plaques ou d'anneaux compensateurs au moins de la même aire de profil effective que la plaque coupée, et dans aucun cas ces plaques ou anneaux ne seront d'une épaisseur moindre que les plaques auxquelles ils seront attachés, et l'attache ne sera pas d'une force moindre que la plaque ou l'anneau. Les axes les plus courts de toutes les ouvertures dans les enveloppes de chaudières devront être placés longitudinalement, et s'ils ne sont pas ainsi placés, ils devront avoir des plaques ou anneaux compensateurs, et des attaches égaux à deux fois l'aire de profil effective de la plaque coupée.

On ne devra pas faire de trous de nettoyage dans les enveloppes des chaudières, d'un plus grand diamètre intérieur que cinq pouces, à moins d'être munis de plaques de renfort, et s'ils sont pratiqués dans l'enveloppe cylindrique d'une chaudière, leur diamètre intérieur devra être en ligne avec l'axe de l'enveloppe.

Art. 57. Quand des barres ou des cornières de fer seront employées pour soutenir le ciel du fourneau d'une chaudière, les trois cinquièmes de la pression effective admissible sur le ciel seront soutenus par des tirants partant de l'enveloppe de la chaudière et fixés au plafond.

Art. 58. Les petites chaudières alimentaires sur les bateaux à vapeur seront munies de deux soupapes de sûreté, qui pourront être fermées à clef.

Art. 59. Les chaudières dans lesquelles les sutures longitudinales de l'enveloppe cylindrique ne sont qu'à simple rang de rivets, au lieu d'être à double rangs, seront sujettes à une réduction sur la pression effective admissible pour une chaudière de la meilleure construction (telle que prescrite dans les articles 48 et 49 des présents règlements), et le maximum de pression ne devra pas excéder dans les chaudières construites de cette manière, quatre-vingts livres par pouce carré, au lieu de cent livres ou de cent vingt-cinq livres, comme il est dit dans les dits articles.

Art. 60. Aucune chaudière, construite et posée à bord d'un bateau à vapeur, ne devra être faite de tôle à chaudière, soit en fer, soit en acier, qui n'aura pas été étampée de la marque ou du nom du fabricant, et aucun certificat ne sera délivré pour une chaudière faite en entier ou en partie de tôle ne portant pas une pareille marque; et avant qu'un certificat puisse être délivré pour une chaudière, le fabricant devra fournir à l'inspecteur une déclaration, attestée sous serment, du nom du fabricant de la tôle employée, de la qualité de celle-ci et de la qualité de tous les matériaux employés dans la confection de la chaudière; ce serment pourra être prêté devant un juge de paix en Canada, ou devant un notaire public, et attesté sous son sceau officiel, s'il est prêté en dehors du Canada; pourvu toujours que, dans les cas où cette déclaration sous serment, par le fabricant de la chaudière ne pourrait être obtenue par suite de son décès, ou pour quelque autre cause jugée suffisante par l'inspecteur, l'affidavit de deux fabricants de chaudières pratiques qui auront examiné la chaudière et fait rapport sur la qualité des matériaux qui y ont été employés, celle de l'ouvrage et la force de la chaudière, sera, s'il est trouvé satisfaisant par l'inspecteur, considéré comme suffisant et tiendra lieu de la déclaration requise du fabricant de la chaudière.

Art. 62. Aucune chaudière ni aucun tuyau ne seront approuvés s'ils sont faits en entier ou en partie de mauvais matériaux, ou s'ils sont dangereux à cause de leur forme, des défectuosités de l'ouvrage, de leur détérioration par l'usage, de leur vétusté ou pour toute autre cause.

Art. 63. (a.) Lorsque des chaudières cylindriques ou la partie cylindrique de chaudières sont faites des meilleurs matériaux avec tous les trous des rivets forés en place et toutes les sutures assujéties au moyen de couvre-joints doubles, chacun d'au moins $\frac{5}{8}$ de l'épaisseur des plaques qu'ils recouvrent, et toutes les sutures étant au moins à deux rangs de rivets de pas plus de 75 pour 100 au-dessus de la simple tension, et pourvu que les chaudières aient été ouvertes à l'inspection pendant tout le temps de leur construction,—alors on pourra prendre 4 comme facteur de sûreté. La force de tension des matériaux sera calculée comme égale à 48,000 lbs au pouce carré dans le sens du grain, et 42,000 en travers du grain. Lorsque toutes les conditions ci dessus ne se rencontrent pas, il faut faire au facteur les additions d'après l'échelle ci-dessous, suivant les circonstances de chaque cas :—

D.5—sera ajouté lorsque tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures longitudinales, mais percés avant le cintrage.

E*·75—sera ajouté lorsque tous les trous ne sont pas justes et bons dans les sutures longitudinales.

F·1—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais forés hors de place après le cintrage.

G·15—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais forés avant le cintrage.

H·15—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais percés après le cintrage.

I·2—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais percés avant le cintrage.

J*·2—sera ajouté si tous les trous ne sont pas justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles.

K·2—sera ajouté si des couvre-joints doubles ne sont pas assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont rabattues et à double rivetage.

M·3—sera ajouté si seulement des couvre-joints simples sont assujétis aux sutures longitudinales et si ces sutures sont à double rivetage.

N·15—sera ajouté si simplement des couvre-joints simples sont assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont à triple rivetage.

O·1—sera ajouté lorsqu'une espèce quelconque de joint dans les sutures longitudinales est à simple rivetage.

P‡·1—sera ajouté lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont assujétis avec des couvre-joints simples et sont à double rivetage.

Q‡·2—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties par des couvre-joints simples et sont à un simple rivetage.

R‡·1—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont assujétis par des couvre-joints doubles et sont à un simple rivetage.

S‡·1—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont à joints rabattus et sont à double rivetage.

T·2—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont à joints rabattus et sont à simple rivetage.

V·3—sera ajouté lorsque la chaudière est d'une telle longueur qu'elle nécessite un foyer à chaque bout, ou lorsqu'elle est d'une longueur inaccoutumée, comme les chaudières à carneaux, et que les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties tel que décrit vis-à-vis P, R et S; mais naturellement lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont telles que décrites vis-à-vis Q et T, V·3 deviendra V 4.

W*·4—sera ajouté si les sutures ne sont pas convenablement croisées.

X*·4—sera ajouté lorsque le fer est sous quelque rapport d'une qualité douteuse, et que l'inspecteur n'est pas convaincu qu'il est de la meilleure qualité.

Y†·1—sera ajouté si la chaudière n'est pas ouverte à l'inspection pendant tout le temps de sa construction.

(b) La force des joints sera établie d'après la méthode suivante :—

P‡·1, Q‡·2, R‡·1, S‡·1 ne s'appliqueront pas aux sutures extrêmes ou circonférentielles, si ces sutures sont suffisamment renforcées par des boulons de part en part ; ni aux sutures entre la partie carrée et la partie ronde de l'enveloppe des chaudières cylindriques avec fourneaux carrés, lorsque ces sutures sont à double rivetage.

(48,000 × la proportion de force du joint) × 2 fois l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
Diamètre intérieur de la chaudière en pouces × le facteur de sûreté.
la pression permise par pouce carré sur les soupapes de sûreté.

(f.) Les plaques qui sont forées en place doivent être séparées et les bavures ébarbées, et les trous légèrement fraisés de l'extérieur.

C = la force de tension de la plaque en livres.
T = l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
R = le rayon du fond en pouces.
F = 4 lorsque les fonds sont pressés à la machine et recuits, et 5 lorsque les fonds sont façonnés à la main et recuits.

$$\frac{C \times T}{R \times F} = \text{la pression effective permise.}$$

(m.) Les inspecteurs doivent se rappeler que la force d'une sphère pour résister à la pression intérieure est deux fois celle d'un cylindre de même diamètre et de même épaisseur.

Art. 64. (a.) Les parties neutres des enveloppes de chaudières sous les dômes de prise de vapeur doivent être consolidées et renforcées par des armatures suffisantes.

Art. 65. (a.) Dans les surchauffeurs cylindriques la force des joints et le facteur de sûreté se trouvent de la même manière que pour les chaudières cylindriques et les récipients à vapeur, mais au lieu de prendre 48,000 livres comme force de tension du fer, on prend 30,000 livres, à moins que la chaleur ou la flamme ne frappe la plaque à angle droit ou à peu près ; dans ce dernier cas on y substituera 22,400 livres.

Trouvez l'aire d'une armature directe nécessaire pour supporter la surface, multipliez cette aire par la longueur de l'armature diagonale et divisez le produit par la longueur d'une ligne tirée à angle droit avec la surface supportée jusqu'à l'extrémité de l'armature diagonale, le quotient sera l'aire de l'armature diagonale voulue.

Art. 67. (a.) Lorsque le ciel des chambres de combustion ou autres parties d'une chaudière sont supportées par de solides traverses rectangulaires, la formule suivante, employée par le Bureau de Commerce Impérial, sera utile pour trouver la pression effective permise sur les traverses, en supposant qu'elles ne seront pas soumises à une plus haute température que la chaleur ordinaire de la vapeur, et dans le cas de fournaises, que les extrémités sont ajustées aux rebords de la plaque de tubulure et à la plaque du fond de la chambre de combustion.

P = l'écartement des boulons d'appui en pouces.
D = la distance entre les traverses, d'axe en axe, en pouces.
L = la longueur de la traverse en pieds.
d = la hauteur de la traverse en pouces.
T = l'épaisseur de la traverse en pouces.
N = le nombre de boulons d'appui.

$$C = \frac{N \times 1000}{N + 1}.$$ lorsque le nombre des boulons est impair.

$$C = \frac{(N + 1)\ 1000}{N + 2}$$ lorsque le nombre des boulons est pair.

Art. 68. Les bouts plats de toutes chaudières, jusqu'où la vapeur s'étend, et les extrémités des surchauffeurs, seront munis d'écrans ou plaques de protection, lorsqu'ils sont exposés au gaz échauffés dans la culotte du courant de flammes, vu que toutes plaques exposées au choc direct de la chaleur ou de la flamme sont sujettes à être endommagées à moins d'être couvertes par l'eau.

Si l'on se propose d'employer de l'acier dans des chauffeurs, les détails devraient être soumis au Bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, ou au président, si le Bureau ne siège pas, pour sa considération ; mais on ne doit jamais encourager une telle chose ; ceci s'applique aux courants de flammes non munis d'écrans de toutes les chaudières, y compris les petites chaudières alimentaires verticales ordinaires.

Art. 69. Les petites chaudières alimentaires attachées ou reliées d'une manière quelconque à de grandes chaudières, ou à des machines employées pour faire marcher un navire, doivent être inspectées et garnies de la même manière que les grandes chaudières, et avoir un indicateur d'eau et un manomètre et tous autres accessoires complets, et sont, quant aux soupapes de sûreté, sujettes aux mêmes règlements que les grandes chaudières, et aucune soupape de sûreté ne sera permise, sauf tel que ci-après prescrit dans les règlements concernant l'inspection des soupapes de sûreté.

Art. 70. (a.) Aucune chaudière ou fourneau à vapeur ne sera construit, ajusté ou arrangé de façon à ce que l'échappement de la vapeur par la soupape de sûreté puisse être complètement ou partiellement intercepté par l'action d'aucune autre soupape.

(b.) Une soupape d'arrêt doit toujours être placée entre la chaudière et le tuyau à vapeur ; et, lorsque deux chaudières ou plus sont reliées par un récipient à vapeur ou surchauffeur, entre chaque chaudière et le surchauffeur ou récipient à vapeur. Le but de ceci est évident, savoir, éviter que toutes les chaudières soient affectées par le défaut d'une seule d'entre elles. Le col des soupapes d'arrêt sera aussi court que possible.

Art. 72. Les inspecteurs auront grand soin de ne donner aucune sanction officielle à aucun nouvel arrangement ou construction de chaudière à vapeur, dites de "marine," sans avoir d'abord obtenu la permission par écrit du président ; il ne leur est pas permis non plus de donner aucune approbation par écrit en faveur d'aucune invention ou arrangement, à moins d'y être autorisés par le bureau ; et chaque fois qu'ils apprendront qu'une invention ou un arrangement nouveau doit être appliqué à un navire qui doit porter un certificat pour transporter des passagers, ils devront aussitôt que possible s'en procurer des plans et les soumettre au président.

| (b.) Fourneaux avec joints bout-à-bout et trous de rivets percés à l'emporte pièce. | 85,000 lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints simples ; 75,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à simple rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints simples ; 85,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints doubles. |
| (c.) Fourneaux avec joints rabattus et trous de rivets forés. | 80,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et en biseau ; 75,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et non en biseau ; 70,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et en biseau ; 65,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et non en biseau. |
| (d.) Fourneaux avec joints rabattus et trous de rivets percés à l'emporte-pièce. | 75,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et en biseau.70,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et non en biseau.65,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et en biseau.60,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et non en biseau. |

Art. 74. (a.) La pression effective extérieure qui sera permise sur les fourneaux et tuyaux en acier, planes circulaires, lorsque soumis à cette pression, quand les joints longitudinaux sont soudés ou faits sous couvre-joints, sera déterminée au moyen de la formule suivante :—

(b.) Le produit de 90,000 multiplié par le carré de l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces, divisé par la longueur du tuyau, ou fourneau, en pieds, plus 1 multiplié par le diamètre en pouces, sera la pression effective permise par pouce carré en livres, ajoutant dix pour cent au résultat de la formule, pourvu qu'elle ne dépasse par celle trouvée au moyen de la formule suivante :—

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times T^2}{(L + 1) \times D} = \text{la pression effective lorsque}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur du carneau en pouces.
L = la longueur du carneau ou du fourneau en pieds, ou la longueur entre les anneaux en pieds, s'il est renforcé par des anneaux propices ou des joints Adamson

L = la longueur entre le centre des brides en pouces.

Le rayon des brides du côté du feu devrait être d'environ 1½ pouce. La profondeur des brides partant du côté du feu devrait avoir trois fois le diamètre du rivet plus 1½ pouce, et l'épaisseur des brides devrait être autant que possible de l'épaisseur du corps de la tôle. La distance entre le bord des trous des rivets et le bord de la bride devrait être au moins ⅛ de pouce plus épais que la tôle. La profondeur de l'anneau entre les brides ne devrait pas être moindre que trois fois le diamètre des rivets, le bord de l anneau touchant le feu devrait être vers la fin de la courbe de la bride, et son épaisseur avoir au moins la moitié de l'épaisseur de la tôle du fourneau. Il est très à désirer que ces anneaux soient tournés.

Les trous dans les brides et les anneaux devraient être forés en place si c'est possible, mais s'ils ne sont pas forés en place ils devraient être forés plus petits que la dimension requise, et ensuite, lorsque en place, alésés jusqu'à ce que les trous soient très justes, les trous devraient aller un peu en rétrécissant et les têtes des rivets d'une dimension modérée.

Fourneaux et tuyaux en acier ridé.

Art. 75 (a.) Pour les fourneaux à carneaux d'acier, neufs, ridés et faits à la machine, du modèle Fox ondulé, et modèle Morison suspendu, ou le John Brown & Co,, du type Purves à nervures et cannelé, ou du genre Deighton et Fox, s'ils sont pratiquement circulaires, et les tôles d'au moins $\frac{5}{16}$ de pouce d'épaisseur, la pression effective se trouve au moyen de la formule suivante :—

C = 14,000.
T = l'épaisseur en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur en pouces, mesuré depuis le fond des ondulations lorsque le fourneau est du modèle ondulé ou suspendu, ou sur les parties planes lorsqu'il est du modèle à nervures et cannelé.

Dans les fourneaux ondulés de Fox, l'écartement des ondulations ne doit pas dépasser 6 pouces, et dans les fourneaux suspendus de Morison et le fourneau Deighton l'écartement ne doit pas excéder 8 pouces. Dans ces sortes de fourneaux la profondeur depuis le dessus des ondulations à l'extérieur jusqu'au fond des ondulations à l'intérieur ne doit pas excéder 2 pouces.

Les côtes des fourneaux à nervures et cannelés doivent dépasser d'au moins 1 $\frac{5}{16}$ pouce les parties planes, la profondeur des cannelures pas plus que ¾ pouce, et la longueur entre le centre des côtes pas plus que 9 pouces.

Dans chacun de ces genres de fourneaux les parties planes aux bouts d'arrière doivent être faites de façon à ce que la longueur, mesurée depuis le côté de l'eau de la plaque tubulaire d'arrière jusqu'au centre de la cannelure ou côte du bout d'arrière n'excède pas 9 pouces. Les parties planes aux bouts d'avant doivent aussi être faits de façon que la longueur mesurée depuis le centre de la première cannelure ou nervure jusqu au centre des rivets qui assujétissent le fourneau à la plaque d'avant n'excède pas 9 pouces. Lorsque les parties planes aux bouts d'arrière sont de forme conique, et que la collerette par laquelle l'attachement est fait à la plaque tubulaire d'arrière est continue, une longueur de 10½ pouces peut être allouée entre le côté de l'eau de la plaque tubulaire d'arrière et le centre de la première cannelure ou nervure. Quand ce genre de construction est adopté, la section verticale à travers le collet doit être gardée aussi circulaire que possible. La disposition au fond ne doit pas excéder 8 pouces mesuré par-dessus les plaques, et l'axe vertical ne doit jamais excéder l'axe horizontal de plus de 14½ pour cent Les plaques aux extrémités ne doivent pas être trop amincies en faisant le rebord.

Art. 76. La pression effective pour les fourneaux en fer ridé, pratiquement circulaires, et faits à la machine, pourvu que les parties planes aux extrémités n'excèdent pas six pouces de longueur et que les plaques n'aient pas moins de $\frac{6}{16}$ de pouce d'épaisseur, ne devrait pas excéder celle trouvée par la formule suivante :

Art. 77. Les inspecteurs fixeront la pression effective des chaudières au moyen d'une série de calculs de la force des diverses parties, et suivant l'ouvrage et les matériaux.

Art. 78. Avant d'éprouver une chaudière, l'inspecteur devra l'examiner, faire les mesurages et calculs nécessaires pour s'assurer que la pression effective est conforme aux présents règlements; si l'épreuve n'est pas satisfaisante, les défauts seront corrigés et la chaudière éprouvée de nouveau. Cette instruction s'applique aux surchauffeurs, récipients à vapeur et chemises à eau aussi bien qu'aux chaudières.

Art. 79. Si la chaudière est trop chaude pour que l'inspecteur puisse l'examiner efficacement avec sûreté et facilité, il devra refuser de l'examiner, et refuser absolument d'accorder un certificat jusqu'à ce qu'il en ait fait un examen suffisant.

Art. 81. L'épreuve hydrostatique ne devra, dans aucun cas excéder celle prescrite par l'article 44 des présents règlements, et ne doit jamais être appliquée avant que la chaudière n'ait été ouverte pour l'examen ni avant que la force n'ait été calculée d'après les mesurages nécessaires pris sur la chaudière même.

Art. 82. Lorsqu'une chaudière est partiellement inspectée par un inspecteur, et que l'inspection est complétée et le certificat accordé par un autre, si l'inspecteur qui était présent à l'épreuve des chaudières par la pression hydrostatique a l'occasion de les examiner à l'intérieur et à l'extérieur après l'épreuve, cet inspecteur fixera la pression qui sera permise sur les chaudières en question, en ayant soin d'informer les propriétaires, fabricants ou agents, et l'inspecteur qui doit plus tard accorder le certificat, de la pression qu'il croit devoir être permise sur ces chaudières, et l'inspecteur qui a partiellement inspecté la chaudière informera l'inspecteur qui complète l'inspection de tous les détails de son inspection de la chaudière.

Art. 84. La pression permise sur la chaudière d'un bateau à passagers ne doit jamais, dans aucune circonstance, être augmentée, à moins que l'inspecteur n'ait préalablement écrit au président pour en obtenir la permission. Dans les cas où un inspecteur croira qu'une plus forte pression peut avec sûreté être permise, il devra en informer l'inspecteur qui aura inspecté la chaudière en dernier lieu; et si, en apprenant pourquoi la pression actuelle avait autrefois été permise, l'inspecteur est encore d'opinion qu'elle peut être augmentée, il devra communiquer tous les faits au président; mais comme il est dit plus haut, la pression ne devra, dans aucun cas, être augmentée tant que la question n'aura pas été décidée par le président.

PARTIE III.

Art. 88. Tout inspecteur pourra, chaque fois qu'il le jugera nécessaire, et un inspecteur devra, au moins une fois chaque année, éprouver la chaudière à tubes à eau de tout bateau à vapeur par une pression hydrostatique dans la proportion de deux cents livres par pouce carré, à cent livres permises comme pression effective, et la température de l'eau dont il sera fait usage dans l'épreuve n'excédera pas soixante degrés Fahrenheit, et il devra s'assurer, par un examen personnel et des épreuves expérimentales, par vapeur et par eau, que cette chaudière est bien faite et que ces matériaux sont sains et sans défauts. Le propriétaire du bateau à vapeur fournira la pompe à bras et les apparcils et le combustible et autres choses nécessaires pour faire l'épreuve, et l'équipage du navire les fera fonctionner; et aucun inspecteur de chaudières et machines ne fera ni ne donnera aucun certificat au propriétaire ou au capitaine d'un bateau à vapeur muni d'une chaudière ou de chaudières à tubes à eau à moins qu'il n'ait préalablement soumis la chaudière ou les chaudières du bateau à cette épreuve hydrostatique, et en marche sous vapeur, afin d'éprouver les chaudières et le fonctionnement des pompes d'alimentation en mouvement, et à l'examen prescrit par le présent, la durée de l'épreuve en marche sous vapeur sera d'au moins une heure, mais pourra être prolongée plus longtemps au choix de l'inspecteur.

Art. 89. Avant qu'une chaudière à tubes à eau ne soit soumise à l'épreuve par la pression hydrostatique, elle sera ouverte pour la visite de l'inspecteur, l'enveloppe extérieure sera enlevée, l'extérieur et l'intérieur de la chaudière seront nettoyés, les grilles enlevées et le fourneau déchargé et balayé, afin qu'il puisse en faire une inspection satisfaisante et complète; lorsque des cloisons seront placées de manière à empêcher une inspection minutieuse de la tôle et des tubes de la chaudière elles seront enlevées; et le propriétaire ou capitaine du bateau veillera à ce que toutes les dispositions susdites soient prises avant de demander une inspection.

soumise à une seconde épreuve, qui devra être satisfaisante avant qu'un certificat ne soit délivré.

Art. 91. L'inspecteur doit fixer la pression effective des chaudières à tubes à eau au moyen d'une série de calculs de résistance des diverses parties tel que ci-dessous spécifié, et en raison de la nature de la main-d'œuvre et des matériaux.

Art. 92. Si une chaudière est trop chaude pour qu'un inspecteur puisse l'examiner efficacement avec sûreté et facilité, il devra refuser de l'examiner, et refuser absolument d'accorder un certificat jusqu'à ce qu'il en ait fait un examen satisfaisant.

Art. 93. Pour s'assurer de la force et de l'état d'une chaudière à tubes à eau, à l'intérieur, l'inspecteur pourra, s'il le juge nécessaire, y faire percer des trous, en faire enlever certaines sections et détacher des tuyaux, et pourra aussi demander qu'on lui fournisse au moyen des dessins et des devis des différentes parties de la chaudière, des renseignements suffisants sur sa construction pour lui permettre au moyen de calculs et d'un examen de déterminer leur force de résistance.

Art. 94. Pendant la confection de toute chaudière à tubes à eau destinée à servir sur les bateaux à vapeur en Canada, le fabricant devra notifier l'inspecteur du district dans lequel elle est destinée à servir, ou à l'inspecteurs le plus rapproché qu'il peut la venir inspecter, et il devra en tout temps pendant cette confection, donner à l'inspecteur libre accès à la chaudière.

Art. 95. Aucune chaudière à tubes à eau ne devra être faite de tôle à chaudière, soit en fer soit en acier, qui n'aura pas été étampée du nom ou de la marque du fabricant, et nul certificat ne sera délivré pour une chaudière à tubes à eau faite en entier ou en partie de tôle ne portant pas une pareille marque ; et avant qu'un certificat puisse être délivré pour une chaudière à tubes à eau, le fabricant devra fournir à l'inspecteur une déclaration, attestée sous serment, du nom du fabricant de la tôle employée, de la qualité de celle-ci et de la qualité de tous les tuyaux et matériaux employés dans la confection de la chaudière ainsi que la qualité de la main-d'œuvre ; ce serment pourra être prêté devant un juge de paix en Canada, ou devant un notaire public, et attesté sous son sceau officiel, s'il est prêté en dehors du Canada; pourvu toujours que, dans les cas où cette déclaration sous serment, par le fabricant de la chaudière, ne pourrait être obtenu pour quelque cause jugée suffisante par l'inspecteur, l'affidavit de deux fabricants pratiques de chaudières à tubes à eau qui auront examiné la chaudière et fait rapport sur la qualité des matériaux qui y ont été employés, celle de l'ouvrage et la force de la chaudière, sera, s'il est trouvé satisfaisant par l'inspecteur, considéré comme suffisant et tiendra lieu de la déclaration requise du fabricant de la chaudière.

Art. 96. Afin d'empêcher qu'il ne s'élève de différends après qu'une chaudière à tubes à eau aura été commencée, le fabricant ou l'entrepreneur devra fournir à l'inspecteur, pour son approbation quant à son dessin et construction en général, les détails relatifs à sa construction, au moyen de dessins et de devis; l'inspecteur, lorsqu'il aura reçu ces plans ou devis et les aura approuvés veillera à ce qu'ils soient suivis dans la construction, et il devra réduire la pression effective si ces plans n'ont pas été suivis. Le présent règlement s'appliquera aussi aux chaudières en voie de subir des changements.

Art. 97. Aucune chaudière à tubes à eau, ni aucun tuyau s'y rattachant, ne sera approuvé s'il est fait en entier ou en partie de mauvais matériaux, ou si l'ouvrage est défectueux, ou s'il est dangereux à cause de sa forme, de sa vétusté, de sa détérioration par l'usage, ou pour toute autre cause.

Art. 98. Les inspecteurs veilleront à ce que toutes les chaudières à tubes à eau neuves et les chaudières à tubes à eau qui auront été sorties d'un navire pour être réparées, soient éprouvées au moyen de la pression hydrostatique dans la proportion d'au moins deux fois la pression effective qui sera permise, avant que les chaudières ne soient placées dans le navire, et éprouver l'ouvrage et les matériaux, mais la pression effective sera établie par la force des armatures, l'épaisseur de la plaque et des tuyaux, la force des rivets, etc., et non pas par l'épreuve hydrostatique seulement.

Art. 99. L'épreuve hydrostatique ne devra pas excéder la proportion de deux fois la pression effective permise, et ne doit jamais être appliquée avant que la chaudière n'ait été ouverte pour l'examen, ni avant que la force de toutes les parties de la chaudière n'ait été calculée d'après les mesurages nécessaires pris sur la chaudière même.

Art. 100. Lorsqu'une chaudière à tubes à eau est partiellement inspectée par un inspecteur, et que l'inspection est complétée et le certificat accordé par un autre si l'inspecteur qui était présent à l'épreuve de la chaudière par la pression hydrostatique, et en marche sous vapeur, a l'occasion de l'examiner à l'intérieur et à l'extérieur après l'épreuve, cet inspecteur fixera la pression effective qui sera permise sur la chaudière, en ayant soin d'informer les propriétaires ou le fabricant ou le capitaine ou l'agent, et l'inspecteur qui l'a partiellement inspectée, de la pression effective qu'il croit devoir être permise sur cette chaudière, et l'inspecteur qui a partiellement inspecté la chaudière devra informer l'inspecteur qui complète l'inspection de tous les détails de son inspection de la chaudière.

Art. 102. La pression permise sur la chaudière à tubes à eau ne doit jamais, dans aucune circonstance, être augmentée, à moins que l'inspecteur n'ait préalablement écrit au président du bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, pour en obtenir la permission. Dans les cas où un inspecteur croira qu'une plus forte pression peut avec sûreté être permise, il devra en informer l'inspecteur qui aura inspecté la chaudière en dernier lieu ; et si, en apprenant pourquoi la pression actuelle avait autrefois été permise, l'inspecteur est encore d'opinion qu'elle peut être augmentée, il devra communiquer tous les faits au président, mais comme il est dit plus haut, la pression ne devra, dans aucun cas, être augmentée tant que la question n'aura pas été décidée par le président.

Art. 104. Un inspecteur ne déclarera pas qu'une chaudière à tubes à eau est sûre à moins qu'il n'en connaisse tout à fait la construction, les matériaux et la main-d'œuvre. Il devra par conséquent prendre des précautions avant de s'aventurer à sanctionner une chaudière qu'il n'aura pas été appelé à inspecter avant qu'elle ait été terminée et mise en place dans le navire.

Art. 105. Dans le cas de chaudières à tubes à eau neuves, les inspecteurs autoriseront une tension n'excédant pas 5,000 livres par pouce carré de la section nette des tirants en fer plein filetés supportant des surfaces planes ; mais la tension ne devra pas dépasser 4,000 livres si les tirants ont été soudés. Lorsque la tête du tambour est assujétie au moyen d'un tirant au centre, l'aire à supporter sera d'un quart de toute l'aire de la tête, mesurée à l'intérieur du tambour. Pour les tirants dans les chaudières à tubes à eau, il pourra être permis 6,000 livres par pouce carré d'aire de profil, si d'ailleurs elles sont conformes aux chaudières auxquelles s'appliquent les règles I et II.

$$\frac{C \times (T+1)^2}{\left(\frac{d}{2}-1\right)^2-6} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

d = le diamètre intérieur de la tôle du tambour en pouces.
T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en seizièmes de pouces.
S = la surface supportée en pouces carrés.

Art. 107. La chaudière sera ouverte à l'inspection pendant sa construction, l'inspecteur s'assurera que dans toutes les chaudières de ce genre faites après le premier jour de février 1891, la qualité de la tôle ou matière dont est fait le tambour est de la "meilleure qualité," et porte le nom ou l'étampe du fabricant, et, s'il est d'acier, que la force de tension soit d'au moins 6,000 livres, et que les épreuves des tôles (applicables lorsque le tambour est rivé longitudinalement) et des tirants sont identiques aux épreuves prescrites par l'article 36 des susdits "Règlements pour l'inspection des chaudières des bateaux à vapeur."

lorsqu'elle est exposée au choc de la chaleur de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, et non protégée par l'eau ou autre moyen satisfaisant, sera de 30,000 livres par pouce carré d'aire de profil, et lorsqu'elle n'est pas ainsi exposée, les constantes applicables sont celles établies aux parties 1 et 2 des règlements. tenant compte du percentage des sutures si elles sont rivées, et du percentage de tôle laissé par la ligne de trous là où les tubes à eau sont attachés, employant un facteur d'au moins 5, avec additions tel que prescrit dans les susdits "Règlements pour l'inspection des chaudières de bateaux à vapeur."

Les têtes de tambour des chaudières à tubes à eau pourront être soudées au tambour au lieu d'être rivées ou boulonnées au tambour, lorsque le tambour et les tôles sont en fer, et n'excèdent pas neuf pouces de diamètre. Si un tube soudé est employé pour le tambour, il devra être de fer.

Art. 109. Les soupapes de sûreté pour la chaudière Roberts ou autre de ce genre seront placées une sur le tuyau à vapeur près du tambour, et une sur le tambour, le nombre et les dimensions des soupapes de sûreté seront tel que prescrit dans les "Règlements concernant l'inspection des soupapes de sûreté."

PARTIE IV.

Règlements concernant l'inspection des soupapes de sureté.

Art. 110. (a.) Après que les règlements seront devenus exécutoires, chaque chaudière faite ou placée à bord d'un bateau à vapeur sera munie de deux soupapes de sûreté, ou plus, fermées à clef, d'une aire égale en pratique, et dont la construction sera approuvée par le bureau d'inspecteurs de bateaux à vapeur, ou par le président, si le bureau n'est pas alors en session; l'aire collective des dites soupapes de sûreté ne sera pas inférieure à celle spécifiée dans la table ci-jointe vis-à-vis la pression attribuée à la chaudière; les soupapes de sûreté devraient être posées sur la chaudière, ou aussi près que possible de la chaudière, sans tuyaux, robinets, soupapes et autres obstacles possibles entre les soupapes de sûreté et la chaudière.

Chaque inspecteur, lorsqu'il inspecte, visite ou examine la chaudière ou les machines d'un bateau à vapeur, devra s'assurer que les soupapes de sûreté y attachées sont de dimensions convenables, en nombre suffisant, bien disposées et fonctionnent bien, et ne portent que le poids nécessaire pour leur permettre de s'ouvrir à la pression ou au-dessous de la pression effective certifiée; et, s'il le juge à propos, il pourra ordonner que deux de ces soupapes de sûreté ou plus (lesquelles seront ensemble de dimensions suffisantes à laisser échapper toute la vapeur que la chaudière peut produire, et dont il approuvera la construction) soient fermées à clé et soustraite au contrôle du mécanicien lorsque la vapeur est levée; mais le mécanicien aura accès aux soupapes de sûreté lorsque la vapeur n'est pas levée, et veillera à ce qu'elles soient tenues en bon état de fonctionnement, et le capitaine du bateau à vapeur verra à ce que le mécanicien y ait accès à cette fin, et les tienne en bon état de fonctionnement.

Chaque soupape de sûreté faite ou placée à bord d'un bateau à vapeur et attachée à une chaudière devra avoir un jeu au moins égal à un quart de son diamètre, les orifices pour le passage de la vapeur en entrant et sortant, auront chacune une aire égale à l'aire de la soupape, de même que le tuyau de renvoi d'eau, et la boîte de la soupape aura un tuyau de renvoi d'eau; si le levier d'une soupape de sûreté n'est pas emboîté dans du cuivre, la cheville sera de cuivre, —le fer en contact avec le fer ne sera pas permis; chaque soupape de sûreté sera munie d'un appareil de levage de manière à pouvoir le faire fonctionner avec la main, soit de la chambre de la machine soit de la cale des feux, ou par le capitaine ou personne en charge sur le pont;

Art. 111. (a.) Instruction est donnée aux inspecteurs que dans toutes les nouvelles chaudières, et chaque fois que des changements peuvent facilement être faits, la boîte de soupape doit être placée directement sur la chaudière; et le col, ou la partie de la boîte et la bride qui est attachée à la chaudière, doivent être aussi courts que possible.

(g.) L'arbre du tiroir doit être attaché à la soupape de façon à lever en même temps que la soupape. Il doit aussi s'étendre sous les couvercles et être ajusté dans des douilles et poignées transversales, de façon à pouvoir être levé et retourné dans son siège et son fonctionnement éprouvé en tout temps.

$c$ = 11,000 pour acier carré.

$S$ = le poids en livres sur le ressort.

Le ressort doit être protégé contre la vapeur et les impuretés sortant de la chaudière, et des mesures doivent être prises pour maintenir le ressort en position sur la soupape dans le cas où il se briserait.

PARTIE V.

Art. 112 (a.) Dans tous les cas, les mécaniciens, en arrêtant la machine, devront ouvrir la soupage de sûreté de façon à maintenir la vapeur dans la chaudière au-dessous de la limite fixée par le certificat de l'inspecteur, comme le prescrit la loi, ouvrir le fourneau et fermer les registres, et quand, à la suite d'un accident ou pour toute autre cause, l'eau de la chaudière est descendue au-dessous du point de sûreté, éteindre les feux immédiatement.

(d.) Manomètre en verre et robinets d'essai.—Tenez le verre libre et essayez les robinets tous les quarts d'heure.

(g.) Vider la chaudière.—Ne videz pas au moyen de la pression de vapeur; laissez écouler l'eau si c'est possible.

Veillez à ce que les feux soient éteints et les cendres chaudes enlevées.

---

Les demandes d'examen doivent être adressées au bureau d'inspecteurs des bateaux à vapeur, ou à l'inspecteur de la division où réside le candidat; elles seront faites sur des formules fournies à cette fin par l'inspecteur, et seront accompagnées des preuves de service et de certificats de sobriété, d'expérience et d'habileté, de bonnes mœurs et de bonne conduite en général pendant au moins les douze mois précédant immédiatement la date de la demande d'examen. Si le service s'est fait à terre, les certificats devront être signés par un patron, s'il s'est fait en mer, par le capitaine et mécanicien-chef, s'ils ne sont pas ainsi signés, de bonnes raisons devront être données à l'examinateur, car ce dernier n'acceptera aucune preuve de service ni aucuns certificats qui ne seront pas complètement satisfaisants. En l'absence de la vérification nécessaire l'aspirant ne peut être examiné.

Qualités requises pour des certificats de mécaniciens de deuxième ou de première classe valides dans le Royaume-Uni.

(4.) est porteur ou a droit à un certificat de service de première classe.

(b.) Il sera tenu de faire une esquisse à la main, ou un dessin d'exécution d'une ou plusieurs des principales parties d'une machine à vapeur, et d'y marquer en chiffres, sans copie, toutes les dimensions nécessaires, de façon que l'esquisse ou dessin puisse être exécuté. Voir Annexe D.

(g.) Il doit être au fait de la condensation de surface, du surchauffage, et du travail de la vapeur par la dilatation.

7. Lorsque le service d'atelier a été fait dans un endroit où les machines à vapeur ne sont pas faites ou réparées, et que la catégorie d'ouvrage fait est analogue à celui requis pour la confection des machines, le service peut être accepté avec un an additionnel dans la chambre de la machine, c'est-à-dire, quatre ans de service d'atelier et deux ans dans la chambre de la machine (dont un an doit être en mer), ou un an en mer dans la chambre de la machine et un an à l'ajustage des machines dans un atelier convenable de machines de navire. L'approbation du président du bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur devra toujours être obtenue avant que l'aspirant soit examiné.

8. Lorsque le service d'atelier a été fait dans un endroit où des machines sont confectionnées, et le département dans lequel le postulant a été principalement engagé n'est pas "ajustage" ou "montage," le cas peut être référé au président du bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, avec un rapport du service accompli. Si le service est tel qu'il soit un entraînement utile pour un mécanicien, le président peut accepter le service, mais dans chaque tel cas le postulant doit faire preuve d'un service additionnel dans la chambre de la machine ou de service d'atelier de machine marine, comme plus haut.

Dans le cas d'aspirants à des certificats de deuxième classe, le service d'aptitude signifie service comme mécanicien de quart pour des machines ou chaudières. Il ne sera jamais permis de compter le temps passé en travail de bureau.

10. Dans tous les cas les noms des aspirants doivent être dûment inscrits dans le journal du navire comme mécaniciens dans leur propre grade.

11. Faire le quart régulier signifie être de quart durant huit heures par jour au moins.

12. Le service qui donne l'expérience nécessaire pour rendre un homme compétent comme ingénieur de long cours, sera seul accepté comme service d'aptitude. Même pour un certificat de deuxième classe, l'aspirant doit prouver à la satisfaction de l'examinateur qu'il est apte par l'expérience et les connaissances d'agir comme mécanicien-chef sur un vapeur d'une force nominale moindre que 99 chevaux-vapeur dans un voyage, disons, du Canada en Angleterre, prenant pleine responsabilité pour les machines et chaudières.

13. Le service en mer exigé par les présents règlements, sera le service sur les navires de long cours, sauf déclaration contraire.

14. Service dans le cabotage ou commerce de l'intérieur est considéré l'équivalent des deux-tiers de la même période passés dans le commerce de long cours.

15. Service comme gardien de quart sur un steamer de lac ou de rivière d'une force nominale d'au moins 66 chevaux-vapeur peut être accepté aux conditions suivantes :—

(1.) Le service ne comptera que pour la moitié du service en mer, c'est-à-dire chaque deux mois de service sur les lacs et rivières n'équivaut qu'à un mois de service en mer ;

(3. les aspirants à des certificats de première classe doivent prouver, en outre du service de lac et rivière sur des vaisseaux d'une force nominale de 99 vaisseaux-vapeur, au moins six mois de service d'aptitude en mer, avec un certificat de mécanicien de deuxième classe, sur des vaisseaux d'une force nominale d'au moins 99 chevaux-vapeur.

16. Dans le cas de candidats à l'examen d'aptitudes de deuxième classe, le service fait à bord de baleiniers à hélice auxiliaire et autres vaisseaux d'une force nominale auxiliaire d'au moins 66 chevaux-vapeur, pourra être compté pour la moitié du temps que le vaisseau était réellement en mer. Si le candidat est capable de prouver qu'il a passé un plus long temps sous vapeur, il pourra compter tout ce temps de plus.

17. Le service en mer sur les dragues, seineurs ou remorqueurs à vapeur sera accepté aux conditions suivantes : Deux mois d'un tel service n'équivaudront qu'à un mois de service d'aptitude. Les aspirants à des certificats de deuxième classe peuvent faire tout leur service en mer sur des dragues, seineurs ou remorqueurs à vapeur de long cours, mais il faut qu'ils aient été de quart régulier aux machines et chaudières, et les vaisseaux doivent être d'une force nominale de 66 chevaux-vapeur. Les aspirants à des certificats de première classe doivent avoir servi sur des vaisseaux d'une force nominale d'au moins 99 chevaux-vapeur, et avoir été de quart aux machines et chaudières. En outre, ils doivent avoir servi avec un certificat d'aptitude pendant au moins six mois sur un navire à vapeur de long cours à fret ou à passagers, ou neuf mois sur un navire à vapeur de commerce intérieur à fret ou à passagers.

18. Tous les candidats seront tenus de produire, en sus des certificats officiels de congé, des preuves de leur service d'atelier et de leur service en mer. Les preuves du service d'atelier doivent être signées par le patron, et doivent porter sur la conduite et l'habileté du candidat, et énoncer dans quel genre de travail il était engagé, (c est-à-dire, ajustage, montage, etc.) et combien de temps.

22. Les preuves de service de mécaniciens étrangers et de mécaniciens anglais engagés sur des vaisseaux étrangers, qui ne peuvent être vérifiées par le régistraire général des marins, doivent être confirmées par le consul du pays auquel appartient le vaisseau sur lequel le candidat a servi, ou par quelque autre autorité officielle reconnue de ce pays ; ou par le témoignage de quelque personne digne de foi ayant une connaissance personnelle des faits à établir. Toutefois, la production de ces preuves ne sera pas nécessairement jugée suffisante. Chaque cas doit être décidé sur ses propres mérites ; et si la suffisance des preuves données semble quelque peu douteuse, le point doit être renvoyé au président.

ANNEXE D.

EXAMEN EN ÉBAUCHE DE DESSIN D'EXÉCUTION, POUR UN CERTIFICAT D'APTITUDE DE MÉCANICIEN DE PREMIÈRE CLASSE. (Formule Exn. 17.)

1. Les règlements de la Chambre de Commerce au sujet des qualités d'un aspirant à un certificat d'aptitude d'un mécanicien de première classe prescrivent que,—

"Il doit être capable de faire des ébauches de dessins d'exécution des différentes pièces des machines et chaudières.

"Il doit être capable d'expliquer les proportions générales qu'ont entr'elles les principales pièces de la machinerie."

4. Une esquise à la main montrant la construction complètement, et pleines dimensions sera acceptée si le candidat préfère cette alternative.

11. Gardez-vous d'écrire des dimensions croisées sur les lignes centrales, ou sur les lignes longitudinales. Ceci n'est pas un ordre, mais une recommandation.

"Cabotage ou commerce à l'intérieur" signifie service dans des navires à vapeur naviguant entre tout endroit ou tous endroits en Canada, et tout autre endroit ou endroits en Canada, n'étant pas un port ou lieu dans les eaux intérieures; aussi service entre un endroit ou des endroits en Canada et un autre endroit ou autres endroits dans l'Amérique du Nord qui n'oblige pas de passer au sud du parallèle de 30° de latitude nord. Service dans le cabotage équivaut à deux tiers de la même période de temps de service de long cours.

PARTIE VII.

Art. 1. Avant d'accorder un certificat les inspecteurs de coques devront s'assurer que les prescriptions de l'acte concernant l'inspection des bateaux à vapeur ont été observées.

(a.) Que la coque du bateau est suffisante pour le service auquel il est destiné, et est en bon état et en sus, ayant un ample abri et logement; avec un nombre suffisant de cabinets hygiéniques pour l'usage des passagers et de l'équipage.

(c.) La durée (si pour moins de 12 mois) pour laquelle la dite coque sera jugée suffisante.

Art. 3. Si un navire qui fait ordinairement le service dans une circonscription est conduit dans une autre circonscription pour être inspecté, l'inspecteur de cette dernière circonscription ne doit pas donner de certificat sans avoir d'abord communiqué avec l'inspecteur de la première circonscription; et, dans le cas de différence d'opinion, il devra renvoyer la question au président susdit, pour être décidée.

Art. 4. C'est le devoir de l'inspecteur de coques de veiller par lui-même à chaque détail de l'inspection de la coque, et équipement d'un navire, et de ne pas se fier à aucun certificat ou autre document, donné par une personne non autorisée par son département, lequel département le tiendra responsable en tous points de l'exécution du devoir qui lui est confié, et le supportera dans toute démarche raisonnable qu'il jugera nécessaire de prendre pour accomplir son devoir.

Art. 5. Chaque fois que l'inspecteur a raison de croire que la coque ou l'équipement ne peut durer aussi longtemps que douze mois il donnera son certificat pour telle période plus courte qu'il jugera à propos, en donnant aux propriétaires les raisons qui l'ont porté à agir ainsi.

Art. 6. Il est très à désirer qu'un inspecteur complète l'inspection d'un navire dans tous ces détails, une fois commencée; et si c'est possible, des arrangements devraient être faits avec le propriétaire à cette fin. On éviterait des délais et des inconvénients si les propriétaires notifiaient l'inspecteur que le navire est prêt à être inspecté et que son équipement est à bord.

Art. 7. Quiconque sciemment ou volontairement fait ou aide à faire ou fait faire un certificat au sujet d'un bateau à vapeur, ou qui contrefait ou aide à contrefaire ou fait contrefaire, change frauduleusement un certificat exigé par l'Acte d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, ou quelques mots ou chiffres dans un certificat, ou quelque signature y apposée, est coupable de délit.

Art. 8. Il ne doit pas être accordé de certificat pour douze mois, chaque fois que l'inspecteur a quelques doutes quant à l'efficacité d'une partie quelconque du navire ou de l'équipement pour une telle période.

Art. 9. Les inspecteurs décideront si les coques des vapeurs sont en bon état et capables de faire le service auquel ils sont destinés; et ils devront examiner les coques de vapeurs à passagers à l'extérieur et à l'intérieur une fois par année, si possible, ou plus souvent, selon que le jugera à propos l'inspecteur eu égard au propriétaire; et afin d'éviter des frais répétés, les propriétaires doivent avertir les inspecteurs lorsque leurs vaisseaux sont au quai, ou subissent des réparations.

Art. 10. Les vapeurs neufs seront inspectés avant d'être peinturés ou finis, mais cette inspection ne doit pas empêcher l'inspection complète de la coque et de l'équipement après parachèvement, l'objet étant de se former une idée de l'ouvrage, des matériaux et de la construction.

Art. 11. Lorsqu'un vapeur qui a été inspecté pour un certificat de passagers n'est pas sous tous rapports en bon état, bien que les défauts ne soient pas suffisants pour justifier le refus du certificat, et bien que le navire soit pratiquement propre au service projeté, l'inspecteur devrait, lorsqu'il accorde le certificat, transmettre au président un rapport sur la nature des défauts en question.

Art. 14. La hauteur des surbaux autour des ouvertures dans le pont supérieur et les moyens pris pour protéger et fermer sûrement les abat-jour, ouvertures, etc., sont des choses importantes que l'inspecteur doit noter dans les vapeurs exposés aux grosses vagues. Toutes les passerelles et ouvertures sur ou au-dessous du tillac devraient être munies de couvercles de façon à ce qu'elles puissent être promptement et efficacement fermées. Les écoutilles devraient être munies d'appareils pour les fermer solidement. Des panneaux de grille et d'écoutilles doivent être gardés et assujétis à un endroit convenable et d'un accès facile, et près des ouvertures auxquelles ils sont destinés.

Art. 15. Tous les canots doivent être suspendus à des daviers et tenus prêts à servir à un moment donné. Les inspecteurs devront veiller à ce que tous les canots soient munis d'un assortiment complet de rames; que chaque canot ait deux tampons pour chaque trou, attachés avec des aiguillettes ou chaînes, et un assortiment et demi de tolets attachés au canot par de bonnes aiguillettes; une écope, un gouvernail et une corde ou des cordes de timon: une amarre de bonne longueur, et une gaffe. Le gouvernail et l'amarre seront attachés aux canots par d'assez longues aiguillettes, et prêts pour le service. On devra prendre des moyens pour détacher instantanément les canots des dernières poulies du davier. On ne tolèrera pas de crochet ordinaire dans la dernière poulie passé dans un œillet fixe dans le canot.

Art. 16. Les inspecteurs devront veiller à ce que les daviers du bateau soient assez forts et assez espacés pour pouvoir lancer le canot sans travail inutile; que les cales du canot puissent être enlevées facilement, et que le canot ne frappe pas le flanc du navire en descendant lorsque le navire n'a pas de bande, et que tous les agrès, daviers, palans, poulies, boulons à œillet et anneaux, etc., soient d'une force suffisante pour pouvoir descendre le canot avec son équipement au complet. Les palans des daviers devront être assez longs pour descendre les canots à l'eau lorsque le navire est lège. Des amarres de sauvetage seront assujéties aux daviers, d'une longueur suffisante pour atteindre l'eau lorsque le navire est lège, et il faudra allouer pour l'extrême roulis du navire.

Art. 18. Des bouées de sauvetage munies d'amarres seront fixées au moyen d'un taquet ou autre méthode semblable, de façon à ce qu'elles puissent être facilement décrochées. Elles ne doivent pas être amarrées ni attachées au garde-corps ou aucune partie du navire, mais être tenues prêtes à servir à un moment d'avis en cas d'urgence. Les bouées et gilets de sauvetage doivent être soigneusement examinés lors de l'inspection du navire, afin de s'assurer si les matières dont ils sont composées ne sont pas détériorées et si les cordes qui y sont attachées sont de longueur suffisante et en bon état de service.

Art. 20. Les inspecteurs de coques, en faisant l'inspection des vapeurs à passagers sur la côte maritime ou sur les grands lacs du Canada, doivent voir à ce qu'ils soient gréés de voilure suffisante pour leur permettre de marcher dans le cas où leurs machines se dérangeraient. Toutes ces voiles doivent être examinées par l'inspecteur, qui devra s'assurer de leur efficacité, ainsi que de tous les agrès à chaque inspection, et dans tous les cas de doute, il devra demander des instructions au président du bureau.

Art. 22. Lors de la première inspection d'un vapeur employé sur les côtes maritimes ou sur les grands lacs du Canada, qu'il soit en fer ou en bois, l'inspecteur devra exiger que les boussoles soient convenablement ajustées ou vérifiées par une personne compétente choisie par le propriétaire, sur le rapport de laquelle cette personne compétente accordera un certificat au propriétaire à l'effet que les boussoles du navire sont convenablement ajustées, et lui fournira une table d'erreurs, lequel certificat sera présenté par le propriétaire à l'inspecteur avant que celui-ci ne donne son certificat d'inspection.

Art. 23. Les inspecteurs de coques veilleront à ce que des pompes sur le pont, pour l'incendie ou l'eau de cale ou autres fins, soient convenablement placées, en nombre suffisant, et que des moyens soient pris pour atteindre les boyaux d'aspiration en cas d'engorgement. Aucune pompe nécessitant le chargement à la main avant de pouvoir fonctionner ne sera acceptée. Quand la chose se rencontre, l'inspecteur doit insister pour que des dispositions soient prises pour rendre la pompe effective en tout temps. Les boyaux à incendie devraient être tendus sur toute la longueur et parfaitement examinés et éprouvés sous la pression des pompes, au moins une fois par année, et en tout autre temps que l'inspecteur jugera nécessaire. Le boyau devrait se relier aux pompes pour usage immédiat. Aussi, que des moyens suffisants soient fournis pour épuiser l'eau de la cale, tel que requis par l'act. 25, 61 Vic., ch. 46; ces moyens seront notés dans le registre d'inspection du bureau.

Art. 25. Les inspecteurs de coques auront soin de s'assurer que chaque vapeur transatlantique sujet aux dispositions de l'acte, et chaque vapeur employé sur les grands lacs soient munis de tous les câbles-chaînes, ancres et agrès nécessaire, à leur service, et en bon état; et placés de façon à pouvoir servir le plus promptement possible, que le câble soit sorti des coffres au moins une fois par année, nettoyé si c'est nécessaire, et les goupilles sorties des manilles.

Art. 27 (a.) Chaque inspecteur de coques tiendra aussi un registre de carénage, dans lequel il inscrira la date de la dernière entrée dans le bassin de chaque vapeur inspecté par lui, avec les détails des réparations qui y ont été faites; aussi un mémoire de sa dernière inspection, telle que faite par lui; l'état dans lequel il avait alors trouvé la coque et l'équipement; avec copie de toute correspondance entre lui et le propriétaire et capitaine, concernant les réparations, agrès, équipement ou autres choses qu'il faudra prouver dans le cas où elles n'auraient pas été faites.

|---|---|
| Pour les vapeurs transatlantiques le facteur sera..... | 10 |
| Pour les cabotiers maritimes..... | 10 |
| Pour les vapeurs des grands lacs..... | 9 |
| Pour les vapeurs naviguant sur les côtes des lacs et dans les ports, sur les rivières, les bateaux passeurs et bateaux d'excursion..... | 6 |

PARTIE VIII.

RÈGLES ET RÈGLEMENTS

CONCERNANT L'INSPECTION DES CANOTS, BOUÉES ET AUTRES APPAREILS DE SAUVETAGE QUE DEVRONT PORTER LES BATEAUX À VAPEUR OU AUTRES VAISSEAUX SOUS L'EMPIRE DE L'ACTE D'INSPECTION DES BATEAUX À VAPEUR, ET SES AMENDEMENTS.

Art. 1. On observera les dispositions ci-jointes au sujet des canots que devront porter les bateaux à vapeur :—

Au moins deux canots pour chaque bateau à vapeur de plus de cinquante tonneaux, mais de moins de (300) trois cents tonneaux :

Au moins trois canots pour chaque bateau à vapeur de trois cents tonneaux et plus; et si ce bateau à vapeur est de vingt-cinq tonneaux ou moins de registre, il portera un bon canot des dimension et description, et équiper en la manière approuvée dans chaque cas par l'inspecteur; les moindres dimensions permissibles seront de quatorze pieds de longueur, quatre pieds de bau, et dix-huit pouces de profondeur en dedans.

Les bateaux à vapeur de trois cents tonneaux de registre et plus, naviguant sur les lacs Ontario, Erié, Huron, Supérieur, Baie Georgienne, ou fleuve Saint-Laurent en bas de l'île Verte, ou eaux semblables; les dimensions des canots auront au moins vingt-deux pieds de longueur en tout et partout, six pieds de bau, sur deux pieds six pouces de profondeur en dedans, et aura au moins six rames et autre agrès nécessaire.

(e.) Si ce bateau à vapeur dépasse trois cents tonneaux de registre ou plus jusqu'à six cents tonneaux : deux bons et solides canots de sauvetage de vingt-deux pieds comme susdit, et pour chaque trois cents tonneaux en montant, un autre canot de sauvetage de vingt-deux pieds sera ajouté.

Art. 2. Chaque canot de sauvetage sera fait de métal convenable d'une épaisseur égale au fil métallique n° 18, ou de bois sur le modèle des baleinières, avec une tonture d'environ $\frac{3}{4}$ de pouce par pied, s'élevant également depuis le milieu du canot jusqu'à l'avant et l'arrière. Il aura de bons compartiments imperméables à l'air aux bouts et aux côtés, faits de bois ou de métal; ces compartiments auront une capacité en pieds cubes de un dixième de la capacité du canot. Cette capacité se trouve en multipliant la longueur et la largeur à l'extérieur, et la profondeur en dedans depuis le dessous des toletières ou dessus du plat-bord en pieds, et par ·6, le résultat égale les pieds cubes voulus dans les compartiments intérieurs et extérieurs, dont environ la moitié doit être à l'extérieur; et en divisant par 10, donnera le nombre de personnes que le canot de sauvetage sera censé pouvoir porter. A l'extérieur on pourra employer du liège solide au lieu de compartiments imperméables à l'air; 1·25 pieds cube de liège étant considéré égal à 1 pied cube de compartiment à air;

(c.) Les espaces remplis ou contenant quelques matières ne seront pas censés être des espaces à air;

(d.) Un bateau à poupe carrée ne sera pas considéré être un canot de sauvetage et tous les canots destinés à servir

(e.) Des cordes de sauvetage avec bouées seront convenablement attachées aux côtés ou plats-bords du canot de sauvetage.

Art. 3. Les canots de sauvetage et autres canots destinés à servir à des fins de sauvetage seront munis d'un assortiment complet de rames, une pour chaque toletière, et deux rames de rechange, bien assujéties et prêtes à servir;

(a.) Avec deux tampons pour chaque trou, attachés avec des aiguillettes ou des chaînes, et un jeu et demi de tolets attachés au canot par des aiguillettes et prêts à mettre en place;

Art. 4. Chaque canot sera entretenu en bonne condition, étanche avec des couvertures convenables, et prêt à servir immédiatement; quand on se sert de bois pour chauffer les chaudières des bateaux à haute pression (non condenseurs) les abris de ces canots seront faits de bois recouvert de zinc; et chaque canot aura le nom du bateau à vapeur auquel il appartient, ainsi que le nom de son port d'enregistrement peinturé à l'avant et à l'arrière.

Art. 5. Chaque tel bateau à vapeur sera muni de moyens suffisants pour descendre à l'eau sûrement et promptement les canots qui sont ci-dessus requis d'être à bord ou attachés à ce bateau à vapeur; et les capitaines de bateaux à vapeur diviseront leurs équipages par escouades et les dresseront à descendre et manœuvrer les dits canots et canots de sauvetage au moins une fois par semaine, alternativement.

Art. 6. Chaque tel canot sera pendu à des daviers distincts, avec des agrès complets et prêts à le descendre sans délai; pourvu que dans le cas où un bateau à vapeur porte deux canots de sauvetage, un des autres canots pourra être porté sur le pont supérieur sans daviers.

Art. 7. Les bateaux à vapeur employés au transport du fret sur les grands lacs ou eaux semblables, seront obligés d'avoir à bord ou attachés à ces bateaux deux canots tel que prescrit au paragraphe (b) de l'art. 1, et si c'est nécessaire un de ces canots pourra être à poupe carrée; et s'ils portent un nombre limité de passagers, ils seront obligés d'avoir en sus un canot de sauvetage tel que décrit aux paragraphes c, d et e de l'art. 1.

Art. 8. Le ministre de la Marine et des Pêcheries pourra autoriser l'usage dans certains cas particuliers, d'un nombre plus ou moins grand de canots, ou de dimensions différentes de ceux ci-dessus spécifiés; et avec cette autorisation il suffira que tout tel bateau à vapeur porte et soit muni de canots des dimensions spécifiées dans telle autorisation.

Art. 9. Tout bateau à vapeur restreint à la navigation de la rivière Saint-Jean en amont de Frédéricton, les eaux du district de Muskoka, le comté de Victoria, et le comté de Peterborough dans la province d'Ontario, et les eaux de la rivière Ottawa et ses tributaires en amont de la cité d'Ottawa, y compris le canal Rideau, ou des lacs ou rivières dont la largeur n'excédera pas un mille à un point quelconque sur la route de ce bateau à vapeur et qui est employé au transport des passagers, portera au moins un bon canot tel que prescrit à l'art. 1 (b) muni de quatre rames, et si ce bateau à vapeur est de vingt-cinq tonneaux ou moins de registre la plus petite grandeur du canot ne sera pas moindre que quarante pieds cubiques de capacité.

Art. 10. Chaque bateau à vapeur employé au transport de passagers, et ne naviguant que sur des rivières ou eaux intérieures, autres que les rivières et eaux intérieures ci-dessus spécifiées, devra, si ce bateau à vapeur dépasse cent cinquante tonneaux de registre, porter au moins deux bons canots tel que prescrit à l'article 1 (b) munis de quatre rames chacun; et si ce bateau à vapeur ne dépasse pas cent cinquante tonneaux de registre et n'a pas moins que cingt-vinq tonneaux de registre, il ne sera pas tenu de porter plus qu'un tel canot; et si ce bateau à vapeur a moins que vingt-cinq tonneaux de registre, il portera un bon canot, des grandeur et description, et gréé selon que l'approuvera l'inspecteur dans chaque cas.

Art. 11. Chaque bateau à vapeur non employé au transport des passagers, et chaque bateau à vapeur auquel les dispositions des articles qui précèdent ne s'appliquent pas, devra en tout temps, lorsque son équipage est à bord, avoir à bord ou attaché à ce bateau à vapeur, dans quelque endroit propice, un bon canot solide, ou de bons canots solides, en bonne condition et convenablement équipés et munis de rames en nombre suffisant et autres agrès nécessaires, et d'une capacité suffisante pour pouvoir porter tout l'équipage de ce bateau à vapeur, avec des moyens suffisants pour descendre ce canot ou ces canots sûrement et promptement. Et les vapeurs à fret, sur les canaux, et les remorqueurs, de moins de cinquante tonneaux bruts, peuvent être équipés de canots, ou de radeaux lorsque des canots ne peuvent être utilisés selon que l'inspecteur le jugera nécessaire pour assurer la sûreté de toutes les personnes en cas de désastre.

Art. 12. Le nombre de personnes que ces canots pourront porter sera déterminé en multipliant la longueur en tout et partout par la largeur à l'extérieur, et par la profondeur en dedans depuis le dessus de la quille jusqu'au plat-bord en pieds, par ·6, et divisant par 8, le quotient donnera le nombre de personnes que chaque canot pourra porter. Si les rames sont posées dans des tolets, le dessous des toletières sera censé être le plat-bord du canot pour constater sa profondeur.

Art. 13. Les radeaux de sauvetage doivent être approuvés par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur avant de déterminer le nombre de personnes qu'ils pourront porter; pourvu que trois pieds cubes au moins de forts et bons compartiments à air construits de façon que l'eau n'y puisse pénétrer seront le montant d'espace d'air alloué à chaque personne portée sur le radeau.

Art. 14. Pour qu'un appareil flottant soit approuvé il ne faut pas qu'il soit nécessaire de le gonfler avant de s'en servir; il devra être de construction approuvée, et marqué de façon à indiquer distinctement le nombre de personnes adultes qu'il peut porter.

Art. 15. Une bouée de sauvetage approuvée sera faite de liège solide capable de flotter sur l'eau au moins 24 heures avec 32 livres de fer y attachées; ou—

Des canots qui s'emboîtent pourront être employés s'ils sont approuvés par un inspecteur, avec le consentement du président.

Art. 16. Nul nouveau modèle ou matière pour les canots, radeaux ou bouées de sauvetage ne sera passé avant d'être approuvé par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur.

Art. 17. Chaque bateau à vapeur non exempt des dispositions de l'Acte d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, devra, avant de prendre la mer d'un port ou endroit en Canada, se munir et porter à son bord à chaque voyage, une ceinture de sauvetage pour chaque personne à bord, y compris l'équipage.

Art. 18. Chacune de ces ceintures de sauvetage sera capable de flotter dans l'eau douce pendant 24 heures, avec 15 livres de fer y attachées. Elles seront échancrées d'au moins de 2 pouces sous les aisselles, convenablement arrondies et ajustées de façon à ne pas se déranger une fois mises, avec bretelles et ceinturon, de corde de coton ou autre matière approuvés par l'inspecteur. Si d'autre matière que du liège solide est employée pour faire flotter, elle sera d'abord approuvée spécialement par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, et les ceintures de sauvetage seront en tout temps gardées dans un endroit accessible et à la main dans les cabines ou sur le pont du bateau, bien abritées et prêtes à servir à tout instant. Les endroits où elles seront gardées seront marqués de façon que leur position soit connue de ceux auxquels elles sont destinées.

Art. 19. Un gilet de liège avec bretelles et ceinturons pour le fixer autour du corps, ou toute autre espèce de ceinture de sauvetage que le Gouverneur général en conseil pourra approuver, sera la forme de ceinture de sauvetage à employer sur les bateaux à passagers.

Barges à passagers à la remorque.

Art. 20. Avant qu'une barge, chaloupe, bateau, chalan ou vaisseau non ponté ayant des passagers à bord, toué par un bateau à vapeur, reçoive un certificat d'inspection, il devra être muni d'un canot ou de canots, de ceintures, bouées et radeaux de sauvetage, ou de tous et chacun des équipements mentionnés au présent article, en sus de l'équipement mentionné dans l'Acte d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur des bateaux à vapeur qui l'inspecte, qui exigera qu'il soit équipé d'un appareil convenable pour sauver la vie pour les eaux sur lesquelles il navigue, ainsi que les commodités convenables pour l'usage des passagers.

CANOTS ET APPAREILS DE SAUVETAGE QUE DEVRONT PORTER LES STEAMSHIPS NAVIGUANT SUR L'OCÉAN.

Division (A)—Classe 1.

Art. 21. (a.) Les navires de la division (A), classe 1, porteront des canots pendus à des daviers, prêts à servir, et ayant des appareils convenables pour les descendre à l'eau, en nombre et de la capacité prescrits dans la Table aux présents règlements (voir art. 37) ; ces canots seront équipés et seront de la description, tel que l'exigent les règles générales ci-jointes ;

Conformément aux dispositions contenues dans le paragraphe (f) des présents règlements, ces canots ou radeaux additionnels devront avoir conjointement avec celle des canots pendus à des daviers prescrit par la table, une capacité collective d'au moins trois quarts. pour les navires jaugeant 5,000 tonneaux bruts et plus, et pour les navires jaugeant 5,000 tonneaux bruts, la moitié, plus que le contenu minimum cube requis par la colonne 3 de cette table. Pour cela 3 pieds cubes de boîte à air dans le radeau de sauvetage seront estimés comme 10 pieds cubes de capacité à l'intérieur. Pourvu toujours que les radeaux puissent porter toutes les personnes pour lesquelles ils sont certifiés en vertu des règlements, et aient aussi 3 pieds cubes de boite à air pour chaque personne.

(f.) Pourvu outefois, que nul navire de cette classe ne sera requis de porter plus de canots ou de radeaux qu'il n'est nécessaire pour toutes les personne.. à bord.

Division (B).—Classe 1.

Règles pour les navires à vapeur faisant le cabotage porteurs de certificats les autorisant à transporter des passagers dans certaines limites spécifiées.

Art. 22. (a.) Les navires de cette classe devront, selon leur tonnage, porter des canots pendus à des daviers tel que requis par la table. (Voir art. 37).

Division (A).—Classe 2.

Règles pour les navires à vapeur de long cours ou de cabotage non autorisés à transporter des passagers.

Division (B).—Classe 2.

Transports de poisson (à vapeur), remorqueurs, et allèges à vapeur qui vont en mer.

Art. 24. (a.) Les navires de cette classe porteront un canot des sections (A), (B) ou (C), arrangé de façon à ce qu'il puisse être facilement mis à l'eau d'un côté ou l'autre du navire, et amplement capable de porter toutes les personnes à bord.

Règles générales.

Art. 25. (1.) Tous les canots seront construits et équipés convenablement tel que prescrit par les présents règlements, et tous les canots et autres appareils de sauvetage devront être tenus prêts à servir, à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur. L'appareil flottant intérieur pourra être fait de bois, ou de cuivre rouge ou de métal jaune d'au moins 10 oz. au pied en superficie, ou d'autre matière durable.

Section (A.)—Un canot de cette section sera un canot de sauvetage, en forme de baleinière, convenablement construit de bois ou de métal, ayant pour

chaque 10 pieds cubes de capacités computée d'après la règle (2), au moins 1 pied cube de forts et bons compartiments à air, construits de façon à ce que l'eau n'y puisse entrer. Dans le cas de canots en métal, une addition sera faite à la capacité cube des compartiments à air, de façon à leur donner une flottabilité égale à celle des canots de bois.

Section (B.)—Un canot de cette section sera un canot de sauvetage en forme de baleinière, convenablement construit de bois ou de métal, ayant un appareil flottant prescrit pour un canot de la section (A). Au moins la moitié de l'appareil flottant doit être attachée à l'extérieur du canot.

Art. 26. (2).—La capacité cube d'un canot sera censée être sa capacité cube constatée d'après la règle Stirling, comme dans le mesurage du tonnage des navires; mais vu que l'application de cette règle exige beaucoup de travail le simple plan suivant, qui est approximativement exact, peut être adopté pour des fins générales, et alors qu'il n'est pas soulevé de question de mesurage absolument juste.

Mesurez la longueur et la largeur à l'extérieur et la profondeur à l'intérieur. Multipliez-les ensemble et par ·6; le produit donne la capacité du canot en pieds cubes. Ainsi, un canot de 28 pieds de longueur, 8 pieds 6 pouces de largeur, et 3 pieds 6 pouces de profondeur, sera censé avoir une capacité de 28 x 8·5 x 3·5 x ·6 = 499·8, ou 500 pieds cubes. Si les rames sont mises dans des tolets le dessous des toletières doit être considéré le plat-bord du canot pour mesurer sa profondeur.

Art. 27 (3.) Le nombre de personnes qu'un canot de la section (A) est censé capable de porter, sera le nombre de pieds cubes constaté d'après la règle 2 divisé par 10.

Le nombre de personnes qu'un canot de la section (B), section (C), section (D) ou section (E) sera censé capable de porter sera le nombre de pieds cubes constaté d'après la règle 2 divisé par 8. L'espace dans le canot sera suffisant pour y asseoir les personnes qu'il porte, et pour le bon fonctionnement des rames.

Art. 28 (4.) Les appareils pour mettre un canot à l'eau devront remplir les conditions suivantes:—On prendra des moyens de détacher avec promptitude, (mais il n'est pas nécessaire que ce soit simultanément ou automatiquement), le canot des dernières poulies du davier; les canots pendus à des daviers doivent être tenus prêts à servir; les daviers doivent être assez forts et assez espacés pour pouvoir lancer le canot avec facilité; les points d'attache des canots aux daviers doivent être assez éloignés des bouts des canots pour permettre qu'ils soient lancés sans toucher aux daviers; les cales des canots doivent être telles qu'elles puissent être promptement enlevées; les daviers, palans, poulies, boulons à œillet, anneaux, et tout l'agrès doivent être assez forts; les palans des canots doivent être assez longs pour descendre le canot à l'eau avec sûreté lorsque le navire est lège. Les cordes de sauvetage seront attachées aux daviers et seront assez longues pour atteindre l'eau lorsque le navire est lège; et il ne sera pas attaché de crochets aux dernières poulies de l'agrès.

Art. 29 (5.) Pour qu'un canot soit bien équipé il doit avoir—

Art. 30 (6). Pour être convenablement équipé, chaque canot des sections (A) et (B) devra, en sus des articles requis par la règle 5, être équipé comme ci-dessous, (mais il suffira que quatre canots par navire aient cet équipement, et quand des canots des sections (A) ou (B) sont portés au lieu de canots des sections (C) ou (D), cet équipement additionnel ne sera pas indispensable:—

(c.) Une corde faisant le tour du canot en dehors, et bien assujétie.

(f.) Un fanal rempli d'huile, capable de durer huit heures.

Art. 31 (7). Le nombre de personnes que sera censé pouvoir porter un radeau de sauvetage approuvé pour servir en mer, sera fixé selon les divers modèles approuvés par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur; pourvu toutefois, que pour chaque personne ainsi portée il y ait eu moins 3 pieds cubes de forts et bons compartiments à air, construits de façon à ce que l'eau ne puisse y pénétrer. Tout autre radeau de sauvetage d'un modèle approuvé pourra être employé, pourvu qu'il ait une flottabilité équivalente à celle ci-dessus décrite. Chaque tel radeau de sauvetage sera marqué de manière à indiquer distinctement le nombre d'adultes qu'il peut porter.

Art. 32 (8). Un appareil flottant approuvé sera censé efficace, quant à la légèreté, pour un nombre de personnes qui sera déterminé en divisant par 32 le nombre de livres de fer qu'il est capable de supporter dans l'eau douce. Il ne faut pas qu'il soit nécessaire de le gonfler avant de s'en servir, il devra être de construction approuvée et marqué de façon à indiquer distinctement le nombre de personnes adultes qu'il peut porter.

Art. 33 (9). Une ceinture de sauvetage approuvée veut dire une ceinture qui n'a pas besoin d'être gonflée avant de s'en servir, et qui est capable de flotter sur l'eau pendant 24 heures au moins avec 15 livres de fer y attachées. Les ceintures de sauvetage doivent être échancrées de 2 pouces sous les aisselles, et ajustées de manière à rester en place une fois mises.

Art. 34 (10). Une bouée de sauvetage approuvée veut dire soit—

Toutes les bouées de sauvetage seront munies de bonnes attaches, et deux d'entr'elles au moins seront munies de cordes de sauvetage longues de 15 brasses.

Art. 35. (11.) Toutes les bouées et ceintures de sauvetage seront placées de façon à être facilement accessibles à toutes les personnes à bord, et de façon à ce que leur position soit connue de ceux qui pourraient en avoir besoin.

Art. 36. (12.) Quand des navires d'une classe quelconque sont divisés en bons compartiments à air à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur des bateaux à vapeur avec le consentement du président, ils ne seront tenus de porter des canots, radeaux et appareils flottants additionnels que pour la moitié de la capacité requise par les présents règlements, mais cette exemption ne s'étendra pas aux gilets de sauvetage ou autres articles semblables approuvés d'égale légèreté propres à porter sur la personne.

Pour les vaisseaux jaugeant moins que 200 tonneaux bruts, la capacité de tout canot à fournir ne doit pas être moindre que 125 pieds cubes. Toutefois, s'il se trouve des cas où cette règle est impraticable, l'inspecteur avec l'approbation du président pourra alors exercer sa discrétion.

INSTRUCTIONS QUANT A L'INTERPRÊTATION DES RÈGLES CONCERNANT LES APPAREILS DE SAUVETAGE.

Art. 38. Quant aux canots des sections A, B, C et D, article 25, les inspecteurs veilleront à ce que les exigences des règles soient observées, et que la capacité des canots et le nombre de personnes qu'ils peuvent porter, soient obtenus d'après les règles 2 et 3 (Articles 26 et 27). En mesurant les canots les longueur et largeur extrêmes doivent être considérées comme les dimensions extrêmes mesurées jusqu'en dehors du bordage. Toutefois, le nombre de personnes pour lequel un canot est accepté, est assujéti à cette autre condition que l'espace dans le canot est suffisant pour asseoir toutes les personnes, et manier les rames convenablement. On s'assure que cette condition est remplie au moyen d'expériences pratiques dans tous les cas avant d'accorder une déclaration, à moins qu'un ou plusieurs canots sur un navire soient du même modèle alors il suffira d'éprouver un seul de ces canots. Les canots de sauvetage (sauf ceux de la section C) doivent être construits en forme de baleinière ; les deux bouts semblables. Dans les navires qui ont été équipés de canots avant l'entrée en vigueur des présentes règles, les canots à poupe carrée peuvent être acceptés s'ils remplissent les conditions de légèreté, mais tous les canots des sections A et B subséquemment fournis ou fournis à des navires neufs, doivent être construits en baleinière. Tous les canots pliants, et tous les canots pliants ou non, s'ils sont construits de quelque matière autre que du bois ou du métal, doivent être conformes à un modèle approuvé par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur avant d'être acceptés comme une partie des appareils de sauvetage exigés par les règles.

Art. 39. Tous les canots que les règles exigent d'être placés sous les daviers doivent être tenus prêts à servir, et lorsqu'ils sont remontés à bord, et placés sur les cales, ces cales doivent être construites de façon que le canot puisse être lancé en dehors du navire sans qu'il soit nécessaire de le lever par les palans—c'est-à-dire, il devra suffire de prendre le poids du canot.

Lorsque les règles exigent de porter un canot de la section C, et que les propriétaires préfèrent fournir un canot de la section A, ou de la section B, les équipements supplémentaires requis par la règle 6 pour les canots de la section A et section B ne seront pas obligatoires.

Dans quelques-uns des canots pliants il est difficile de poser un gouvernail : dans ce cas une rame bien ajustée sera acceptée et remplacera le gouvernail.

La flottabilité des canots de sauvetage de la section B doit être mi-partie en dedans et mi-partie en dehors du canot, et un canot dans lequel la flottabilité est totalement en dedans ou totalement en dehors ne sera pas accepté comme canot de la section B.

Dans le cas de canots de sauvetage de la section C, la moitié de la flottabilité doit être en dehors du canot, le restant peut être soit en dedans ou en dehors, ou partie en dedans et partie en dehors.

La flottabilité extérieure pour les canots de la section B doit consister en liège recouvert de canevas, et peinturé et attaché à l'extérieur du canot à la satisfaction des inspecteurs, tant qu'à sa position qu'à ses attaches. Aucune autre matière ne doit être employée que celle expressément sanctionnée par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur. La flottabilité extérieure doit être égale à au moins la moitié de la légèreté requise pour les canots de la section A, et la flottabilité intérieure et extérieure ensemble doit égaler en efficacité la flottabilité requise pour un canot de la section A. A cet effet 1·25 pieds cubique de liège doit être considéré l'équivalent de 1 pied cubique de boîte à air.

Les remarques qui précèdent s'appliquent à la flottabilité extérieure pour les canots de la section C, sauf que la flottabilité totale n'a besoin que d'être la moitié de celle pour les canots de la section A ou la section B. Lorsque le liège solide n'est pas attaché permanemment au côté d'un canot de manière que l'humidité ne puisse s'amasser entre les deux surfaces, il faudra qu'il soit enlevé chaque fois qu'une déclaration est accordée pour s'assurer (1) si le liège devient trempé ; (2) si l'humidité s'accumule entre le liège et l'enveloppe du canot, et de cette façon fait pourrir le bois. La considération (2) ne s'appliquera pas aux canots en métal.

Art. 41. Les règles exigent que les boîtes à air soient construites de bois, ou de cuivre ou de métal jaune au moins 18 onces au pied de superficie, ou d'autre matière durable. Le poids moyen des boîtes à air de cuivre de 18 onces est d'environ 5 livres par pied cubique, et si les boîtes à air d'autre matière excède ce poids, la capacité cubique des boîtes à air doit être augmentée en proportion.

Avec le temps le métal jaune devient cassant, le cuivre est bien préférable. Le zinc n'est pas une matière durable, et ne doit pas être accepté ; ni le fer galvanisé ni les boîtes d'acier doivent être acceptés pour des canots neufs.

Dans chaque district on doit prendre note de tous les navires dont les canots sont déjà équipés de boîtes à air en fer galvanisé ou en acier, dans l'intention de les inspecter fréquemment. Les boîtes à air en acier ou de fer antérieurement acceptées d'une moindre épaisseur que 21 onces ne doivent pas être rejetées tant qu'elles continueront en bon état.

Les espaces remplis de quelque matière ne doivent pas être considérés des espaces à air, à moins d'être spécialement approuvés par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur.

Les boîtes à air de cuivre ou de métal jaune ne doivent pas venir en contact avec l'enveloppe des canots de métal.

Art. 42. Dans le cas de chaloupes ou autres bateaux mus par la vapeur, qui sont portés comme partie de l'équipement de canots exigé par les règles faites en vertu de l'Acte de la marine marchande, une inspection du canot, de la machinerie, et des chaudières, et de leur ajustage et montage, devra être faite. Les chaloupes à vapeur ne doivent pas être acceptées comme partie de l'équipement de canots qui doivent être tenus sous des daviers.

Art. 44. Les appareils pour descendre les canots doivent être conformes à la règle 4 des Règlements Généraux, et de l'avis des inspecteurs, doivent être de nature à ne pas mettre la vie en danger. Ils doivent être éprouvés à chaque inspection pour renouvellement d'un certificat de passagers.

L'inspecteur devra aussi faire rapport au président lorsqu'un appareil de débrayage a été inspecté et jugé dangereux, et devra aussi expliquer au long dans ce rapport les détails qui le rendent impropre, suivant lui. Toutefois, aucun certificat formel ne sera accordé par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur ou ses officiers pour aucun genre spécial d'appareil.

Nulle partie de l'appareil qui est destinée à porter le poids du canot ne doit être faite de fonte.

Art. 45. Les radeaux de sauvetage devront être approuvés par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur; ils devront être munis d'un équipement convenable à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur, et ceci doit comprendre une ancre du large, au moins 20 brasses de aussière, et des rames en proportion de la grandeur du radeau.

Le nombre de personnes que peut porter un radeau de sauvetage approuvé pour la mer, est le nombre de personnes assises que le radeau peut contenir sans danger pourvu toujours que pour chaque personne ainsi portée il y ait au moins trois pieds cubiques de forts compartiments imperméables à l'air.

Pour s'assurer qu'un appareil flottant est suffisant pour un certain nombre de personnes, on divise par 32 le nombre de livres de fer qu'il est capable de supporter dans de l'eau douce, pourvu aussi que les côtés et les bouts donnent un espace d'un pied horizontal pour chaque personne que le radeau est censé capable de porter et qu'une corde soit attachée tout autour pour pouvoir s'y cramponner. Ces appareils flottants n'auront pas besoin d'être gonflés avant de servir, et seront d'une construction approuvée.

Art. 46. Les inspecteurs verront à ce que les radeaux et les appareils flottants soient marqués de manière à indiquer clairement le nombre de personnes adultes qu'ils sont réputés contenir, tel que déterminé par le contenu net en pieds cubiques, d'après la proportion dans les articles 31 et 45, et aucun radeau ni appareil flottant ne sera réputé finalement approuvé avant d'être ainsi marqué d'une manière ferme et lisible.

Art. 47. Les instructions au sujet des canots de sauvetage s'appliquent également aux radeaux de sauvetage et appareils flottants, quant à la longueur, poids, et entourage des boîtes à air, sauf que les radeaux de sauvetage et appareils flottants n'étant destinés à servir que dans le besoin extrême, et en conséquence non exposés à la même usure que les canots de sauvetage, un poids minimum de 16 onces de cuivre ou de métal jaune peut être accepté.

Art. 48. Aucune ceinture de sauvetage ne sera acceptée qui n'est pas capable de flotter sur l'eau douce pendant 24 heures avec 15 livres de fer y attachées. Elle devra être échancrée de 2 pouces sous les aisselles, et ajustées de façon à ne pas se déranger une fois mises. Si d'autre matière que du liège solide est employée pour faire flotter, elle devra être spécialement approuvée par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur. Toutes les nouvelles ceintures de sauvetage seront munies de bretelles ajustables.

Art. 50. Les ceintures de sauvetage, bouées de sauvetage et autre appareil flottant doivent être soigneusement examinés à chaque inspection, et les inspecteurs doivent s'assurer que le matériel flottant n'est pas trempé, et que les courroies et cordes sont suffisantes. On doit apporter une attention spéciale à la question de flottabilité dans le cas d'une ceinture de sauvetage approuvée, qui n'est pas construite de liège solide.

Art. 51. L'assortiment complet d'appareils de sauvetage exigé pour le nombre maximum de personnes pour lequel une déclaration est accordée, doit toujours être à bord lors de l'inspection. Si aucuns des appareils sont enlevés lorsque le vaisseau ne porte pas son nombre complet de passagers, la responsabilité retombera sur le propriétaire. Lorsqu'une réduction est faite dans le nombre total de passagers pour lequel logement est fourni, à cause de l'insuffisance des appareils de sauvetage, le nombre actuellement réduit de personnes que peut porter chaque classe sera mentionné dans la déclaration.

PARTIE IX.

PRÉCAUTIONS CONTRE LES INCENDIES.

1. Il y aura à bord de tout bateau à vapeur faisant le service des passagers, soit par mer, soit sur une baie, un lac, un fleuve ou une rivière, et placés dans un endroit convenable, au moins vingt-cinq bons seaux à incendie en métal ou en cuir, cinq haches et six bonnes lanternes, le tout approuvé par l'inspecteur; cependant, les bateaux à vapeur transportant des passagers, dont le tonnage brut sera de plus de soixante-quinze tonneaux et de moins de cent cinquante tonneaux, n'auront pas besoin d'avoir à bord plus de douze seaux à incendie, et les bateaux à vapeur transportant des passagers, dont le tonnage brut sera de soixante-quinze tonneaux ou moins, et les remorqueurs à vapeur d'un tonnage brut de moins de cent cinquante tonneaux, ne seront pas tenus d'avoir à bord plus de six seaux à incendie, ou plus de trois haches.

3. Tout bateau à vapeur employé au transport des passagers n'aura pas moins de trois pompes foulantes à doubles effet avec cylindres d'au moins quatre pouces de diamètre et une course de pas moins de six pouces ; deux de ces pompes fonctionneront à bras et l'autre par la vapeur, si celle-ci peut y être appliquée sans qu'on ait recours à la machine principale, sinon, toutes trois fonctionneront à bras : l'une d'elles sera placée près de la poupe, une autre près de la proue, la troisième au milieu du bateau ; chacune sera munie d'un boyau bien adapté, d'une longueur égale aux deux tiers au moins de celle du bateau, et garni d'une bonne lance ; et elle devra être toujours tenue parfaitement en ordre, libre de tout embarras de fret ou autre, avec les boyaux accouplés et prêts à servir ; chaque pompe et chaque accouplement seront munis d'une clé ou tourne-à-gauche, qui y sera attachée par une chaîne ; et chacune des dites pompes sera alimentée d'eau par un tuyau s'y rattachant et prenant l'eau sur le côté de la coque, assez bas pour être immergé en tout temps lorsque le navire est à flot.

6. Dans les bateaux à vapeur à passagers dont le port n'excédera pas deux cents tonneaux bruts et n'exigeant qu'une seule pompe, cette pompe sera placée à l'arrière, à moins que l'espace à l'avant ne soit libre et ne permette d'avoir un accès facile à la pompe et au boyau, auquel cas la pompe pourra être placée à l'avant.

7. Toutes pompes à vapeur devront avoir un tuyau convenable de communication avec la cale, garni d'une crépine ou boîte à vase appropriée ; et il y aura aussi un siphon à vapeur, éjecteur ou autre appareil propre à épuiser l'eau de cale.

8. Si, dans un bateau à vapeur, il a été posé un ou plusieurs tubes de métal d'un diamètre non moindre que celui du boyau à incendie, ces tubes étant en communication avec une ou plusieurs pompes foulantes, et étant munis de prises d'eau, placées à trente pieds au plus l'une de l'autre ou de l'une des extrémités du bateau, et disposées de manière que le tuyau s'y ajuste aisément,—il ne sera pas nécessaire que le boyau ait plus que la longueur suffisante pour atteindre de quelqu'une de ces prises à l'une ou l'autre extrémité du bateau ; et chaque prise d'eau devra être munie d'une soupape d'arrêt ou d'un robinet d'arrêt, et des clefs ou tourne-à-gauche devront être convenablement fixés ou retenus par une chaîne à chaque soupape d'arrêt, robinet ou prise, de manière qu'un ou plusieurs boyaux d'attache puissent fonctionner au besoin.

Aucun arbre moteur, arbre de couche, arbre droit ou arbre des roues ayant un moindre diamètre que celui trouvé par la formule suivante, ne devrait être accepté sans avoir d'abord soumis le cas au président du Bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur. On trouvera que les fabricants de première classe posent généralement des arbres moteurs plus gros que ceux obtenus par la formule.

Pour les machines mixtes à condenser avec deux cylindres ou plus, lorsque les axes coudés ne sont pas suspendus :

Lorsque S = le diamètre de l'arbre en pouces.

Lorsque $D^2$ = le carré du diamètre d'un cylindre à basse pression en pouces, ou la somme des carrés des diamètres dans les cas où il y a deux cylindres à basse pression ou plus.

Lorsque P = la pression absolue en livres par pouce carré, c'est-à-dire la pression de chaudière plus 15 livres.

Lorsque C = la longueur de l'axe coudé en pouces.

Lorsque $f$ = la constante d'après la table suivante.

NOTE.—Les cylindres à pression intermédiaire ne paraissent pas dans la formule.

Pour les machines à condenser ordinaires, avec un ou deux cylindres et plus, alors que les axes coudés ne sont pas suspendus :—

$$S = \sqrt[3]{\frac{C \times P \times D^2}{3 \times f}}$$

$$P = \frac{3 \times f \times S^3}{C \times D^2}$$

Lorsque S = le diamètre en pouces.

P = la pression absolue en livres par pouce carré, c'est-à-dire la pression de la chaudière plus 15 livres.

C = la longueur de l'axe coudé en pouces.

| * Pour deux axes coudés. Angles entre les axes. | Pour arbres moteurs et arbres de propulsion. | | Pour arbres droits. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 90° | Pour les machines à roues d'un modèle ordinaire, multipliez la constante dans cette colonne pour l'angle des axes coudés par 1·4. | 1,047 | 1,221 |
| 100° | | 966 | 1,128 |
| 110° | | 904 | 1,055 |
| 120° | | 855 | 997 |
| 130° | | 817 | 953 |
| 140° | | 788 | 919 |
| 150° | | 766 | 894 |
| 160° | | 751 | 877 |
| 170° | | 743 | 867 |
| 180° | | 740 | 864 |
| Pour trois axes coudés 120°. | | 1,110 | 1,295 |

* Lorsqu'il n'y a qu'un axe coudé, les constantes applicables sont celles dans la table vis-à-vis 180°.

RÈGLEMENTS CONCERNANT L'EPREUVE DE NOUVELLES MACHINES À BORD DE VAPEURS À PASSAGERS.

RÈGLES POUR CALCULER LA FORCE NOMINALE EN CHEVAUX DES MACHINES DE MARINE.

POUR LES MACHINES ORDINAIRES À CONDENSER.

D = le diamètre du cylindre en pouces.

N = le nombre de cylindres.

POUR LES MACHINES MIXTES À CONDENSER.

D = le diamètre du cylindre à basse pression en pouces

$d$ = le diamètre du cylindre à haute pression en pouces

N = le nombre de cylindres à basse pression.

$n$ = le nombre de cylindres à haute pression.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

[Ref. 976,342.]

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

Wednesday, the 28th day of December, 1904.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

On a Report dated 5th December, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, stating that the New Walrond Ranche Company, Limited, are the successors of Sir John Walrond and the Walrond Ranche Company, to whom leases were issued of certain grazing lands in the District of Alberta.

By an Order in Council dated the 22nd of April, 1893, provision was made that leases for grazing purposes of Dominion Lands which did not provide for the withdrawal of lands for settlement purposes would be terminated on and after the 31st day of December, 1896, and that the holders of such leases would then, or at any other time during the interval be permitted to purchase not in excess of ten per cent of their leaseholds at the rate of $1.25 per acre, payable one-tenth down and the balance in nine equal annual instalments, with interest at the rate of 6% per annum upon the unpaid balances.

The Minister further states that under the provisions of this Order in Council The New Walrond Ranche Company were entitled to purchase ten per cent of the area of their leaseholds at the above rate, but application was made for only a portion of the land within the period specified in the Order in Council. Application has since been made by this company for permission to acquire 17,000 acres of land under the provisions of the Order in Council of the 22nd of April, 1893, above referred to, which tract includes certain lands which have been reserved for stock watering purposes. Mr. W. W. Stuart, Inspector of Ranches, has reported that, as the country surrounding these stock watering reserves is for the most part under the control of the New Walrond Ranche Company, the reserves are of no value as such to the general public.

The Minister recommends that he be authorized to sell to the New Walrond Ranche Company the 17,000 acres of land for which they have applied under the terms of the Order in Council of the 22nd of April, 1893, the sale to be antedated to the 31st of December, 1896, and interest on the purchase money at the prescribed rate to be charged from that date to the date of payment; and that in view of the report made by the Inspector of Ranches, the lands included in the application which are reserved for stock watering purposes, be withdrawn from such reservations and sold to the company at the regulation price of $3.00 an acre, such area to form a portion of the 17,000 acres referred to, but the date of the sale to be that of the Order in Council authorizing the same.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
30-4 Clerk of the Privy Council.

[Ref. 475,413].

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

Friday, the 23rd day of December, 1904.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

The Governor General in Council is pleased to order that the paragraph added to section 30 of the Regulations govering Placer Mining in the Yukon Territory by the Order in Council of the 31st of May, 1902, shall be and the same is hereby rescinded and the following substituted therefor :—

"Every entry made in any of the Mining Recorder's "books shall show the date upon which such entry is "made. No fee shall be charged for obtaining infor- "mation from the Mining Recorder with respect to "mining claims, and documents filed shall be open to "public inspection, but for copies of any documents "a fee of $2.50 shall be charged up to 200 words and "an additional fee of fifty cents for each extra 100 "words."

JOHN J. McGEE,
29-4 Clerk of the Privy Council.

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

Tuesday, the 6th day of December, 1904.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

The Governor General in Council is pleased, in virtue of the provisions of section 29 of the Act 3 Edward VII, chapter 11, The Animal Contagious Diseases Act, 1903, to make the following Regulations relating to Hog Cholera and Swine Plague, and the same are hereby made and established accordingly.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

REGULATIONS RELATING TO HOG CHOLERA AND SWINE PLAGUE.

1. Every owner, breeder or importer, or dealer in, hogs shall on perceiving the appearance of Hog Cholera or Swine Plague amongst the hogs owned by him, or under his special care, give immediate notice to the Minister of Agriculture, and to the nearest Veterinary Inspector of the Department of Agriculture of the facts discovered by him as aforesaid.

2. Every Veterinary Surgeon practising in Canada shall immediately on ascertaining or suspecting that a hog is affected with Hog Cholera or Swine Plague, give similar notice to the Minister and to the nearest Veterinary Inspector.

3. In the North-west Territories, the notice required to be given by the two preceding sections of these Regulations shall be deemed sufficient if given to the Commissioner, Assistant Commissioner, or other officer of the Royal North-west Mounted Police, or to one of the Veterinary Staff Sergeants of the said Force.

4. Hogs affected with Hog Cholera or Swine Plague, or which have been in contact with, or close proximity to hogs affected with either of the said diseases shall, on an order signed by a duly appointed Inspector of the Department of Agriculture, be forthwith slaughtered, and the carcases disposed of as in such order prescribed.

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

Saturday, the 17th day of December, 1904.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

ON a Report dated 29th November, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, submitting that in February, 1900, Mr. James Haddock, of Dawson, applied for a lease under the provisions of the regulations then in force, of an hydraulic mining location situated on Dublin Gulch, a tributary of Haggart Creek, a branch of the McQuesten River, in the Yukon Territory, and certificates were issued by the proper officers of the Department of the Interior at Dawson to the effect that it had been proved that the applicant himself, or a person acting for him, had been upon and actually prospected the ground included in this location, and that the ground included in such location was not being worked and was not suitable to be worked under the regulations governing placer mining.

The Minister states that owing to a succession of delays which took place in connection with this application, through no fault of the applicant, it was not granted up to the 2nd of February, 1904, on which date, by an Order of the Governor in Council, the regulations governing the issue of leases for hydraulic mining purposes in the Yukon Territory were rescinded, but the Minister of the Interior was still authorized to deal in accordance with the provisions of the regulations with all leases already issued, and with all applications already granted.

The Minister further states that in August, 1903, application was made to the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory for instructions for the survey of the location applied for, but the applicant was informed that as his application had not been granted by the Department of the Interior, instructions for the survey of the location could not be issued. Upon further consideration, however, the Commissioner authorized the issue of the instructions for the survey of the location, upon the understanding that the issue thereof would not convey to the applicant any guarantee that the application for a lease would be favourably considered, and this provision was inserted in the instructions for the survey. The survey, however, was made, and the returns thereof were approved by the Director of Surveys at Dawson, and were forwarded to the Department of the Interior at Ottawa.

That the Commissioner in May last reported that the location applied for by Mr. Haddock is, in his opinion, quite unlikely to be worked except by hydraulic mining methods ; that, if it were feasible, there would be no objection to granting an hydraulic mining lease for the location applied for by Mr. Haddock ; and that he is quite convinced that mining operations will never be carried on upon Dublin Gulch to any extent, unless some large operators obtain the property and work it on an extensive scale by hydraulic methods.

That as it appears from the evidence on file in the Department of the Interior that the applicant made an earnest effort to have his application granted during the period that the regulations were in force, and as the provisions of the regulations under which the application was made have been fully complied with, the Minister is of the opinion that the interests of placer miners in that locality would not suffer if the tract for which Mr. Haddock has applied were included in an hydraulic mining lease.

The Minister, therefore, recommends that he be authorized to issue a lease in favour of Mr. Haddock of the location, as shown on the plan of survey thereof filed in the Department of the Interior, excluding thereout any placer mining claims for which entries may have been granted, and which are in force on the date of the issue of such lease, and he further recommends that provision shall be made in the lease that the lessee shall, during the first two years from the date of the issue, complete the ditches and flumes necessary for the conveyance of water for the efficient working of the location by hydraulic mining methods, and shall commence such hydraulic mining on a sufficiently extensive scale within that period, otherwise the lease issued in his favour will be null and void ; and that if the location is at any time worked by any method other than hydraulic mining or dredging, the lease will be subject to cancellation. The lease issued in favour of the applicant to be on the prescribed form, with such additions and alterations as he, the Minister of the Interior, may find it necessary to make and shall provide for an expenditure of at least $10,000 within one year from the date of the lease.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

28-4 Clerk of the Privy Council.

ON a Memorandum dated 28th November, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, stating with reference to an Order in Council dated 25th August, 1891, vesting certain swamp lands in Her late Majesty the Queen for the purposes of the Province of Manitoba,—

That Legal Subdivision 13 of Section 14, Township 13, Range 13, West Principal Meridian, was included through oversight in schedule attached to the said Order in Council, but this land was not available for the purpose of transfer to the Province as it was patented in the name of Kenneth McKenzie by patent bearing date 7th March, 1881.

The Minister therefore recommends that the Order in Council dated 25th August, 1891, vesting certain lands in Her late Majesty the Queen for the purposes of the Province of Manitoba, be amended by eliminating from the schedule attached to the said Order in Council, Legal Subdivision 13, of Section 14, Township 13, Range 13, West Principal Meridian.

Commander J. F. Parry, R.N., H.M.S. "Egeria", reports the existence of the following shoals in the approach to Dodds Narrows from Stuart channel:—

This shoal is usually marked by kelp.

(b.) An isolated rock, with 12 feet over it at L.W.O.S. lies $\frac{7}{10}$ cable off the south shore of Mudge island, at the southern entrance to Dodds Narrows.

From this rock the north tangent of Round island bears S. 56° E. distant 8 $\frac{7}{10}$ cables, and the detached islet off the south side of Mudge island bears N. 79° E., distant four cables.

This rock is surrounded by deep water, and is not marked by kelp.

(c.) A shoal, with least water of 24 feet at L.W. O.S. was found 2 $\frac{5}{10}$ cables to the S.E. of Round island.

From the shoalest head, the small islet just south of Round island bears S. 79° W. distant 2 $\frac{7}{10}$ cables, and the islet off the S. side of Mudge island (previously mentioned in b) bears N. 43° W., 9 cables.

This shoal is of small extent, is surrounded by depths of from 7 to 12 fathoms, and is not marked by kelp. N. to M. No. 128 (335) 27-12-04.

PARTIE I.

Art. 1. Tout inspecteur pourra, chaque fois qu'il le jugera nécessaire, et un inspecteur devra, au moins une fois chaque année, éprouver la chaudière de tout bateau à vapeur par une pression hydrostatique dans la proportion de cent cinquante à cent livres permises comme pression effective, et la température de l'eau dont il sera fait usage dans l'épreuve n'excédera pas soixante degrés Fahrenheit, et il devra s'assurer, par un examen personnel et des épreuves expérimentales, que cette chaudière est bien faite et que ses matériaux sont sains et sans défauts. Le propriétaire du bateau à vapeur fournira la pompe à bras et les appareils nécessaires pour faire l'épreuve, et l'équipage du navire les fera fonctionner ; et nul inspecteur de chaudières et machines ne fera ni ne donnera aucun certificat au propriétaire ou au capitaine d'un bateau à vapeur à moins qu'il n'ait préalablement soumis la chaudière ou les chaudières du bateau à cette épreuve hydrostatique et à cet examen tel que prescrit par le présent.

Art. 2. Avant qu'une chaudière ne soit soumise à l'épreuve par la pression hydrostatique, elle sera ouverte pour la visite de l'inspecteur ; les portes du trou d'homme et les plaques de la vidange seront enlevées, l'extérieur et l'intérieur de la chaudière seront nettoyés, les grilles enlevées et le fourneau déchargé et balayé, afin qu'il puisse en faire une inspection satisfaisante et complète ; lorsque les cloisons seront placées de manière à empêcher une inspection minutieuse de la tôle de la chaudière, elles seront enlevées ; et le propriétaire ou capitaine du bateau veillera à ce que toutes ces dispositions soient prises avant de demander une inspection.

Art. 3. Chaque fois que l'épreuve n'aura pas été satisfaisante, les défauts seront réparés et la chaudière sera soumise à une seconde épreuve, qui devra être satisfaisante avant qu'un certificat ne soit délivré.

Art. 4. L'inspecteur doit fixer la pression effective des chaudières au moyen d'une série de calculs de résistance de leurs diverses parties et en raison de la nature de la main-d'œuvre et des matériaux qui les composent.

Art. 5. Avant d'éprouver une chaudière, les inspecteurs devront l'examiner, faire les mesurages et calculs nécessaires pour s'assurer que la pression effective est conforme aux présents règlements ; ces instructions s'appliquent aux surchauffeurs, récipients à vapeur et chemises à eau aussi bien qu'aux chaudières.

Art. 6. Si une chaudière est trop chaude pour qu'un inspecteur puisse l'examiner efficacement avec sûreté et facilité, il devra refuser de l'examiner, et refuser absolument d'accorder un certificat jusqu'à ce qu'il en ait fait un examen satisfaisant.

Art. 7. Pour s'assurer de la force et de l'état d'une chaudière, à l'intérieur, l'inspecteur pourra, s'il le juge nécessaire, y faire percer des trous, et pourra aussi demander qu'on lui fournisse au moyen de dessins et de devis des différentes parties de la chaudière, des renseignements suffisants sur sa construction pour lui permettre au moyen de calculs et d'un examen de déterminer leur force de résistance.

Art. 8. Pendant la confection de toute chaudière destinée à servir sur des bateaux à vapeur en Canada, le fabricant devra notifier l'inspecteur du district dans lequel elle est destinée à être employée, ou l'inspecteur le plus à portée, qu'il peut la venir inspecter, et il devra, en tout temps pendant cette confection, donner à l'inspecteur libre accès à la chaudière.

Art. 9. Afin d'empêcher qu'il ne s'élève de différends après qu'une chaudière aura été commencée, le fabricant ou l'entrepreneur, devra fournir à l'inspecteur, pour son approbation quant à son dessin et sa construction en général, les détails relatifs à sa construction, au moyen de dessins et de devis; l'inspecteur, lorsqu'il aura reçu ces plans ou devis et les aura approuvés veillera à ce qu'ils soient suivis dans la construction, ou, qu'il y soit fait des déductions comme le veut l'article 25. Le présent règlement s'appliquera aussi aux chaudières subissant des changements.

Art. 10. Aucune chaudière ne devra être faite de tôle à chaudière, soit en fer soit en acier, qui n'aura pas été estampée du nom ou de la marque du fabricant, et nul certificat ne sera délivré pour une chaudière faite en entier ou en partie de tôle ne portant pas une pareille marque; et avant qu'un certificat puisse être délivré pour une chaudière, le fabricant devra fournir à l'inspecteur une déclaration, attestée sous serment, du nom du fabricant de la tôle employée, de la qualité de celle-ci et de la qualité de tous les matériaux employés dans la confection de la chaudière; ce serment pourra être prêté devant un juge de paix en Canada, ou devant un notaire public, et attesté sous son sceau officiel, s'il est prêté en dehors du Canada; pourvu toujours que, dans les cas où cette déclaration sous serment, par le fabricant de la chaudière, ne pourrait être obtenue par suite de son décès, ou pour quelque autre cause jugée suffisante par l'inspecteur, l'affidavit de deux fabricants de chaudières pratiques qui auront examiné la chaudière et fait rapport sur la qualité des matériaux qui y ont été employés, celle de l'ouvrage et la force de la chaudière, sera, s'il est trouvé satisfaisant par l'inspecteur, considéré comme suffisant et tiendra lieu de la déclaration requise du fabricant de la chaudière.

Art. 11. Aucune chaudière, ni aucun tuyau s'y rattachant, ne sera approuvé s'il est fait en entier ou en partie de mauvais matériaux, ou si l'ouvrage est défectueux ou s'il est dangereux à cause de sa forme, de sa vétusté, de sa détérioration par l'usage, ou pour toute autre cause.

Art. 12. Les inspecteurs veilleront à ce que toutes les chaudières neuves et les chaudières qui auront été sorties d'un navire pour être réparées, soient éprouvées au moyen de la pression hydrostatique dans la proportion d'au moins un et demi de la pression effective qui sera permise, avant que les chaudières ne soient placées dans le navire, et éprouver l'ouvrage, etc., mais la pression effective sera établie par la force des armatures, l'épaisseur de la plaque, la force des rivets, etc., et non pas par l'épreuve hydrostatique.

Art. 13. L'épreuve hydrostatique ne devra, dans aucun cas, excéder la proportion d'un et demi la pression effective permise, et ne doit jamais être appliquée avant que la chaudière n'ait été ouverte pour l'examen, ni avant que la force de toutes les parties de la chaudière n'ait été calculée d'après les mesurages nécessaires pris sur la chaudière même.

Art. 14. Lorsqu'une chaudière est partiellement inspectée par un inspecteur, et que l'inspection est complétée et le certificat accordé par un autre, si l'inspecteur qui était présent à l'épreuve de la chaudière par la pression hydrostatique a l'occasion de l'examiner à l'intérieur et à l'extérieur après l'épreuve, cet inspecteur fixera la pression qui sera permise sur la chaudière, en ayant soin d'informer les propriétaires, fabricants ou agents, et l'inspecteur qui l'a partiellement inspectée, de la pression qu'il croit devoir être permise sur cette chaudière, et l'inspecteur qui a partiellement inspecté la chaudière devra informer l'inspecteur qui complète l'inspection de tous les détails de son inspection de la chaudière.

Art. 16. La pression permise sur la chaudière ne doit jamais, dans aucune circonstance, être augmentée, à moins que l'inspecteur n'ait préalablement écrit au président du bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, pour en obtenir la permission. Dans les cas où un inspecteur croira qu'une plus forte pression peut avec sûreté être permise, il devra en informer l'inspecteur qui aura inspecté la chaudière en dernier lieu; et si, en apprenant pourquoi la pression actuelle avait autrefois été permise, l'inspecteur est encore d'opinion qu'elle peut être augmentée, il devra communiquer tous les faits au président; mais comme il est dit plus haut, la pression ne devra, dans aucun cas, être augmentée tant que la question n'aura pas été décidée par le président.

Art. 18. Un inspecteur ne déclarera pas qu'une chaudière est sûre à moins qu'il n'en connaisse tout à fait la construction, les matériaux et la main-d'œuvre. Il devra par conséquent prendre des précautions avant de s'aventurer à sanctionner une chaudière qu'il n'aura pas été appelé à inspecter, avant qu'elle ait été terminée et mise en place dans le navire.

Art 19. Dans le cas de chaudières neuves, les inspecteurs autoriseront une tension n'excédant pas 7,000 livres par pouce carré de la section nette des entretoises en fer plein filetées supportant des surfaces planes; mais la tension ne devra pas dépasser 6,000 livres si les entretoises ont été soudées ou travaillées au feu.

Art. 20. (a.) La pression sur les plaques formant des surfaces planes est déterminée par la formule suivante :—

$$\frac{C \times (T+1)^2}{S-6} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en seizièmes de pouces.

S = la surface supportée en pouces carrés.

C = la constante déterminée suivant les circonstances suivantes :—

C = 100 lorsque les tôles ne sont pas exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, et que les entretoises sont munies d'écrous et de rondelles, ces dernières ayant au moins trois fois le diamètre de l'entretoise et les deux tiers de l'épaisseur de la tôle qu'elles recouvrent.

C = 60, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, la vapeur étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont munies d'écrous et de rondelles, celles-ci ayant au moins trois fois le diamètre de l'entretoise et deux tiers de l'épaisseur de la tôle qu'elles recouvrent.

C = 140 pour le fer, et 175 pour les plaques d'acier.

T et S, comme ci-dessus.

C = 60, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, l'eau étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont vissées dans la tôle, leurs extrémités étant rivées en forme d'une tête résistante.

C = 36, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, la vapeur étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont vissées dans la tôle, et avec leurs extrémités rivées en forme de tête résistante.

$$48000 \times \frac{T^2}{P^2} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
P = le plus grand écartement des boulons en pouces.

Art. 21. Les inspecteurs ne doivent en aucun cas autoriser un effort de compression sur les plaques à tubes de plus de 9,000 livres, c'est-à-dire plus grand que celui qui est donné par la formule suivante :—

$$\frac{(D-d)\ T \times 18{,}000}{W \quad D} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

D = la plus petite distance horizontale entre les centres des tubes, en pouces.
d = le diamètre intérieur des tubes ordinaires, en pouces.
T = l'épaisseur de la plaque à tubes, en pouces.
W = la largeur en pouces, de la chambre de combustion, entre la plaque à tubes, et le dos de la boîte à feu, ou distance entre les plaques à tubes de la chambre de combustion si la chaudière est à double face et si cette chambre est commune aux foyers des deux extrémités.

Art. 22. Lorsque les tirants empêchent l'inspecteur d'entrer dans une chaudière, il doit ordonner leur enlèvement; il doit aussi s'assurer qu'ils ont été convenablement replacés avant de délivrer son certificat.

Art. 23. Dans le cas de rivure ordinaire en zigzag, la force à travers la tôle diagonalement entre les rivets est égale à la force horizontale entre les rivets, lorsque l'écartement diagonal égale six dixièmes de l'écartement horizontal plus quatre-dixièmes du diamètre du rivet.

Art. 24. Lorsque l'extérieur du fond d'une chaudière ne pourra pas être parfaitement inspecté sans cela, la chaudière devra être soulevée au moins une fois tous les quatre ans.

B·3 sera ajouté lorsque tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures longitudinales, mais forés hors de place avant le cintrage.

S‡·1—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont à joints rabattus et sont à double rivetage
T·2—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont à joints rabattus et sont à un simple rivetage.
U·25—sera ajouté lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont rabattues et que les rebords des plaques ne sont pas complètement en dessous ou en dessus.
V·3—sera ajouté lorsque la chaudière est d'une telle longueur qu'elle nécessite un foyer à chaque bout, ou lorsqu'elle est d'une longueur inaccoutumée, comme les chaudières à carneaux, et que les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties tel que décrit vis-à-vis P, R et S; mais naturellement lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont telles que décrites vis-à-vis Q et T, V·3 deviendra V·4.
W*4—sera ajouté si les sutures ne sont pas convenablement croisées.
X*·4—sera ajouté lorsque le fer est sous quelque rapport d'une qualité douteuse, et que l'inspecteur n'est pas convaincu qu'il est de la meilleure qualité.
Y†·1·65—sera ajouté si la chaudière n'est pas ouverte à l'inspection pendant tout le temps de sa construction.

(b.) La force des joints ordinaires sera établie d'après la méthode suivante :—

(i.) Le diamètre des rivets ne doit pas être moindre que l'épaisseur des plaques dont est faite l'enveloppe, mais on s'écartera, là où les plaques sont minces, ou lorsque des joints rabattus ou des couvre-joints simples sont adoptés, que le diamètre des rivets doit excéder l'épaisseur des plaques. On trouvera à l'annexe et à l'article 43, une formule pour les joints rivés et écartement maximum de la mesure, et aussi diagrammes des diverses descriptions de joints rivés.

*Les cylindres à vapeur ayant des fonds ségmiformes ou sphériques à chaque bout, d'un rayon n'excédant pas le diamètre du cylindre auquel ils sont attachés, et qui ne sont pas exposés au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, peuvent être acceptés sans entretoises, s'ils sont théoriquement égaux en force à la formule ci-dessous :—

C = la force de tension de la plaque en livres.
T = l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
R = le rayon du fonds en pouces.
F = 4 lorsque les fonds sont pressés à la machine et recuits, et 5 lorsque les fonds sont façonnés à la main et recuits.

$$\frac{C \times T}{R \times F} = \text{la pression effective permise.}$$

(e.) Le diamètre intérieur de la ceinture extérieure de l'enveloppe cylindrique d'une chaudière sera pris comme mesure de son diamètre.

Art. 27 (a.) Dans les surchauffeurs cylindriques la force des joints et le facteur de sûreté se trouvent de la même manière que pour les chaudières cylindriques et les récipients à vapeur, mais au lieu de prendre 47,000 livres comme force de tension du fer, on prend 30,000 liv. à moins que la chaleur ou la flamme ne frappe la plaque à angle droit ou à peu près; dans ce dernier cas on y substituera 22,400.

Trouvez l'aire d'une armature directe nécessaire pour supporter la surface, multipliez cette aire par la longueur de l'armature diagonale, et divisez le produit par la longueur d'une ligne tirée à angle droit avec la surface supportée jusqu'à l'extrémité de l'armature diagonale, le quotient sera l'aire de l'armature diagonale voulue. Lorsque des entretoises en goussets sont employées, leur aire devra excéder celle trouvée par le moyen ci-haut.

Art. 29. (a.) Lorsque le ciel des chambres de combustion ou autres parties d'une chaudière sont supportées par de solides traverses rectangulaires, la formule suivante, employée par le Conseil du Commerce Impérial, sera utile pour trouver la pression effective permise sur les traverses, en supposant qu'elles ne seront pas soumises à une plus haute température que la chaleur ordinaire de la vapeur, et que les extrémités sont ajustées aux rebords de la plaque de tubulure et à la plaque du fond de la chambre de combustion.

W = la largeur en pouces de la chambre de combustion.
P = l'écartement des boulons d'appui, en pouces.
D = la distance entre les traverses, d'axe en axe, en pouces.
L = la longueur de traverse en pieds.
d = la hauteur de la traverse en pouces.
T = l'épaisseur de la traverse en pouces.
N = le nombre de boulons d'appui.

$$\frac{C = N \times 1000}{(N + 1)} = \text{lorsque le nombre de boulons est impair.}$$

$$C = \frac{(N + 1)\, 1000}{N + 2} = \text{lorsque le nombre de boulons est pair.}$$

(b.) La pression effective pour les boulons d'appui et pour la plaque entre eux, sera établie au moyen de les règles prescrites pour les armatures et tôles ordinaires.

Art. 30 Les bouts plats de toutes chaudières, jusqu'où la vapeur s'étend, et les extrémités des surchauffeurs, seront munis d'écrans ou plaques de protection, lorsqu'ils sont exposés au gaz échauffés dans la culotte du courant de flammes, vu que toutes plaques exposées au choc direct de la chaleur ou de la flamme sont sujettes à être endommagées à moins d'être couvertes par l'eau.

Si l'on se propose d'employer de l'acier dans des surchauffeurs, les détails devraient être soumis au Bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, ou au président, si le Bureau ne siège pas, pour sa considération ; mais on ne doit jamais encourager un tel emploi ; ceci s'applique aux courants de flammes non munis d'écrans de toutes les chaudières, y compris les petites chaudières alimentaires verticales ordinaires.

Art. 31. Les petites chaudières alimentaires attachées ou reliées d'une manière quelconque à de grandes chaudières, ou à des machines employées pour faire marcher un navire, doivent être inspectées et garnies de la même manière que les grandes chaudières, et avoir un indicateur d'eau et un manomètre et tous autres accessoires complets, et sont, quant aux soupapes de sûreté, sujettes aux mêmes règlements que les grandes chaudières; et aucune soupape de sûreté, ne sera permise, sauf tel que prescrit par les règlements concernant l'inspection des soupapes de sûreté.

Art. 32. (a.) Aucune chaudière ou fourneau à vapeur ne sera construit, ajusté ou arrangé de façon à ce que l'échappement de la vapeur par la soupape de sûreté puisse être complètement ou partiellement intercepté par l'action d'aucune autre soupape.

(b.) Une soupape d'arrêt doit toujours être placée entre la chaudière et le tuyau à vapeur, et (lorsque deux chaudières ou plus sont reliées par un récipient à vapeur ou surchauffeur) entre chaque chaudière et le surchauffeur ou récipient à vapeur. Le but de ceci est évident, savoir: éviter que toutes les chaudières soient affectées par le défaut d'une seule d'entre elles. Le col des soupapes d'arrêt sera aussi court que possible.

Art. 33. (a.) Chaque chaudière sera munie d'un indicateur d'eau en verre, de deux robinets d'essai au moins, et d'un manomètre, c'est-à-dire, chaque chaudière doit être munie de tous les accessoires au complet, de même que s'il n'y avait qu'une seule chaudière.

Art. 34. Les inspecteurs auront grand soin de ne donner aucune sanction officielle à aucun nouvel arrangement ou construction de chaudières à vapeur, dites "de marine," sans avoir d'abord obtenu la permission par écrit du président; ils ne devront pas non plus donner aucune approbation par écrit en faveur d'aucune invention ou arrangement, à moins d'y être autorisé par le président ; et chaque fois qu'ils apprendront qu'une invention ou arrangement nouveau doit être appliqué à un navire qui doit porter un certificat pour transporter des passagers, ils devront aussitôt que possible s'en procurer des plans et des devis et les soumettre au président.

Art. 35. Les fourneaux circulaires avec des joints longitudinaux soudés ou faits avec des bandes bout-à-bout, à double rivetage ou doubles bandes bout-à-bout à simple rivetage :—

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times \text{par le carré de l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces.}}{\text{Longueur en pieds} \quad 10 \times \text{par le diamètre en pouces}} = \text{la pression effective par pouce carré, pourvu qu'il n'excède par ce qui est trouvé par la formule suivante :—}$$

La seconde formule limite la force broyante sur la matière à 4,500 livres par pouce carré.

Dans le cas de boîtes à feu droites de petites chaudières alimentaires ou autres semblables, on déduira 10 pour cent de la constante donnée plus haut applicable aux diverses catégories de travail.

Art. 36. (a.) Les règles suivantes devront servir de guide aux inspecteurs lorsque la qualité générale de l'acier aura été jugée convenable pour les chaudières marines.

(c.) L'inspecteur n'est pas obligé d'être témoin de ces essais, mais il doit tenir la main à ce que toutes les tôles et barres soient marquées comme elles doivent l'être.

(j.) L'inspecteur n'est pas obligé d'être témoin des essais prescrits, bien qu'il soit très désirable qu'il soit présent chaque fois que ces autres devoirs lui permettent de le faire, mais il doit veiller à ce que toutes les tôles soient convenablement marquées. Il doit, toutefois, choisir au moins une tôle sur quatre de chaque épaisseur, qui doit entrer dans la construction de la chaudière, et être présent à l'essai d'au moins une bande ou pièce coupée de chaque tôle choisie, mais lorsque les tôles à chaudières excèdent 15 pieds de longueur, il doit y avoir un essai de tension à chaque bout, et lorsqu'elles excèdent 20 pieds de longueur et en même temps excèdent 6 pieds de largeur, ou excèdent $2\frac{1}{2}$ tonnes pesant, il doit y avoir un essai de tension à chaque coin. Dans ce dernier cas l'essai de chaque tôle doit être vu par l'inspecteur. La moyenne des résultats des essais, si ces derniers remplissent les conditions du président, tel qu'énoncé plus bas, doit être étampée sur la tôle. Si un grand nombre de manquements ont lieu sur les 25 pour cent choisis, l'inspecteur doit choisir et voir essayer un nombre additionnel de tôles, le nombre d'essais additionnels étant en proportion du nombre de manquements. Si l'on désire avoir pour les tôles parmi lesquelles l'inspecteur choisit la susdite proportion, une plus forte tension que celle permise pour le fer, des essais pour la force tensile et l'allongement doivent avoir lieu, aussi quelques essais de trempe et de flexion. Et celles pour lesquelles il n'est pas demandé de réduction d'épaisseur peuvent être essayées pour résistance à la flexion et la trempe seulement, au choix. Dans ce dernier cas la force tensile et l'allongement étampés sur la tôle doit être énoncés dans le rapport de l'inspecteur au président, ainsi que les résultats des essais de flexion et de trempe. D'entre les tôles éprouvées par le fabricant d acier, mais dont l'inspecteur n'a pas été témoin, l'inspecteur peut, s'il le juge à propos, choisir toutes tôles après qu'elles sont arrivé s dans la cour, et en faire couper, et essayer des échantillons. Si les résultats ne sont pas satisfaisauts toutes les tôles, sauf celles essayées et trouvées satisfaisantes, peuvent être rejetées.

1. Constantes pour les surfaces planes, supportées par des tirants vissés dans la tôle et rivés, 10 pour 100.

2. Constantes pour les surfaces planes, supportées par des tirants vissés dans la tôle et munis d'écrous placés dans la chambre à vapeur, 25 pour 100. Cette augmentation est aussi applicable aux constantes pour les surfaces planes renforcées par des rondelles rivées ou des bandes formant doublure, et supportées par de tirants munis d'écrous.

3. Constantes pour armature des chambres de combustion, 10 pour 100.

Pour les tôles d'acier dans le cœur des tubes, la force de la tôle est trouvée au moyen de la formule suivante:—

si T = l'épaisseur des tôles en seizièmes de pouces.

P = l'écartement moyen des entretoises de centre à centre.

Pour les espaces plus grands entre les cœurs des tubes la force à prendre de

si P = la distance horizontale de centre à centre des rangées de tubes, et

C = 130 si elles sont ajustées avec des écrous en dehors des tôles,

C = 140 si chaque tube alterne est une entretoise non ajustée avec des écrous,

C = 150 si elles sont ajustées avec des écrous en dehors des tôles,

C = 160 si chaque tube dans ces rangées est une entretoise et non ajustée avec des écrous,

C = 170 si chaque tube dans ces rangées est une entretoise et chaque tube alterne est ajusté avec des écrous en dehors des tôles.

si T = l'épaisseur des plaques à doublure en seizièmes, et C, t et P sont comme plus haut.

$$\frac{C \times (T + \frac{t}{2})^2}{P^2} = \text{la pression effective en liv. par pc. carré.}$$

$$\frac{(D-d) \ T \times 28{,}000}{W \times D} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

D = la plus petite distance horizontale entre les centres des tubes, en pouces.

d = le diamètre intérieur des tubes ordinaires, en pouces.

T = l'épaisseur de la plaque à tubes en pouces.

(t.) Dans les sutures longitudinales des enveloppes faites à recouvrement et munies d'un double rang de rivets, la section des rivets, lorsque ceux-ci sont en fer, ne doit pas être moindre des $\frac{1}{3}$ de la section nette de la tôle; mais si l'on emploie des rivets en acier, leur section doit être au moins les $\frac{2}{3}$ de la section nette de la tôle, pourvu que la résistance à la traction de ces rivets ne soit pas au-dessous de 27 tonneaux bruts et ni au-dessus de 32 tonneaux bruts par pouce carré. Par conséquent, dans le calcul de la pression effective, la résistance proportionnelle des rivets doit être déterminée de la manière ordinaire par les règles, mais dans le cas des rivets de fer, les proportions trouvées doivent être divisées par $\frac{1}{3}$, et dans le cas de rivets en acier, par $\frac{2}{3}$, les résultats étant les proportions cherchées. Si le calcul donne pour la résistance proportionnelle des rivets une valeur moindre que pour la résistance proportionnelle de la tôle, il faut calculer la pression effective à l'aide des deux résultats. En employant la résistance proportionnelle de la tôle, on peut prendre 4·25 plus les additions correspondant au système de construction, tel qu'il ressort des règles pour les chaudières en fer; mais en employant la résistance proportionnelle des rivets on peut prendre 4·25 pour facteur de sûreté. La plus faible des deux pressions ainsi trouvées est la pression effective à admettre pour la portion cylindrique de l'enveloppe de chaudière, ou autrement en conformité des formules qui se trouvent à l'annexe. Art. 43.

Art. 37. Dans aucun cas un certificat ne sera donné pour une chaudière lorsque les plaques en auront été forcées par des fiches rabattues pour ramener les uns sur les autres les trous des plaques.

Art. 38. Les trous d'hommes seront renforcés au moyen de plaques ou d'anneaux compensateurs au moins de la même aire de profil effective que la plaque coupée, et dans aucun cas ces plaques ou anneaux ne seront d'une épaisseur moindre que les plaques auxquelles ils seront attachés, et l'attache ne sera pas d'une force moindre que la plaque ou l'anneau. Les axes les plus courts de toutes les ouvertures dans les enveloppes de chaudières devront être placés longitudinalement, et s'ils ne sont pas ainsi placés, ils devront avoir des plaques ou anneaux compensateurs, et des attaches, égaux à deux fois l'aire de profil effective de la plaque coupée.

On ne devra pas faire de trous de nettoyage dans les enveloppes des chaudières, d'un plus grand diamètre intérieur que cinq pouces, à moins d'être munis de plaques de renfort, et s'ils sont pratiqués dans l'enveloppe cylindrique d'une chaudière, leur diamètre intérieur devra être en ligne avec l'axe de l'enveloppe.

Art. 39. Toute chaudière construite après que les présentes règles seront devenues exécutoires, porteront étampées les initiales du nom de l'inspecteur qui l'aura inspectée et éprouvée, l'année de sa construction, et la pression à laquelle elle a été soumise lors de l'épreuve, ainsi que la pression effective qui lui a été assignée.

Art. 40. (a.) La pression effective extérieure qui sera permise sur les fourneaux et tuyaux en acier, unis ou circulaires, lorsque soumis à cette pression, quand les joints,

(b.) Le produit de 90,000 multiplié par le carré de l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces, divisé par la longueur du tuyau, ou du fourneau, en pieds, plus un multiplié par le diamètre en pouces, sera la pression effective permise par pouce carré en livres, ajoutant dix pour cent au résultat de la formule ; pourvu qu'elle ne dépasse pas celle trouvée au moyen de la formule suivante :—(c)

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times T^2}{(L + 1) \times D} = \text{la presssion effective lorsque}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur du carneau en pouces.
L = la longueur du carneau ou du fourneau en pieds, ou la longueur entre les anneaux en pieds, s'il est renforcé par des anneaux propices ou des joints Adamson.

L = la longueur entre le centre des brides en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur du fourneau en pouces.

Le rayon des brides du côté du feu devrait être d'environ 1½ pouce. La profondeur des brides partant du côté du feu devrait avoir trois fois le diamètre du rivet plus 1½ pouce, et l'épaisseur des brides devrait être autant que possible de l'épaisseur du corps de la tôle. La distance entre le bord des trous des rivets et le bord de la bride devrait être au moins du diamètre du rivet, et le diamètre des rivets devrait être au moins ⅝ de pouce plus épais que la tôle. La profondeur de l'anneau entre les brides ne devrait pas être moindre que trois fois le diamètre des rivets, le bord de l'anneau touchant le feu devrait être vers la fin de la courbe de la bride, et son épaisseur avoir au moins la moitié de l'épaisseur de la tôle du fourneau. Il est très à désirer que ces anneaux soient tournés.

Les trous dans les brides et les anneaux devraient être forés en place si c'est possible, mais s'ils ne sont pas forés en place ils devraient être forés plus petits que la dimension requise, et ensuite, lorsque en place, alésés jusqu'à ce que les trous soient très justes, les trous devraient aller un peu en rétrécissant et les têtes des rivets d'une dimension modérée.

Fourneaux et tuyaux en acier ridé.

Art. 41. (a.) Pour les fourneaux à carneaux d'acier, neufs, ridés et faits à la machine, du modèle Fox ondulé, et modèle Morison suspendu, ou le John Brown et Cie, du type Purves à nervures et cannelé, ou du genre Deighton et Fox, s'il sont pratiquement circulaires, et les tôles d'au moins $\frac{5}{16}$ de pouce d'épaisseur, la pression effective se trouve au moyen de la formule suivante :—

C = 14,000.
T = l'épaisseur en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur en pouces, mesuré depuis le fond des ondulations lorsque le fourneau est du modèle ondulé ou suspendu, ou sur les parties planes lorsqu'il est du modèle à nervures et cannelé.

Dans les fourneaux ondulés de Fox, l'écartement des ondulations ne doit pas dépasser 6 pouces, et dans les fourneaux suspendus de Morison et le fourneau Deighton, l'écartement ne doit pas excéder 8 pouces. Dans ces sortes de fourneaux la profondeur depuis le dessus des ondulations à l'extérieur jusqu'au fond des ondulations à l'extérieur ne doit pas excéder 2 pouces.

Les côtes des fourneaux à nervures et cannelés doivent dépasser d'au moins $1\frac{5}{16}$ pouce les parties planes, la profondeur des cannelures pas plus que ¾ pouce, et la longueur entre le centre des côtes pas plus que 9 pouces. Dans chacun de ces genres de fourneaux les parties planes aux bouts d'arrière doivent être faits de façon à ce que la longueur, mesurée depuis le côté de l'eau de la plaque tubulaire d'arrière jusqu'au centre de la cannelure ou côte du bout d'arrière n'excède pas 9 pouces. Les parties planes aux bouts d'avant doivent aussi être faits de façon que la longueur mesurée depuis le centre de la première cannelure ou nervure jusqu'au centre des rivets qui assujétissent le fourneau à la plaque d'avant n'excède pas 9 pouces. Lorsque les parties planes aux bouts d'arrière sont de forme conique, et que la collerette par laquelle l'attachement est fait à la plaque tubulaire d'arrière ost continue, une longueur de 10½ pouces peut être allouée entre le côté de l'eau de la plaque tubulaire d'arrière et le centre de la première cannelure ou nervure. Quand ce genre de construction est adopté, la section verticale à travers le collet doit être gardée aussi circulaire que possible. La disposition au fond ne doit pas excéder 8 pouces mesuré par-dessus les plaques, et l'axe vertical ne doit jamais excéder l'axe horizontal de plus de 14½ pour cent. Les plaques aux extrémités ne doivent pas être trop amincies en faisant le rebord.

Art. 42. La pression effective pour les fourneaux en fer ridé, pratiquement circulaires et faits à la machine, pourvu que les parties unies aux extrémités n'excèdent pas six pouces de longueur et que les plaques n'aient pas moins de $\frac{5}{16}$ de pouce d'épaisseur, ne devrait pas excéder celle trouvée par la formule suivante :—

$$\frac{10{,}000 \times \text{l'épaisseur en pouces}}{\text{Moyenne du diamètre en pcs.}} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

Lorsqu'on emploie dans la construction d'une chaudière des joints autres que ceux que l'on voit dans les dessins ci-joints, ou lorsque quelques-uns des rivets sont à un écartement de moins du double de leur diamètre, les détails doivent être soumis à l'appréciation du bureau.

Lorsque le travail est de première classe, on peut adopter les écartements en tant que nécessaire pour la sûreté, cependant, dans quelques cas il serait bon d'adopter le plus grand écartement trouvé par la formule. L'écartement maximum ne doit pas, toutefois excéder 10 pouces avec la plus épaisse tôle pour envelopper des chaudières. S'il arrivait que l'écartement excède celui obtenu par la formule ci-dessus, pour la description particulière de joint et d'épaisseur de tôle, ces écartements ne doivent pas être admis, mais tous ces cas doivent être rapportés.

PARTIE II.

RÈGLEMENTS APPLICABLES À L'INSPECTION ET À L'ÉPREUVE DES CHAUDIÈRES MAINTENANT EN EXISTENCE OU DE CELLES QUI SONT OU QUI POURRONT À L'AVENIR ÊTRE FABRIQUÉES EN CANADA, POUR L'USAGE DES BATEAUX À VAPEUR, CHAQUE FOIS QUE DANS L'OPINION DE L'INSPECTEUR, LES RÈGLEMENTS CONTENUS DANS LA PREMIÈRE PARTIE DE CET ARRÊTÉ, NE POURRONT PAS, SOIT À CAUSE DE LA CONSTRUCTION DE CES CHAUDIÈRES, SOIT POUR TOUTE AUTRE CAUSE, S'APPLIQUER À LEUR ÉPREUVE; POURVU QUE DANS TEL CAS, L'INSPECTEUR DONNE UN CERTIFICAT ÉTABLISSANT QUE SON INSPECTION A ÉTÉ FAITE CONFORMÉMENT À LA SECONDE PARTIE DU PRÉSENT ARRÊTÉ.

Art. 44. Tout inspecteur pourra, chaque fois qu'il le jugera nécessaire, et un inspecteur devra, au moins une fois chaque année, éprouver la chaudière de tout bateau à vapeur par une pression hydrostatique, et s'assurer par

une examen personnel et des épreuves expérimentales, que cette chaudière est bien faite et que ses matériaux sont sains et sans défauts; le maximum de cette pression sera dans la proportion de cent cinquante livres à cent livres permises comme pression effective; le propriétaire du bateau à vapeur fournira la pompe à bras et les appareils nécessaires pour faire l'épreuve, et l'équipage du bateau à vapeur les fera fonctionner; et aucun inspecteur ne fera ni ne donnera aucun certificat au propriétaire ou au capitaine d'un bateau à vapeur à moins qu'il n'ait préalablement soumis la chaudière du bateau à cette épreuve hydrostatique.

Art. 45. Avant qu'une chaudière ne soit soumise à l'épreuve par la pression hydrostatique, elle sera ouverte pour la visite de l'inspecteur; les portes ou trous d'homme et les plaques de la vidange seront enlevées, l'extérieur et l'intérieur seront nettoyés, les grilles enlevées et le fourneau déchargé et balayé, afin qu'il puisse en faire une inspection satisfaisante et complète; lorsque des cloisons seront placées de manière à empêcher une inspection minutieuse de la tôle de la chaudière, elles seront enlevées; et le propriétaire ou le capitaine du bateau veillera à ce que toutes ces dispositions soient prises avant de demander une inspection.

Art. 47. Lorsque l'extérieur du fond d'une chaudière ne pourra pas être parfaitement inspecté sans cela, la chaudière devra être soulevée pour être inspectée au moins une fois tous les quatre ans.

Art. 48. En soumettant les chaudières faites en tôle de fer à l'épreuve hydrostatique susdite, l'inspecteur prendra la pression de cent livres par pouce carré pour maximum de la pression permise comme force effective pour une chaudière neuve de quarante-deux pouces de diamètre, faite du meilleur fer affiné, d'au moins un quart de pouce d'épaisseur, de la meilleure manière et de la qualité requise par le présent; et il établira la pression effective de toutes les chaudières en fer, qu'elles soient d'un moindre ou d'un plus grand diamètre, d'après leur force comparativement à cette règle; et dans tous les cas, l'épreuve excédera la pression effective permise dans la proportion de cent cinquante à cent livres, et la température de l'eau dont il sera fait usage dans les épreuves n'excédera pas soixante degrés Fahrenheit.

Art. 49. En soumettant les chaudières faites en tôle d'acier à l'épreuve hydrostatique susdite, l'inspecteur prendra la pression de cent vingt-cinq livres par pouce carré pour maximum de la pression permise comme force effective pour une chaudière neuve de quarante-deux pouces de diamètre, faite de la meilleure manière, avec la meilleure qualité de tôle d'acier, d'au moins un quart de pouce d'épaisseur, les trous des rivets devant être percés en place, les plaques étant ensuite séparées et les bavures ébarbées, les sutures longitudinales de la chemise étant assujéties au moyen de couvre-joints d'acier coupés en travers du grain de la tôle, et chacune d'au moins cinq-huitièmes ou plus de l'épaisseur des plaques qu'elles couvrent, et toutes les sutures des plaques étant au moins à double rivetage et ayant pour le moins soixante-dix pour cent de la force de la tôle solide, et toutes les surfaces planes devant être étayées de la meilleure manière et toutes les sutures à double rivetage; et il établira la pression de toutes les chaudières en acier ainsi faites, qu'elles soient d'un moindre ou d'un plus grand diamètre, d'après leur force comparativement à cette règle; et dans tous les cas l'épreuve excédera la pression effective permise pour ces chaudières dans la proportion de cent quatre-vingt-sept livres et demie à cent vingt-cinq livres, et la température de l'eau dont il sera fait usage dans les épreuves n'excédera pas soixante degrés Fahrenheit

Art. 50. Si un inspecteur est d'opinion qu'une chaudière, qu'elle soit en tôle de fer ou d'acier, ne peut supporter avec sûreté, à cause de sa construction ou des matériaux dont elle est faite, une pression effective aussi élevée que celle ci-dessus spécifiée pour chaque espèce de chaudière respectivement, il pourra, pour les raisons qu'il devra spécialement énoncer dans son certificat, fixer la pression effective de la chaudière à moins des deux tiers de la pression d'épreuve.

Art. 51. Les règles qui précèdent seront suivies dans tous les cas, à moins que les proportions des chaudières par rapport aux cylindres, ou quelque autre chose, ne fassent voir manifestement que l'application en serait injuste, auquel cas l'inspecteur pourra déroger à ces règles, s'il le peut faire avec sûreté; mais en aucun cas la pression effective permise n'excédera la proportion ci-dessus, calculée d'après l'épreuve hydrostatique.

Art. 52. (a.) La pression effective externe qui pourra être permise sur les fourneaux cylindriques et les carneaux en fer lisse soumis à cette pression, lorsque les joints longitudinaux sont soudés ou faits sous couvre-joints, sera déterminée d'après la formule suivante :—

(b.) Le produit de 90,000 multiplié par le carré de l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces,—divisé par la longueur du carneau ou du fourneau en pieds plus 1, multipliés par le diamètre en pouces,—sera la pression effective permise par pouce carré en livres,—pourvu qu'elle ne dépasse pas celle donnée par la formule suivante :—

(c.) Le produit de 9,000 multiplié par l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces, divisé par le diamètre du fourneau ou du carneau en pouces, sera la pression effective permise par pouce carré en livres ;

$$\frac{C \times (T+1)^2}{S-6} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en seizièmes de pouces.

S = la surface supportée en pouces carrés.

C = la constante déterminée suivant les circonstances suivantes :

C = 100 lorsque les tôles ne sont pas exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, et que les entretoises sont munies d'écrous et de rondelles, ces dernières ayant au moins trois fois le diamètre de l'entretoise et les deux tiers de l'épaisseur de la tôle qu'elles recouvrent.

C = 90, lorsque les tôles ne sont pas exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds et que les entretoises sont seulement munies d'écrous.

C = 60, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, la vapeur étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont munies d'écrous et de rondelles, celles-ci ayant au moins trois fois le diamètre de l'entretoise et deux tiers de l'épaisseur de la tôle qu'elles recouvrent.

C = 60, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, l'eau étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont vissées dans la tôle, leurs extrémités étant rivées en forme d'une tête résistante.

C = 36, lorsque les tôles sont exposées au choc de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, la vapeur étant en contact avec elles, et que les entretoises sont vissées dans la tôle, avec leurs extrémités rivées en forme de tête résistante.

(g.) Lorsque des plaques et étais d'acier sont employés et dans les conditions décrites dans la partie I des règlements, l'augmentation aux constantes pour les surfaces planes et étais s'appliquera, tel que défini par les paragraphes (g) 1, 2 et 3 de l'article 36.

$$48000 \times \frac{T^2}{P} = \text{la pression effective.}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
P = le plus grand écartement des boulons en pouces.
(i,) pour les plaques à tubes voir articles 21 et 36, paragraphes (r) et (s).

Art. 54. Pour s'assurer de la force et de l'état d'une chaudière, l'inspecteur pourra, s'il le juge nécessaire, y faire percer des trous, et pourra aussi demander qu'on lui fournisse les renseignements relatifs à sa construction intérieure qui lui permettent de juger exactement de sa force de résistance.

Art. 55. Dans aucun cas un certificat ne sera donné pour une chaudière lorsque les plaques en auront été forcées par des fiches rabattues pour ramener les uns sur les autres les trous des plaques.

Art. 56. Les trous d'homme seront renforcés au moyen de plaques ou d'anneaux compensateurs au moins de la même aire de profil effective que la plaque coupée, et dans aucun cas ces plaques ou anneaux ne seront d'une épaisseur moindre que les plaques auxquelles ils seront attachés, et l'attache ne sera pas d'une force moindre que la plaque ou l'anneau. Les axes les plus courts de toutes les ouvertures dans les enveloppes de chaudières devront être placés longitudinalement, et s'ils ne sont pas ainsi placés, ils devront avoir des plaques ou anneaux compensateurs, et des attaches égaux à deux fois l'aire de profil effective de la plaque coupée.

On ne devra pas faire de trous de nettoyage dans les enveloppes des chaudières, d'un plus grand diamètre intérieur que cinq pouces, à moins d'être munis de plaques de renfort, et s'ils sont pratiqués dans l'enveloppe cylindrique d'une chaudière, leur diamètre intérieur devra être en ligne avec l'axe de l'enveloppe.

Art. 57. Quand des barres ou des cornières de fer seront employées pour soutenir le ciel du fourneau d'une chaudière, les trois cinquièmes de la pression effective admissible sur le ciel seront soutenus par des tirants partant de l'enveloppe de la chaudière et fixés au plafond.

Art. 58. Les petites chaudières alimentaires sur les bateaux à vapeur seront munies de deux soupapes de sûreté, qui pourront être fermées à clef.

Art. 59. Les chaudières dans lesquelles les sutures longitudinales de l'enveloppe cylindrique ne sont qu'à simple rang de rivets, au lieu d'être à double rangs, seront sujettes à une réduction sur la pression effective admissible pour une chaudière de la meilleure construction (telle que prescrite dans les articles 48 et 49 des présents règlements), et le maximum de pression ne devra pas excéder dans les chaudières construites de cette manière, quatre-vingts livres par pouce carré, au lieu de cent livres ou de cent vingt-cinq livres, comme il est dit dans les dits articles.

Art. 60. Aucune chaudière, construite et posée à bord d'un bateau à vapeur, ne devra être faite de tôle à chaudière, soit en fer, soit en acier, qui n'aura pas été étampée de la marque ou du nom du fabricant, et aucun certificat ne sera délivré pour une chaudière faite en entier ou en partie de tôle ne portant pas une pareille marque; et avant qu'un certificat puisse être délivré pour une chaudière, le fabricant devra fournir à l'inspecteur une déclaration, attestée sous serment, du nom du fabricant de la tôle employée, de la qualité de celle-ci et de la qualité de tous les matériaux employés dans la confection de la chaudière; ce serment pourra être prêté devant un juge de paix en Canada, ou devant un notaire public, et attesté sous son sceau officiel, s'il est prêté en dehors du Canada; pourvu toujours que, dans les cas où cette déclaration sous serment, par le fabricant de la chaudière ne pourrait être obtenue par suite de son décès, ou pour quelque autre cause jugée suffisante par l'inspecteur, l'affidavit de deux fabricants de chaudières pratiques qui auront examiné la chaudière et fait rapport sur la qualité des matériaux qui y ont été employés, celle de l'ouvrage et la force de la chaudière, sera, s'il est trouvé satisfaisant par l'inspecteur, considéré comme suffisant et tiendra lieu de la déclaration requise du fabricant de la chaudière.

Art. 61. Pendant la confection de toute chaudière faite en Canada, le fabricant devra notifier l'inspecteur du district dans lequel elle sera faite qu'il peut la venir inspecter, et il devra en tout temps pendant cette confection, donner à l'inspecteur accès à la chaudière.

Art. 62. Aucune chaudière ni aucun tuyau ne seront approuvés s'ils sont faits en entier ou en partie de mauvais matériaux, ou s'ils sont dangereux à cause de leur forme, des défectuosités de l'ouvrage, de leur détérioration par l'usage, de leur vétusté ou pour toute autre cause.

Art. 63. (a.) Lorsque des chaudières cylindriques ou la partie cylindrique de chaudières sont faites des meilleurs matériaux avec tous les trous des rivets forés en place et toutes les sutures assujéties au moyen de couvre-joints doubles, chacun d'au moins $\frac{5}{8}$ de l'épaisseur des plaques qu'ils recouvrent, et toutes les sutures étant au moins à deux rangs de rivets de pas plus de 75 pour 100 au-dessus de la simple tension, et pourvu que les chaudières aient été ouvertes à l'inspection pendant tout le temps de leur construction,—alors on pourra prendre 4 comme facteur de sûreté. La force de tension des matériaux sera calculée comme égale à 48,000 lbs au pouce carré dans le sens du grain, et 42,000 en travers du grain. Lorsque toutes les conditions ci-dessus ne se rencontrent pas, il faut faire au facteur les additions d'après l'échelle ci-dessous, suivant les circonstances de chaque cas :—

D.5—sera ajouté lorsque tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures longitudinales, mais percés avant le cintrage.

E*·75—sera ajouté lorsque tous les trous ne sont pas justes et bons dans les sutures longitudinales.

F·1—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais forés hors de place après le cintrage.

G·15—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais forés avant le cintrage.

H·15—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais percés après le cintrage.

I·2—sera ajouté si tous les trous sont justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles, mais percés avant le cintrage.

J*·2—sera ajouté si tous les trous ne sont pas justes et bons dans les sutures circonférentielles.

K·2—sera ajouté si des couvre-joints doubles ne sont pas assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont rabattues et à double rivetage.

L·1—sera ajouté si des couvre-joints doubles ne sont pas assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont rabattues et à triple rivetage.

M·3—sera ajouté si seulement des couvre-joints simples sont assujétis aux sutures longitudinales et si ces sutures sont à double rivetage.

N·15—sera ajouté si simplement des couvre-joints simples sont assujétis aux sutures longitudinales, et si ces sutures sont à triple rivetage.

O·1—sera ajouté lorsqu'une espèce quelconque de joint dans les sutures longitudinales est à simple rivetage.

P‡·1—sera ajouté lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont assujétis avec des couvre-joints simples et sont à double rivetage.

Q‡·2—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties par des couvre-joints simples et sont à un simple rivetage.

R‡·1—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont assujétis par des couvre-joints doubles et sont à un simple rivetage.

S‡·1—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont à joints rabattus et sont à double rivetage.

T·2—sera ajouté si les sutures circonférentielles sont à joints rabattus et sont à simple rivetage.

U·25—sera ajouté lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont rabattues et que les rebords des plaques ne sont pas complètement en dessous ou en dessus.

V·3—sera ajouté lorsque la chaudière est d'une telle longueur qu'elle nécessite un foyer à chaque bout, ou lorsqu'elle est d'une longueur inaccoutumée, comme les chaudières à carneaux, et que les sutures circonférentielles sont assujéties tel que décrit vis-à-vis P, R et S; mais naturellement lorsque les sutures circonférentielles sont telles que décrites vis-à-vis Q et T, V·3 deviendra V 4.

W*·4—sera ajouté si les sutures ne sont pas convenablement croisées.

X*·4—sera ajouté lorsque le fer est sous quelque rapport d'une qualité douteuse, et que l'inspecteur n'est pas convaincu qu'il est de la meilleure qualité.

Y†·1—sera ajouté si la chaudière n'est pas ouverte à l'inspection pendant tout le temps de sa construction.

(b) La force des joints sera établie d'après la méthode suivante :—

P‡1, Q‡2, R‡1, S‡1 ne s'appliqueront pas aux sutures extrêmes ou circonférentielles, si ces sutures sont suffisamment renforcées par des boulons de part en part ; ni aux sutures entre la partie carrée et la partie ronde de l'enveloppe des chaudières cylindriques avec fourneaux carrés, lorsque ces sutures sont à double rivetage.

(f.) Les plaques qui sont forées en place doivent être séparées et les bavures ébarbées, et les trous légèrement fraisés de l'extérieur.

C=la force de tension de la plaque en livres.
T=l'épaisseur de la plaque en pouces.
R=le rayon du fond en pouces.
F=4 lorsque les fonds sont pressés à la machine et recuits, et 5 lorsque les fonds sont façonnés à la main et recuits.

$$\frac{C \times T}{R \times F} = \text{la pression effective permise.}$$

(m.) Les inspecteurs doivent se rappeler que la force d'une sphère pour résister à la pression intérieure est deux fois celle d'un cylindre de même diamètre et de même épaisseur.

Art. 64. (a.) Les parties neutres des enveloppes de chaudières sous les dômes de prise de vapeur doivent être consolidées et renforcées par des armatures suffisantes.

Art. 65. (a.) Dans les surchauffeurs cylindriques la force des joints et le facteur de sûreté se trouvent de la même manière que pour les chaudières cylindriques et les récipients à vapeur, mais au lieu de prendre 48,000 livres comme force de tension du fer, on prend 30,000 livres, à moins que la chaleur ou la flamme ne frappe la plaque à angle droit ou à peu près ; dans ce dernier cas on y substituera 22,400 livres.

Trouvez l'aire d'une armature directe nécessaire pour supporter la surface, multipliez cette aire par la longueur de l'armature diagonale et divisez le produit par la longueur d'une ligne tirée à angle droit avec la surface supportée jusqu'à l'extrémité de l'armature diagonale, le quotient sera l'aire de l'armature diagonale voulue.

Art. 67. (a.) Lorsque le ciel des chambres de combustion ou autres parties d'une chaudière sont supportées par de solides traverses rectangulaires, la formule suivante, employée par le Bureau de Commerce Impérial, sera utile pour trouver la pression effective permise sur les traverses, en supposant qu'elles ne seront pas soumises à une plus haute température que la chaleur ordinaire de la vapeur, et dans le cas de fournaises, que les extrémités sont ajustées aux rebords de la plaque de tubulure et à la plaque du fond de la chambre de combustion.

W = la largeur en pouces de la chambre de combustion.
P = l'écartement des boulons d'appui en pouces.
D = la distance entre les traverses, d'axe en axe, en pouces.
L = la longueur de la traverse en pieds.
d = la hauteur de la traverse en pouces.
T = l'épaisseur de la traverse en pouces.
N = le nombre de boulons d'appui.

$$C = \frac{N \times 1000}{N + 1}. \text{ lorsque le nombre des boulons est impair.}$$

$$C = \frac{(N + 1)\ 1000}{N + 2} \text{ lorsque le nombre des boulons est pair.}$$

(b.) La pression effective pour les boulons d'appui et pour la plaque entre eux, sera établie au moyen de la règle prescrite pour les armatures ordinaires.

Art. 68. Les bouts plats de toutes chaudières, jusqu'où la vapeur s'étend, et les extrémités des surchauffeurs, seront munis d'écrans ou plaques de protection, lorsqu'ils sont exposés au gaz échauffés dans la culotte du courant de flammes, vu que toutes plaques exposées au choc direct de la chaleur ou de la flamme sont sujettes à être endommagées à moins d'être couvertes par l'eau.

Si l'on se propose d'employer de l'acier dans des chauffeurs, les détails devraient être soumis au Bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, ou au président, si le Bureau ne siège pas, pour sa considération ; mais on ne doit jamais encourager une telle chose ; ceci s'applique aux courants de flammes non munis d'écrans de toutes les chaudières, y compris les petites chaudières alimentaires verticales ordinaires.

Art. 69. Les petites chaudières alimentaires attachées ou reliées d'une manière quelconque à de grandes chaudières, ou à des machines employées pour faire marcher un navire, doivent être inspectées et garnies de la même manière que les grandes chaudières, et avoir un indicateur d'eau et un manomètre et tous autres accessoires complets, et sont, quant aux soupapes de sûreté, sujettes aux mêmes règlements que les grandes chaudières, et aucune soupape de sûreté ne sera permise, sauf tel que ci-après prescrit dans les règlements concernant l'inspection des soupapes de sûreté.

Art. 70. (a.) Aucune chaudière ou fourneau à vapeur ne sera construit, ajusté ou arrangé de façon à ce que l'échappement de la vapeur par la soupape de sûreté puisse être complètement ou partiellement intercepté par l'action d'aucune autre soupape.

(b.) Une soupape d'arrêt doit toujours être placée entre la chaudière et le tuyau à vapeur ; et, lorsque deux chaudières ou plus sont reliées par un récipient à vapeur ou surchauffeur, entre chaque chaudière et le surchauffeur ou récipient à vapeur. Le but de ceci est évident, savoir, éviter que toutes les chaudières soient affectées par le défaut d'une seule d'entre elles. Le col des soupapes d'arrêt sera aussi court que possible.

Art. 72. Les inspecteurs auront grand soin de ne donner aucune sanction officielle à aucun nouvel arrangement ou construction de chaudière à vapeur, dites de "marine," sans avoir d'abord obtenu la permission par écrit du président ; il ne leur est pas permis non plus de donner aucune approbation par écrit en faveur d'aucune invention ou arrangement, à moins d'y être autorisés par le bureau ; et chaque fois qu'ils apprendront qu'une invention ou un arrangement nouveau doit être appliqué à un navire qui doit porter un certificat pour transporter des passagers, ils devront aussitôt que possible s'en procurer des plans et les soumettre au président.

| (a.) Fourneaux avec joints bout-à-bout et trous de rivets forés. | 90,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints simples; 80,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à simple rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints simples ; 90,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints doubles. |
| (b.) Fourneaux avec joints bout-à-bout et trous de rivets percés à l'emporte-pièce. | 85,000 lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints simples ; 75,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à simple rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints simples ; 85,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et assujéties par des couvre-joints doubles. |
| (c.) Fourneaux avec joints rabattus et trous de rivets forés. | 80,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et en biseau ; 75,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et non en biseau ; 70,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et en biseau ; 65,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et non en biseau. |
| (d.) Fourneaux avec joints rabattus et trous de rivets percés à l'emporte-pièce. | 75,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et en biseau.70,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et non en biseau.65,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à double rivetage et en biseau.60,000, lorsque les sutures longitudinales sont à un simple rivetage et non en biseau. |

Art. 74. (a.) La pression effective extérieure qui sera permise sur les fourneaux et tuyaux en acier, planes circulaires, lorsque soumis à cette pression, quand les joints longitudinaux sont soudés ou faits sous couvre-joints, sera déterminée au moyen de la formule suivante :—

(b.) Le produit de 90,000 multiplié par le carré de l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces, divisé par la longueur du tuyau, ou fourneau, en pieds, plus 1 multiplié par le diamètre en pouces, sera la pression effective permise par pouce carré en livres, ajoutant dix pour cent au résultat de la formule, pourvu qu'elle ne dépasse par celle trouvée au moyen de la formule suivante :—

$$\frac{90{,}000 \times T^2}{(L + 1) \times D} = \text{la pression effective lorsque}$$

T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur du carneau en pouces.
L = la longueur du carneau ou du fourneau en pieds, ou la longueur entre les anneaux en pieds, s'il est renforcé par des anneaux propices ou des joints Adamson.

L = la longueur entre le centre des brides en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur du fourneau en pouces.

Le rayon des brides du côté du feu devrait être d'environ 1½ pouce. La profondeur des brides partant du côté du feu devrait avoir trois fois le diamètre du rivet plus 1½ pouce, et l'épaisseur des brides devrait être autant que possible de l'épaisseur du corps de la tôle. La distance entre le bord des trous des rivets et le bord de la bride devrait être au moins ⅜ de pouce plus épais que la tôle. La profondeur de l'anneau entre les brides ne devrait pas être moindre que trois fois le diamètre des rivets, le bord de l anneau touchant le feu devrait être vers la fin de la courbe de la bride, et son épaisseur avoir au moins la moitié de l'épaisseur de la tôle du fourneau. Il est très à désirer que ces anneaux soient tournés.

Les trous dans les brides et les anneaux devraient être forés en place si c'est possible, mais s'ils ne sont pas forés en place ils devraient être forés plus petits que la dimension requise, et ensuite, lorsque en place, alésés jusqu'à ce que les trous soient très justes, les trous devraient aller un peu en rétrécissant et les têtes des rivets d'une dimension modérée.

Fourneaux et tuyaux en acier ridé.

Art. 75 (a.) Pour les fourneaux à carneaux d'acier, neufs, ridés et faits à la machine, du modèle Fox ondulé, et modèle Morison suspendu, ou le John Brown & Co,, du type Purves à nervures et cannelé, ou du genre Deighton et Fox, s'ils sont pratiquement circulaires, et les tôles d'au moins $\frac{5}{16}$ de pouce d'épaisseur, la pression effective se trouve au moyen de la formule suivante :—

C = 14,000.
T = l'épaisseur en pouces.
D = le diamètre extérieur en pouces, mesuré depuis le fond des ondulations lorsque le fourneau est du modèle ondulé ou suspendu, ou sur les parties planes lorsqu'il est du modèle à nervures et cannelé.

Dans les fourneaux ondulés de Fox, l'écartement des ondulations ne doit pas dépasser 6 pouces, et dans les fourneaux suspendus de Morison et le fourneau Deighton l'écartement ne doit pas excéder 8 pouces. Dans ces sortes de fourneaux la profondeur depuis le dessus des ondulations à l'extérieur jusqu'au fond des ondulations à l'intérieur ne doit pas excéder 2 pouces.

Les côtes des fourneaux à nervures et cannelés doivent dépasser d'au moins 1 $\frac{5}{16}$ pouce les parties planes, la profondeur des cannelures pas plus que ¾ pouce, et la longueur entre le centre des côtes pas plus que 9 pouces.

Dans chacun de ces genres de fourneaux les parties planes aux bouts d'arrière doivent être faites de façon à ce que la longueur, mesurée depuis le côté de l'eau de la plaque tubulaire d'arrière jusqu'au centre de la cannelure ou côte du bout d'arrière n'excède pas 9 pouces. Les parties planes aux bouts d'avant doivent aussi être faits de façon que la longueur mesurée depuis le centre de la première cannelure ou nervure jusqu au centre des rivets qui assujétissent le fourneau à la plaque d'avant n'excède pas 9 pouces. Lorsque les parties planes aux bouts d'arrière sont de forme conique, et que la collerette par laquelle l'attachement est fait à la plaque tubulaire d'arrière est continue, une longueur de 10½ pouces peut être allouée entre le côté de l'eau de la plaque tubulaire d'arrière et le centre de la première cannelure ou nervure. Quand ce genre de construction est adopté, la section verticale à travers le collet doit être gardée aussi circulaire que possible. La disposition au fond ne doit pas excéder 8 pouces mesuré par-dessus les plaques, et l'axe vertical ne doit jamais excéder l'axe horizontal de plus de 14½ pour cent Les plaques aux extrémités ne doivent pas être trop amincies en faisant le rebord.

Art. 76. La pression effective pour les fourneaux en fer ridé, pratiquement circulaires, et faits à la machine, pourvu que les parties planes aux extrémités n'excèdent pas six pouces de longueur et que les plaques n'aient pas moins de $\frac{6}{16}$ de pouce d'épaisseur, ne devrait pas excéder celle trouvée par la formule suivante :

Art. 77. Les inspecteurs fixeront la pression effective des chaudières au moyen d'une série de calculs de la force des diverses parties, et suivant l'ouvrage et les matériaux.

Art. 78. Avant d'éprouver une chaudière, l'inspecteur devra l'examiner, faire les mesurages et calculs nécessaires pour s'assurer que la pression effective est conforme aux présents règlements; si l'épreuve n'est pas satisfaisante, les défauts seront corrigés et la chaudière éprouvée de nouveau. Cette instruction s'applique aux surchauffeurs, récipients à vapeur et chemises à eau aussi bien qu'aux chaudières.

Art. 79. Si la chaudière est trop chaude pour que l'inspecteur puisse l'examiner efficacement avec sûreté et facilité, il devra refuser de l'examiner, et refuser absolument d'accorder un certificat jusqu'à ce qu'il en ait fait un examen suffisant.

Art. 80. Les inspecteurs veilleront à ce que toutes les chaudières neuves et les chaudières qui auront été sorties d'un navire pour être réparées, soient éprouvées au moyen de la pression hydrostatique, dans la proportion d'au moins un et demi de la presssion effective qui sera permise, avant que les chaudières ne soient placées dans les navires pour éprouver l'ouvrage, etc.; mais la pression effective sera établie par la force des armatures, l'épaisseur des plaques et la force des rivets, etc., et non pas par l'épreuve hydrostatique.

Art. 81. L'épreuve hydrostatique ne devra, dans aucun cas excéder celle prescrite par l'article 44 des présents règlements, et ne doit jamais être appliquée avant que la chaudière n'ait été ouverte pour l'examen ni avant que la force n'ait été calculée d'après les mesurages nécessaires pris sur la chaudière même.

Art. 82. Lorsqu'une chaudière est partiellement inspectée par un inspecteur, et que l'inspection est complétée et le certificat accordé par un autre, si l'inspecteur qui était présent à l'épreuve des chaudières par la pression hydrostatique a l'occasion de les examiner à l'intérieur et à l'extérieur après l'épreuve, cet inspecteur fixera la pression qui sera permise sur les chaudières en question, en ayant soin d'informer les propriétaires, fabricants ou agents, et l'inspecteur qui doit plus tard accorder le certificat, de la pression qu'il croit devoir être permise sur ces chaudières, et l'inspecteur qui a partiellement inspecté la chaudière informera l'inspecteur qui complète l'inspection de tous les détails de son inspection de la chaudière.

Art. 84. La pression permise sur la chaudière d'un bateau à passagers ne doit jamais, dans aucune circonstance, être augmentée, à moins que l'inspecteur n'ait préalablement écrit au président pour en obtenir la permission. Dans les cas où un inspecteur croira qu'une plus forte pression peut avec sûreté être permise, il devra en informer l'inspecteur qui aura inspecté la chaudière en dernier lieu; et si, en apprenant pourquoi la pression actuelle avait autrefois été permise, l'inspecteur est encore d'opinion qu'elle peut être augmentée, il devra communiquer tous les faits au président; mais comme il est dit plus haut, la pression ne devra, dans aucun cas, être augmentée tant que la question n'aura pas été décidée par le président.

PARTIE III.

Art. 88. Tout inspecteur pourra, chaque fois qu'il le jugera nécessaire, et un inspecteur devra, au moins une fois chaque année, éprouver la chaudière à tubes à eau de tout bateau à vapeur par une pression hydrostatique dans la proportion de deux cents livres par pouce carré, à cent livres permises comme pression effective, et la température de l'eau dont il sera fait usage dans l'épreuve n'excédera pas soixante degrés Fahrenheit, et il devra s'assurer, par un examen personnel et des épreuves expérimentales, par vapeur et par eau, que cette chaudière est bien faite et que ces matériaux sont sains et sans défauts. Le propriétaire du bateau à vapeur fournira la pompe à bras et les appareils et le combustible et autres choses nécessaires pour faire l'épreuve, et l'équipage du navire les fera fonctionner; et aucun inspecteur de chaudières et machines ne fera ni ne donnera aucun certificat au propriétaire ou au capitaine d'un bateau à vapeur muni d'une chaudière ou de chaudières à tubes à eau à moins qu'il n'ait préalablement soumis la chaudière ou les chaudières du bateau à cette épreuve hydrostatique, et en marche sous vapeur, afin d'éprouver les chaudières et le fonctionnement des pompes d'alimentation en mouvement, et à l'examen prescrit par le présent, la durée de l'épreuve en marche sous vapeur sera d'au moins une heure, mais pourra être prolongée plus longtemps au choix de l'inspecteur.

Art. 89. Avant qu'une chaudière à tubes à eau ne soit soumise à l'épreuve par la pression hydrostatique, elle sera ouverte pour la visite de l'inspecteur, l'enveloppe extérieure sera enlevée, l'extérieur et l'intérieur de la chaudière seront nettoyés, les grilles enlevées et le fourneau déchargé et balayé, afin qu'il puisse en faire une inspection satisfaisante et complète; lorsque des cloisons seront placées de manière à empêcher une inspection minutieuse de la tôle et des tubes de la chaudière elles seront enlevées; et le propriétaire ou capitaine du bateau veillera à ce que toutes les dispositions susdites soient prises avant de demander une inspection.

Art. 90. Chaque fois que l'épreuve n'aura pas été satisfaisante, les défauts seront réparés et la chaudière sera soumise à une seconde épreuve, qui devra être satisfaisante avant qu'un certificat ne soit délivré.

Art. 91. L'inspecteur doit fixer la pression effective des chaudières à tubes à eau au moyen d'une série de calculs de résistance des diverses parties tel que ci-dessous spécifié, et en raison de la nature de la main-d'œuvre et des matériaux.

Art. 92. Si une chaudière est trop chaude pour qu'un inspecteur puisse l'examiner efficacement avec sûreté et facilité, il devra refuser de l'examiner, et refuser absolument d'accorder un certificat jusqu'à ce qu'il en ait fait un examen satisfaisant.

Art. 93. Pour s'assurer de la force et de l'état d'une chaudière à tubes à eau, à l'intérieur, l'inspecteur pourra, s'il le juge nécessaire, y faire percer des trous, en faire enlever certaines sections et détacher des tuyaux, et pourra aussi demander qu'on lui fournisse au moyen des dessins et des devis des différentes parties de la chaudière, des renseignements suffisants sur sa construction pour lui permettre au moyen de calculs et d'un examen de déterminer leur force de résistance.

Art. 94. Pendant la confection de toute chaudière à tubes à eau destinée à servir sur les bateaux à vapeur en Canada, le fabricant devra notifier l'inspecteur du district dans lequel elle est destinée à servir, ou à l'inspecteurs le plus rapproché qu'il peut la venir inspecter, et il devra en tout temps pendant cette confection, donner à l'inspecteur libre accès à la chaudière.

Art. 95. Aucune chaudière à tubes à eau ne devra être faite de tôle à chaudière, soit en fer soit en acier, qui n'aura pas été étampée du nom ou de la marque du fabricant, et nul certificat ne sera délivré pour une chaudière à tubes à eau faite en entier ou en partie de tôle ne portant pas une pareille marque ; et avant qu'un certificat puisse être délivré pour une chaudière à tubes à eau, le fabricant devra fournir à l'inspecteur une déclaration, attestée sous serment, du nom du fabricant de la tôle employée, de la qualité de celle-ci et de la qualité de tous les tuyaux et matériaux employés dans la confection de la chaudière ainsi que la qualité de la main-d'œuvre ; ce serment pourra être prêté devant un juge de paix en Canada, ou devant un notaire public, et attesté sous son sceau officiel, s'il est prêté en dehors du Canada; pourvu toujours que, dans les cas où cette déclaration sous serment, par le fabricant de la chaudière, ne pourrait être obtenu pour quelque cause jugée suffisante par l'inspecteur, l'affidavit de deux fabricants pratiques de chaudières à tubes à eau qui auront examiné la chaudière et fait rapport sur la qualité des matériaux qui y ont été employés, celle de l'ouvrage et la force de la chaudière, sera, s'il est trouvé satisfaisant par l'inspecteur, considéré comme suffisant et tiendra lieu de la déclaration requise du fabricant de la chaudière.

Art. 96. Afin d'empêcher qu'il ne s'élève de différends après qu'une chaudière à tubes à eau aura été commencée, le fabricant ou l'entrepreneur devra fournir à l'inspecteur, pour son approbation quant à son dessin et construction en général, les détails relatifs à sa construction, au moyen de dessins et de devis ; l'inspecteur, lorsqu'il aura reçu ces plans ou devis et les aura approuvés veillera à ce qu'ils soient suivis dans la construction, et il devra réduire la pression effective si ces plans n'ont pas été suivis. Le présent règlement s'appliquera aussi aux chaudières en voie de subir des changements.

Art. 97. Aucune chaudière à tubes à eau, ni aucun tuyau s'y rattachant, ne sera approuvé s'il est fait en entier ou en partie de mauvais matériaux, ou si l'ouvrage est défectueux, ou s'il est dangereux à cause de sa forme, de sa vétusté, de sa détérioration par l'usage, ou pour toute autre cause.

Art. 98. Les inspecteurs veilleront à ce que toutes les chaudières à tubes à eau neuves et les chaudières à tubes à eau qui auront été sorties d'un navire pour être réparées, soient éprouvées au moyen de la pression hydrostatique dans la proportion d'au moins deux fois la pression effective qui sera permise, avant que les chaudières ne soient placées dans le navire, et éprouver l'ouvrage et les matériaux, mais la pression effective sera établie par la force des armatures, l'épaisseur de la plaque et des tuyaux, la force des rivets, etc., et non pas par l'épreuve hydrostatique seulement.

Art. 99. L'épreuve hydrostatique ne devra pas excéder la proportion de deux fois la pression effective permise, et ne doit jamais être appliquée avant que la chaudière n'ait été ouverte pour l'examen, ni avant que la force de toutes les parties de la chaudière n'ait été calculée d'après les mesurages nécessaires pris sur la chaudière même.

Art. 100. Lorsqu'une chaudière à tubes à eau est partiellement inspectée par un inspecteur, et que l'inspection est complétée et le certificat accordé par un autre, si l'inspecteur qui était présent à l'épreuve de la chaudière par la pression hydrostatique, et en marche sous vapeur, a l'occasion de l'examiner à l'intérieur et à l'extérieur après l'épreuve, cet inspecteur fixera la pression effective qui sera permise sur la chaudière, en ayant soin d'informer les propriétaires ou le fabricant ou le capitaine ou l'agent, et l'inspecteur qui l'a partiellement inspectée, de la pression effective qu'il croit devoir être permise sur cette chaudière, et l'inspecteur qui a partiellement inspecté la chaudière devra informer l'inspecteur qui complète l'inspection de tous les détails de son inspection de la chaudière.

Art. 102. La pression permise sur la chaudière à tubes à eau ne doit jamais, dans aucune circonstance, être augmentée, à moins que l'inspecteur n'ait préalablement écrit au président du bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, pour en obtenir la permission. Dans les cas où un inspecteur croira qu'une plus forte pression peut avec sûreté être permise, il devra en informer l'inspecteur qui aura inspecté la chaudière en dernier lieu ; et si, en apprenant pourquoi la pression actuelle avait autrefois été permise, l'inspecteur est encore d'opinion qu'elle peut être augmentée, il devra communiquer tous les faits au président, mais comme il est dit plus haut, la pression ne devra, dans aucun cas, être augmentée tant que la question n'aura pas été décidée par le président.

Art. 104. Un inspecteur ne déclarera pas qu'une chaudière à tubes à eau est sûre à moins qu'il n'en connaisse tout à fait la construction, les matériaux et la main-d'œuvre. Il devra par conséquent prendre des précautions avant de s'aventurer à sanctionner une chaudière qu'il n'aura pas été appelé à inspecter avant qu'elle ait été terminée et mise en place dans le navire.

Art. 105. Dans le cas de chaudières à tubes à eau neuves, les inspecteurs autoriseront une tension n'excédant pas 5,000 livres par pouce carré de la section nette des tirants en fer plein filetés supportant des surfaces planes ; mais la tension ne devra pas dépasser 4,000 livres si les tirants ont été soudés. Lorsque la tête du tambour est assujétie au moyen d'un tirant au centre, l'aire à supporter sera d'un quart de toute l'aire de la tête, mesurée à l'intérieur du tambour. Pour les tirants dans les chaudières à tubes à eau, il pourra être permis 6,000 livres par pouce carré d'aire de profil, si d'ailleurs elles sont conformes aux chaudières auxquelles s'appliquent les règles I et II.

d = le diamètre intérieur de la tôle du tambour en pouces.
T = l'épaisseur de la tôle en seizièmes de pouces.
S = la surface supportée en pouces carrés.

(b.) Lorsque les extrémités vissées des tirants sont très corrodées ou brûlées, les constantes doivent être réduites, mais l'inspecteur doit se guider sur les circonstances constatées lors de l'inspection ; et dans le cas où il est reconnu que les extrémités vissées des tirants sont dans cet état, la constante pourra être réduite de 80 à 36. Dans les cas douteux l'inspecteur pourra soumettre le cas au président.

Art. 107. La chaudière sera ouverte à l'inspection pendant sa construction, l'inspecteur s'assurera que dans toutes les chaudières de ce genre faites après le premier jour de février 1891, la qualité de la tôle ou matière dont est fait le tambour est de la "meilleure qualité," et porte le nom ou l'étampe du fabricant, et, s'il est d'acier, que la force de tension soit d'au moins 6,000 livres, et que les épreuves des tôles (applicables lorsque le tambour est rivé longitudinalement) et des tirants sont identiques aux épreuves prescrites par l'article 36 des susdits "Règlements pour l'inspection des chaudières des bateaux à vapeur."

lorsqu'elle est exposée au choc de la chaleur de la flamme ou des gaz chauds, et non protégée par l'eau ou autre moyen satisfaisant, sera de 30,000 livres par pouce carré d'aire de profil, et lorsqu'elle n'est pas ainsi exposée, les constantes applicables sont celles établies aux parties 1 et 2 des règlements. tenant compte du percentage des sutures si elles sont rivées, et du percentage de tôle laissé par la ligne de trous là où les tubes à eau sont attachés, employant un facteur d'au moins 5, avec additions tel que prescrit dans les susdits "Règlements pour l'inspection des chaudières de bateaux à vapeur."

Les têtes de tambour des chaudières à tubes à eau pourront être soudées au tambour au lieu d'être rivées ou boulonnées au tambour, lorsque le tambour et les tôles sont en fer, et n'excèdent pas neuf pouces de diamètre. Si un tube soudé est employé pour le tambour, il devra être de fer.

Art. 109. Les soupapes de sûreté pour la chaudière Roberts ou autre de ce genre seront placées une sur le tuyau à vapeur près du tambour, et une sur le tambour, le nombre et les dimensions des soupapes de sûreté seront tel que prescrit dans les "Règlements concernant l'inspection des soupapes de sûreté."

PARTIE IV.

Règlements concernant l'inspection des soupapes de sureté.

Art. 110. (a.) Après que les règlements seront devenus exécutoires, chaque chaudière faite ou placée à bord d'un bateau à vapeur sera munie de deux soupapes de sûreté, ou plus, fermées à clef, d'une aire égale en pratique, et dont la construction sera approuvée par le bureau d'inspecteurs de bateaux à vapeur, ou par le président, si le bureau n'est pas alors en session; l'aire collective des dites soupapes de sûreté ne sera pas inférieure à celle spécifiée dans la table ci-jointe vis-à-vis la pression attribuée à la chaudière; les soupapes de sûreté devraient être posées sur la chaudière, ou aussi près que possible de la chaudière, sans tuyaux, robinets, soupapes et autres obstacles possibles entre les soupapes de sûreté et la chaudière.

Chaque inspecteur, lorsqu'il inspecte, visite ou examine la chaudière ou les machines d'un bateau à vapeur, devra s'assurer que les soupapes de sûreté y attachées sont de dimensions convenables, en nombre suffisant, bien disposées et fonctionnent bien, et ne portent que le poids nécessaire pour leur permettre de s'ouvrir à la pression ou au-dessous de la pression effective certifiée; et, s'il le juge à propos, il pourra ordonner que deux de ces soupapes de sûreté ou plus (lesquelles seront ensemble de dimensions suffisantes à laisser échapper toute la vapeur que la chaudière peut produire, et dont il approuvera la construction) soient fermées à clé et soustraite au contrôle du mécanicien lorsque la vapeur est levée; mais le mécanicien aura accès aux soupapes de sûreté lorsque la vapeur n'est pas levée, et veillera à ce qu'elles soient tenues en bon état de fonctionnement, et le capitaine du bateau à vapeur verra à ce que le mécanicien y ait accès à cette fin, et les tienne en bon état de fonctionnement.

Aucune soupape ne devra, dans aucun cas, porter un poids, ou être arrangée de manière à assujétir la chaudière à une plus grande pression que celle permise par l'inspecteur lors de sa dernière inspection.

Chaque soupape de sûreté faite ou placée à bord d'un bateau à vapeur et attachée à une chaudière devra avoir un jeu au moins égal à un quart de son diamètre, les orifices pour le passage de la vapeur en entrant et sortant, auront chacune une aire égale à l'aire de la soupape, de même que le tuyau de renvoi d'eau, et la boîte de la soupape aura un tuyau de renvoi d'eau; si le levier d'une soupape de sûreté n'est pas emboîté dans du cuivre, la cheville sera de cuivre, —le fer en contact avec le fer ne sera pas permis; chaque soupape de sûreté sera munie d'un appareil de levage de manière à pouvoir le faire fonctionner avec la main, soit de la chambre de la machine soit de la cale des feux, ou par le capitaine ou personne en charge sur le pont;

Art. 111. (a.) Instruction est donnée aux inspecteurs que dans toutes les nouvelles chaudières, et chaque fois que des changements peuvent facilement être faits, la boîte de soupape doit être placée directement sur la chaudière; et le col, ou la partie de la boîte et la bride qui est attachée à la chaudière, doivent être aussi courts que possible.

(e.) Les soupapes de sûreté doivent être placées dans des endroits convenables et d'accès facile, afin que leur ajustement et examen puissent être faits aisément et efficacement. Dans l'examen des chaudières et des machines, l'inspecteur doit surtout porter son attention aux soupapes, et chaque fois qu'il le juge nécessaire il doit s'assurer de la pression sur la chaudière en en faisant l'épreuve. L'inspecteur doit examiner les soupapes de sûreté, les poids et les ressorts à chaque inspection.

(g.) L'arbre du tiroir doit être attaché à la soupape de façon à lever en même temps que la soupape. Il doit aussi s'étendre sous les couvercles et être ajusté dans des douilles et poignées transversales, de façon à pouvoir être levé et retourné dans son siège et son fonctionnement éprouvé en tout temps.

$c$ = 8,000 pour acier rond.

$c$ = 11,000 pour acier carré.

Le ressort doit être protégé contre la vapeur et les impuretés sortant de la chaudière, et des mesures doivent être prises pour maintenir le ressort en position sur la soupape dans le cas où il se briserait.

PARTIE V.

Art. 112 (a.) Dans tous les cas, les mécaniciens, en arrêtant la machine, devront ouvrir la soupage de sûreté de façon à maintenir la vapeur dans la chaudière au-dessous de la limite fixée par le certificat de l'inspecteur, comme le prescrit la loi, ouvrir le fourneau et fermer les registres, et quand, à la suite d'un accident ou pour toute autre cause, l'eau de la chaudière est descendue au-dessous du point de sûreté, éteindre les feux immédiatement.

(d.) Le mécanicien en chef d'un vapeur est tenu responsable par le département de la Marine du soin et du bon entretien des chaudières et machines dont il a la charge. Dans aucun cas il ne devra donc s'absenter du vapeur quand il fait ses voyages réguliers, à moins qu'il ne se fasse remplacer durant son absence par une personne compétente.

---

Les demandes d'examen doivent être adressées au bureau d'inspecteurs des bateaux à vapeur, ou à l'inspecteur de la division où réside le candidat; elles seront faites sur des formules fournies à cette fin par l'inspecteur, et seront accompagnées des preuves de service et de certificats de sobriété, d'expérience et d'habileté, de bonnes mœurs et de bonne conduite en général pendant au moins les douze mois précédant immédiatement la date de la demande d'examen. Si le service s'est fait à terre, les certificats devront être signés par un patron, s'il s'est fait en mer, par le capitaine et mécanicien-chef, s'ils ne sont pas ainsi signés, de bonnes raisons devront être données à l'examinateur, car ce dernier n'acceptera aucune preuve de service ni aucuns certificats qui ne seront pas complètement satisfaisants. En l'absence de la vérification nécessaire l'aspirant ne peut être examiné.

Les mécaniciens qui pour une cause quelconque ont eu leurs certificats révoqués subiront un second examen avant de pouvoir encore porter un certificat du même grade. S'ils passent l'examen un nouveau certificat leur sera accordé. Toutefois, le ministre de la Marine pourra, dans certains cas spéciaux, sur le rapport du bureau d'inspecteurs de bateaux à vapeur, et si les circonstances le permettent, dispenser de ce nouvel examen.

Si le service est tel qu'il soit un entraînement utile pour un mécanicien, le président peut accepter le service, mais dans chaque tel cas le postulant doit faire preuve d'un service additionnel dans la chambre de la machine ou de service d'atelier de machine marine, comme plus haut.

9. Dans le cas d'aspirants à des certificats de première classe le service d'aptitude signifie service de quart régulier comme premier mécanicien en charge des machines ou chaudières. Durant tout le temps réclamé, les aspirants devront avoir été porteurs de certificats de deuxième classe.

Dans le cas d'aspirants à des certificats de deuxième classe, le service d'aptitude signifie service comme mécanicien de quart pour des machines ou chaudières. Il ne sera jamais permis de compter le temps passé en travail de bureau.

11. Faire le quart régulier signifie être de quart durant huit heures par jour au moins.

12. Le service qui donne l'expérience nécessaire pour rendre un homme compétent comme ingénieur de long cours, sera seul accepté comme service d'aptitude. Même pour un certificat de deuxième classe, l'aspirant doit prouver à la satisfaction de l'examinateur qu'il est apte par l'expérience et les connaissances d'agir comme mécanicien-chef sur un vapeur d'une force nominale moindre que 99 chevaux-vapeur dans un voyage, disons, du Canada en Angleterre, prenant pleine responsabilité pour les machines et chaudières.

14. Service dans le cabotage ou commerce de l'intérieur est considéré l'équivalent des deux-tiers de la même période passés dans le commerce de long cours.

15. Service comme gardien de quart sur un steamer de lac ou de rivière d'une force nominale d'au moins 66 chevaux-vapeur peut être accepté aux conditions suivantes:—

(1.) Le service ne comptera que pour la moitié du service en mer, c'est-à-dire chaque deux mois de service sur les lacs et rivières n'équivaut qu'à un mois de service en mer;

(2.) les aspirants à des certificats de deuxième classe doivent prouver, en outre du service de lac et rivière, au moins trois mois de service d'aptitude en mer sur un steamship d une force nominale d'au moins 66 chevaux-vapeur;

(3. les aspirants à des certificats de première classe doivent prouver, en outre du service de lac et rivière sur des vaisseaux d'une force nominale de 99 vaisseaux-vapeur, au moins six mois de service d'aptitude en mer, avec un certificat de mécanicien de deuxième classe, sur des vaisseaux d'une force nominale d'au moins 99 chevaux-vapeur.

16. Dans le cas de candidats à l'examen d'aptitudes de deuxième classe, le service fait à bord de baleiniers à hélice auxiliaire et autres vaisseaux d'une force nominale auxiliaire d'au moins 66 chevaux-vapeur, pourra être compté pour la moitié du temps que le vaisseau était réellement en mer. Si le candidat est capable de prouver qu'il a passé un plus long temps sous vapeur, il pourra compter tout ce temps de plus.

17. Le service en mer sur les dragues, seineurs ou remorqueurs à vapeur sera accepté aux conditions suivantes: Deux mois d'un tel service n'équivaudront qu'à un mois de service d'aptitude. Les aspirants à des certificats de deuxième classe peuvent faire tout leur service en mer sur des dragues, seineurs ou remorqueurs à vapeur de long cours, mais il faut qu'ils aient été de quart régulier aux machines et chaudières, et les vaisseaux doivent être d'une force nominale de 66 chevaux-vapeur. Les aspirants à des certificats de première classe doivent avoir servi sur des vaisseaux d'une force nominale d'au moins 99 chevaux-vapeur, et avoir été de quart aux machines et chaudières. En outre, ils doivent avoir servi avec un certificat d'aptitude pendant au moins six mois sur un navire à vapeur de long cours à fret ou à passagers, ou neuf mois sur un navire à vapeur de commerce intérieur à fret ou à passagers.

18. Tous les candidats seront tenus de produire, en sus des certificats officiels de congé, des preuves de leur service d'atelier et de leur service en mer. Les preuves du service d'atelier doivent être signées par le patron, et doivent porter sur la conduite et l'habileté du candidat, et énoncer dans quel genre de travail il était engagé, (c est-à-dire, ajustage, montage, etc.) et combien de temps.

22. Les preuves de service de mécaniciens étrangers et de mécaniciens anglais engagés sur des vaisseaux étrangers, qui ne peuvent être vérifiées par le régistraire général des marins, doivent être confirmées par le consul du pays auquel appartient le vaisseau sur lequel le candidat a servi, ou par quelque autre autorité officielle reconnue de ce pays; ou par le témoignage de quelque personne digne de foi ayant une connaissance personnelle des faits à établir. Toutefois, la production de ces preuves ne sera pas nécessairement jugée suffisante. Chaque cas doit être décidé sur ses propres mérites; et si la suffisance des preuves données semble quelque peu douteuse, le point doit être renvoyé au président.

ANNEXE D.

EXAMEN EN ÉBAUCHE DE DESSIN D'EXÉCUTION, POUR UN CERTIFICAT D'APTITUDE DE MÉCANICIEN DE PREMIÈRE CLASSE. (Formule Exn. 17.)

1. Les règlements de la Chambre de Commerce au sujet des qualités d'un aspirant à un certificat d'aptitude d'un mécanicien de première classe prescrivent que,—

"Il doit être capable de faire des ébauches de dessins d'exécution des différentes pièces des machines et chaudières.

"Il doit être capable d'expliquer les proportions générales qu'ont entr'elles les principales pièces de la machinerie."

5. Une partie seulement des pièces spécifiées peut être acceptée au lieu du tout, si cette partie est suffisante pour montrer que le candidat a une bonne idée pratique de la coustruction des pièces, et une notion passable de leurs proportions ou dimensions générales.

8. Le candidat est averti de ne pas commencer plus qu'il ne peut finir dans le temps fixé. Un objet important dans cette partie de l'examen est de s'assurer si le candidat est sûr de marquer toutes les dimensions nécessaires sur une esquisse ou un dessin. Cette épreuve est pratiquement de faire la pièce de l'esquisse sans avoir à fournir d'autres dimensions, et sans mesurer le dessin. Afin de démontrer cette habileté le candidat doit développer amplement les pièces indiquées dans son esquisse ou dessin, nonobstant que les pièces puissent être correctement tirées à l'échelle. Un dessin est amplement développé quand aucune partie d'icelui est laissée à l'option de la personne qui doit travailler d'après le dessin.

11. Gardez-vous d'écrire des dimensions croisées sur les lignes centrales, ou sur les lignes longitudinales. Ceci n'est pas un ordre, mais une recommandation.

"Cabotage ou commerce à l'intérieur" signifie service dans des navires à vapeur naviguant entre tout endroit ou tous endroits en Canada, et tout autre endroit ou endroits en Canada, n'étant pas un port ou lieu dans les eaux intérieures; aussi service entre un endroit ou des endroits en Canada et un autre endroit ou autres endroits dans l'Amérique du Nord qui n'oblige pas de passer au sud du parallèle de 30° de latitude nord. Service dans le cabotage équivaut à deux tiers de la même période de temps de service de long cours.

PARTIE VII.

Art. 1. Avant d'accorder un certificat les inspecteurs de coques devront s'assurer que les prescriptions de l'acte concernant l'inspection des bateaux à vapeur ont été observées.

(a.) Que la coque du bateau est suffisante pour le service auquel il est destiné, et est en bon état et en sus, ayant un ample abri et logement; avec un nombre suffisant de cabinets hygiéniques pour l'usage des passagers et de l'équipage.

Art. 3. Si un navire qui fait ordinairement le service dans une circonscription est conduit dans une autre circonscription pour être inspecté, l'inspecteur de cette dernière circonscription ne doit pas donner de certificat sans avoir d'abord communiqué avec l'inspecteur de la première circonscription; et, dans le cas de différence d'opinion, il devra renvoyer la question au président susdit, pour être décidée.

Art. 4. C'est le devoir de l'inspecteur de coques de veiller par lui-même à chaque détail de l'inspection de la coque, et équipement d'un navire, et de ne pas se fier à aucun certificat ou autre document, donné par une personne non autorisée par son département, lequel département le tiendra responsable en tous points de l'exécution du devoir qui lui est confié, et le supportera dans toute démarche raisonnable qu'il jugera nécessaire de prendre pour accomplir son devoir.

Art. 5. Chaque fois que l'inspecteur a raison de croire que la coque ou l'équipement ne peut durer aussi longtemps que douze mois il donnera son certificat pour telle période plus courte qu'il jugera à propos, en donnant aux propriétaires les raisons qui l'ont porté à agir ainsi.

Art. 6. Il est très à désirer qu'un inspecteur complète l'inspection d'un navire dans tous ces détails, une fois commencée ; et, si c'est possible, des arrangements devraient être faits avec le propriétaire à cette fin. On éviterait des délais et des inconvénients si les propriétaires notifiaient l'inspecteur que le navire est prêt à être inspecté et que son équipement est à bord.

Art. 7. Quiconque sciemment ou volontairement fait ou aide à faire ou fait faire un certificat au sujet d'un bateau à vapeur, ou qui contrefait ou aide à contrefaire ou fait contrefaire, change frauduleusement un certificat exigé par l'Acte d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, ou quelques mots ou chiffres dans un certificat, ou quelque signature y apposée, est coupable de délit.

Art. 8. Il ne doit pas être accordé de certificat pour douze mois, chaque fois que l'inspecteur a quelques doutes quant à l'efficacité d'une partie quelconque du navire ou de l'équipement pour une telle période.

Art. 9. Les inspecteurs décideront si les coques des vapeurs sont en bon état et capables de faire le service auquel ils sont destinés ; et ils devront examiner les coques de vapeurs à passagers à l'extérieur et à l'intérieur une fois par année, si possible, ou plus souvent, selon que le jugera à propos l'inspecteur eu égard au propriétaire ; et afin d'éviter des frais répétés, les propriétaires doivent avertir les inspecteurs lorsque leurs vaisseaux sont au quai, ou subissent des réparations.

Art. 10. Les vapeurs neufs seront inspectés avant d'être peinturés ou finis, mais cette inspection ne doit pas empêcher l'inspection complète de la coque et de l'équipement après parachèvement, l'objet étant de se former une idée de l'ouvrage, des matériaux et de la construction.

Art. 11. Lorsqu'un vapeur qui a été inspecté pour un certificat de passagers n'est pas sous tous rapports en bon état, bien que les défauts ne soient pas suffisants pour justifier le refus du certificat, et bien que le navire soit pratiquement propre au service projeté, l'inspecteur devrait, lorsqu'il accorde le certificat, transmettre au président un rapport sur la nature des défauts en question.

Art. 15. Tous les canots doivent être suspendus à des daviers et tenus prêts à servir à un moment donné. Les inspecteurs devront veiller à ce que tous les canots soient munis d'un assortiment complet de rames; que chaque canot ait deux tampons pour chaque trou, attachés avec des aiguillettes ou chaînes, et un assortiment et demi de tolets attachés au canot par de bonnes aiguillettes ; une écope, un gouvernail et une corde ou des cordes de timon : une amarre de bonne longueur, et une gaffe. Le gouvernail et l'amarre seront attachés aux canots par d'assez longues aiguillettes, et prêts pour le service. On devra prendre des moyens pour détacher instantanément les canots des dernières poulies du davier. On ne tolèrera pas de crochet ordinaire dans la dernière poulie passé dans un œillet fixe dans le canot.

Art. 16. Les inspecteurs devront veiller à ce que les daviers du bateau soient assez forts et assez espacés pour pouvoir lancer le canot sans travail inutile ; que les cales du canot puissent être enlevées facilement, et que le canot ne frappe pas le flanc du navire en descendant lorsque le navire n'a pas de bande, et que tous les agrès, daviers, palans, poulies, boulons à œillet et anneaux, etc., soient d'une force suffisante pour pouvoir descendre le canot avec son équipement au complet. Les palans des daviers devront être assez longs pour descendre les canots à l'eau lorsque le navire est lège. Des amarres de sauvetage seront assujéties aux daviers, d'une longueur suffisante pour atteindre l'eau lorsque le navire est lège, et il faudra allouer pour l'extrême roulis du navire.

Art. 18. Des bouées de sauvetage munies d'amarres seront fixées au moyen d'un taquet ou autre méthode semblable, de façon à ce qu'elles puissent être facilement décrochées. Elles ne doivent pas être amarrées ni attachées au garde-corps ou aucune partie du navire, mais être tenues prêtes à servir à un moment d'avis en cas d'urgence. Les bouées et gilets de sauvetage doivent être soigneusement examinés lors de l'inspection du navire, afin de s'assurer si les matières dont ils sont composées ne sont pas détériorées et si les cordes qui y sont attachées sont de longueur suffisante et en bon état de service.

Art. 20. Les inspecteurs de coques, en faisant l'inspection des vapeurs à passagers sur la côte maritime ou sur les grands lacs du Canada, doivent voir à ce qu'ils soient gréés de voilure suffisante pour leur permettre de marcher dans le cas où leurs machines se dérangeraient. Toutes ces voiles doivent être examinées par l'inspecteur, qui devra s'assurer de leur efficacité, ainsi que de tous les agrès à chaque inspection, et dans tous les cas de doute, il devra demander des instructions au président du bureau.

Art. 22. Lors de la première inspection d'un vapeur employé sur les côtes maritimes ou sur les grands lacs du Canada, qu'il soit en fer ou en bois, l'inspecteur devra exiger que les boussoles soient convenablement ajustées ou vérifiées par une personne compétente choisie par le propriétaire, sur le rapport de laquelle cette personne compétente accordera un certificat au propriétaire à l'effet que les boussoles du navire sont convenablement ajustées, et lui fournira une table d'erreurs, lequel certificat sera présenté par le propriétaire à l'inspecteur avant que celui-ci ne donne son certificat d'inspection.

Art. 23. Les inspecteurs de coques veilleront à ce que des pompes sur le pont, pour l'incendie ou l'eau de cale ou autres fins, soient convenablement placées, en nombre suffisant, et que des moyens soient pris pour atteindre les boyaux d'aspiration en cas d'engorgement. Aucune pompe nécessitant le chargement à la main avant de pouvoir fonctionner ne sera acceptée. Quand la chose se rencontre, l'inspecteur doit insister pour que des dispositions soient prises pour rendre la pompe effective en tout temps. Les boyaux à incendie devraient être tendus sur toute la longueur et parfaitement examinés et éprouvés sous la pression des pompes, au moins une fois par année, et en tout autre temps que l'inspecteur jugera nécessaire. Le boyau devrait se relier aux pompes pour usage immédiat. Aussi, que des moyens suffisants soient fournis pour épuiser l'eau de la cale, tel que requis par l'acte 25, 61 Vic., ch. 46 ; ces moyens seront notés dans le registre d'inspection du bureau.

Art. 25. Les inspecteurs de coques auront soin de s'assurer que chaque vapeur transatlantique sujet aux dispositions de l'acte, et chaque vapeur employé sur les grands lacs soient munis de tous les câbles-chaînes, ancres et agrès nécessaire, à leur service, et en bon état ; et placés de façon à pouvoir servir le plus promptement possible, que le câble soit sorti des coffres au moins une fois par année, nettoyé si c'est nécessaire, et les goupilles sorties des manilles.

Art. 27 (a.) Chaque inspecteur de coques tiendra aussi un registre de carénage, dans lequel il inscrira la date de la dernière entrée dans le bassin de chaque vapeur inspecté par lui, avec les détails des réparations qui y ont été faites; aussi un mémoire de sa dernière inspection, telle que faite par lui; l'état dans lequel il avait alors trouvé la coque et l'équipement; avec copie de toute correspondance entre lui et le propriétaire et capitaine, concernant les réparations, agrès, équipement ou autres choses qu'il faudra prouver dans le cas où elles n'auraient pas été faites.

|---|---|
| Pour les vapeurs transatlantiques le facteur sera..... | 10 |
| Pour les cabotiers maritimes..... | 10 |
| Pour les vapeurs des grands lacs..... | 9 |
| Pour les vapeurs naviguant sur les côtes des lacs et dans les ports, sur les rivières, les bateaux passeurs et bateaux d'excursion..... | 6 |

PARTIE VIII.

CONCERNANT L'INSPECTION DES CANOTS, BOUÉES ET AUTRES APPAREILS DE SAUVETAGE QUE DEVRONT PORTER LES BATEAUX À VAPEUR OU AUTRES VAISSEAUX SOUS L'EMPIRE DE L'ACTE D'INSPECTION DES BATEAUX À VAPEUR, ET SES AMENDEMENTS.

Art. 1. On observera les dispositions ci-jointes au sujet des canots que devront porter les bateaux à vapeur :—

Au moins deux canots pour chaque bateau à vapeur de plus de cinquante tonneaux, mais de moins de (300) trois cents tonneaux :

Au moins trois canots pour chaque bateau à vapeur de trois cents tonneaux et plus; et si ce bateau à vapeur est de vingt-cinq tonneaux ou moins de registre, il portera un bon canot des dimension et description, et équiper en la manière approuvée dans chaque cas par l'inspecteur; les moindres dimensions permissibles seront de quatorze pieds de longueur, quatre pieds de bau, et dix-huit pouces de profondeur en dedans.

Les bateaux à vapeur de trois cents tonneaux de registre et plus, naviguant sur les lacs Ontario, Erié, Huron, Supérieur, Baie Georgienne, ou fleuve Saint-Laurent en bas de l'île Verte, ou eaux semblables; les dimensions des canots auront au moins vingt-deux pieds de longueur en tout et partout, six pieds de bau, sur deux pieds six pouces de profondeur en dedans, et aura au moins six rames et autre agrès nécessaire.

(d.) Si ce bateau à vapeur a un tonnage de registre de deux cents tonneaux ou plus jusqu'à trois cents tonneaux : Un bon et solide canot de sauvetage qui sera censé d'une capacité suffisante s'il a les dimensions suivantes : Longueur de quille vingt-deux pieds, largeur du bau au dehors six pieds, profondeur depuis le dessus de la quille jusqu'au plat-bord, en bas des toletières, deux pieds six pouces,— ou, deux bons et solides canots de sauvetage de dix-huit pieds de longueur, décrits comme plus haut

(e.) Si ce bateau à vapeur dépasse trois cents touneaux de registre ou plus jusqu'à six cents tonneaux : deux bons et solides canots de sauvetage de vingt-deux pieds comme susdit, et pour chaque trois cents tonneaux en montant, un autre canot de sauvetage de vingt-deux pieds sera ajouté.

Art. 2. Chaque canot de sauvetage sera fait de métal convenable d'une épaisseur égale au fil métallique n° 18, ou de bois sur le modèle des baleinières, avec une tonture d'environ $\frac{3}{4}$ de pouce par pied, s'élevant également depuis le milieu du canot jusqu'à l'avant et l'arrière. Il aura de bons compartiments imperméables à l'air aux bouts et aux côtés, faits de bois ou de métal; ces compartiments auront une capacité en pieds cubes de un dixième de la capacité du canot. Cette capacité se trouve en multipliant la longueur et la largeur à l'extérieur, et la profondeur en dedans depuis le dessous des toletières ou dessus du plat-bord en pieds, et par ·6, le résultat égale les pieds cubes voulus dans les compartiments intérieurs et extérieurs, dont environ la moitié doit être à l'extérieur; et en divisant par 10, donnera le nombre de personnes que le canot de sauvetage sera censé pouvoir porter. A l'extérieur on pourra employer du liège solide au lieu de compartiments imperméables à l'air; 1·25 pieds cube de liège étant considéré égal à 1 pied cube de compartiment à air;

(c.) Les espaces remplis ou contenant quelques matières ne seront pas censés être des espaces à air;

(d.) Un bateau à poupe carrée ne sera pas considéré être un canot de sauvetage et tous les canots destinés à servir

(e.) Des cordes de sauvetage avec bouées seront convenablement attachées aux côtés ou plats-bords du canot de sauvetage.

Art. 3. Les canots de sauvetage et autres canots destinés à servir à des fins de sauvetage seront munis d'un assortiment complet de rames, une pour chaque toletière, et deux rames de rechange, bien assujéties et prêtes à servir;

(a.) Avec deux tampons pour chaque trou, attachés avec des aiguillettes ou des chaînes, et un jeu et demi de tolets attachés au canot par des aiguillettes et prêts à mettre en place;

(b.) Avec un gouvernail et un timon, et des cordes de gouvernail, une amarre assez longue pour atteindre des daviers au canot lorsqu'il est à l'eau, et le remorquer, une écope, une petite hache à chaque bout du canot, et une gaffe, aussi attachés au canot par une bonne aiguillette;

(c.) On devra prendre des moyens pour détacher instantanément les canots des dernières poulies du davier. On ne tolèrera pas de crochet ordinaire dans la dernière poulie. Les daviers du bateau devront être assez forts et assez espacés pour pouvoir lancer le canot sans travail inutile, que les cales du canot puissent être enlevées facilement, et que le canot ne frappe pas le flanc du navire en descendant lorsque le navire n'a pas de bande, et que tous les agrès, daviers, palans, poulies, boulons à œillet et anneaux, etc., soient d'une force suffisante pour pouvoir descendre le canot en sûreté avec tout son équipage et son équipement; et que les garants de palan sont assez longs pour descendre le canot à l'eau avec sûreté, lorsque le vaisseau est lège.

Art. 4. Chaque canot sera entretenu en bonne condition, étanche avec des couvertures convenables, et prêt à servir immédiatement; quand on se sert de bois pour chauffer les chaudières des bateaux à haute pression (non condenseurs) les abris de ces canots seront faits de bois recouvert de zinc; et chaque canot aura le nom du bateau à vapeur auquel il appartient, ainsi que le nom de son port d'enregistrement peinturé à l'avant et à l'arrière.

Art. 5. Chaque tel bateau à vapeur sera muni de moyens suffisants pour descendre à l'eau sûrement et promptement les canots qui sont ci-dessus requis d'être à bord ou attachés à ce bateau à vapeur; et les capitaines de bateaux à vapeur diviseront leurs équipages par escouades et les dresseront à descendre et manœuvrer les dits canots et canots de sauvetage au moins une fois par semaine, alternativement.

Art. 6. Chaque tel canot sera pendu à des daviers distincts, avec des agrès complets et prêts à le descendre sans délai; pourvu que dans le cas où un bateau à vapeur porte deux canots de sauvetage, un des autres canots pourra être porté sur le pont supérieur sans daviers.

Art. 7. Les bateaux à vapeur employés au transport du fret sur les grands lacs ou eaux semblables, seront obligés d'avoir à bord ou attachés à ces bateaux deux canots tel que prescrit au paragraphe (b) de l'art. 1, et si c'est nécessaire un de ces canots pourra être à poupe carrée; et s'ils portent un nombre limité de passagers, ils seront obligés d'avoir en sus un canot de sauvetage tel que décrit aux paragraphes c, d et e de l'art. 1.

Art. 8. Le ministre de la Marine et des Pêcheries pourra autoriser l'usage dans certains cas particuliers, d'un nombre plus ou moins grand de canots, ou de dimensions différentes de ceux ci-dessus spécifiés; et avec cette autorisation il suffira que tout tel bateau à vapeur porte et soit muni de canots des dimensions spécifiées dans telle autorisation.

Art. 9. Tout bateau à vapeur restreint à la navigation de la rivière Saint-Jean en amont de Frédéricton, les eaux du district de Muskoka, le comté de Victoria, et le comté de Peterborough dans la province d'Ontario, et les eaux de la rivière Ottawa et ses tributaires en amont de la cité d'Ottawa, y compris le canal Rideau, ou des lacs ou rivières dont la largeur n'excédera pas un mille à un point quelconque sur la route de ce bateau à vapeur et qui est employé au transport des passagers, portera au moins un bon canot tel que prescrit à l'art. 1 (b) muni de quatre rames, et si ce bateau à vapeur est de vingt-cinq tonneaux ou moins de registre la plus petite grandeur du canot ne sera pas moindre que quarante pieds cubiques de capacité.

Art. 10. Chaque bateau à vapeur employé au transport de passagers, et ne naviguant que sur des rivières ou eaux intérieures, autres que les rivières et eaux intérieures ci-dessus spécifiées, devra, si ce bateau à vapeur dépasse cent cinquante tonneaux de registre, porter au moins deux bons canots tel que prescrit à l'article 1 (b) munis de quatre rames chacun; et si ce bateau à vapeur ne dépasse pas cent cinquante tonneaux de registre et n'a pas moins que cingt-vinq tonneaux de registre, il ne sera pas tenu de porter plus qu'un tel canot; et si ce bateau à vapeur a moins que vingt-cinq tonneaux de registre, il portera un bon canot, des grandeur et description, et gréé selon que l'approuvera l'inspecteur dans chaque cas.

Art. 11. Chaque bateau à vapeur non employé au transport des passagers, et chaque bateau à vapeur auquel les dispositions des articles qui précèdent ne s'appliquent pas, devra en tout temps, lorsque son équipage est à bord, avoir à bord ou attaché à ce bateau à vapeur, dans quelque endroit propice, un bon canot solide, ou de bons canots solides, en bonne condition et convenablement équipés et munis de rames en nombre suffisant et autres agrès nécessaires, et d'une capacité suffisante pour pouvoir porter tout l'équipage de ce bateau à vapeur, avec des moyens suffisants pour descendre ce canot ou ces canots sûrement et promptement. Et les vapeurs à fret, sur les canaux, et les remorqueurs, de moins de cinquante tonneaux bruts, peuvent être équipés de canots, ou de radeaux lorsque des canots ne peuvent être utilisés selon que l'inspecteur le jugera nécessaire pour assurer la sûreté de toutes les personnes en cas de désastre.

Art. 12. Le nombre de personnes que ces canots pourront porter sera déterminé en multipliant la longueur en tout et partout par la largeur à l'extérieur, et par la profondeur en dedans depuis le dessus de la quille jusqu'au plat-bord en pieds, par ·6, et divisant par 8, le quotient donnera le nombre de personnes que chaque canot pourra porter. Si les rames sont posées dans des tolets, le dessous des toletières sera censé être le plat-bord du canot pour constater sa profondeur.

Art. 13. Les radeaux de sauvetage doivent être approuvés par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur avant de déterminer le nombre de personnes qu'ils pourront porter; pourvu que trois pieds cubes au moins de forts et bons compartiments à air construits de façon que l'eau n'y puisse pénétrer seront le montant d'espace d'air alloué à chaque personne portée sur le radeau.

Art. 14. Pour qu'un appareil flottant soit approuvé il ne faut pas qu'il soit nécessaire de le gonfler avant de s'en servir; il devra être de construction approuvée, et marqué de façon à indiquer distinctement le nombre de personnes adultes qu'il peut porter.

La flottabilité de cet appareil, en proportion du nombre de personnes à porter, peut être déterminée en divisant par 32 le nombre de livres de fer qu'il peut supporter dans l'eau douce.

Art. 15. Une bouée de sauvetage approuvée sera faite de liège solide capable de flotter sur l'eau au moins 24 heures avec 32 livres de fer y attachées; ou—

Des canots qui s'emboîtent pourront être employés s'ils sont approuvés par un inspecteur, avec le consentement du président.

Art. 16. Nul nouveau modèle ou matière pour les canots, radeaux ou bouées de sauvetage ne sera passé avant d'être approuvé par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur.

Art. 17. Chaque bateau à vapeur non exempt des dispositions de l'Acte d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, devra, avant de prendre la mer d'un port ou endroit en Canada, se munir et porter à son bord à chaque voyage, une ceinture de sauvetage pour chaque personne à bord, y compris l'équipage.

Art. 18. Chacune de ces ceintures de sauvetage sera capable de flotter dans l'eau douce pendant 24 heures, avec 15 livres de fer y attachées. Elles seront échancrées d'au moins de 2 pouces sous les aisselles, convenablement arrondies et ajustées de façon à ne pas se déranger une fois mises, avec bretelles et ceinturon, de corde de coton ou autre matière approuvés par l'inspecteur. Si d'autre matière que du liège solide est employée pour faire flotter, elle sera d'abord approuvée spécialement par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, et les ceintures de sauvetage seront en tout temps gardées dans un endroit accessible et à la main dans les cabines ou sur le pont du bateau, bien abritées et prêtes à servir à tout instant. Les endroits où elles seront gardées seront marqués de façon que leur position soit connue de ceux auxquels elles sont destinées.

Art. 19. Un gilet de liège avec bretelles et ceinturons pour le fixer autour du corps, ou toute autre espèce de ceinture de sauvetage que le Gouverneur général en conseil pourra approuver, sera la forme de ceinture de sauvetage à employer sur les bateaux à passagers.

Barges à passagers à la remorque.

Art. 20. Avant qu'une barge, chaloupe, bateau, chalan ou vaisseau non ponté ayant des passagers à bord, toué par un bateau à vapeur, reçoive un certificat d'inspection, il devra être muni d'un canot ou de canots, de ceintures, bouées et radeaux de sauvetage, ou de tous et chacun des équipements mentionnés au présent article, en sus de l'équipement mentionné dans l'Acte d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur, à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur des bateaux à vapeur qui l'inspecte, qui exigera qu'il soit équipé d'un appareil convenable pour sauver la vie pour les eaux sur lesquelles il navigue, ainsi que les commodités convenables pour l'usage des passagers.

CANOTS ET APPAREILS DE SAUVETAGE QUE DEVRONT PORTER LES STEAMSHIPS NAVIGUANT SUR L'OCÉAN.

Division (A)—Classe 1.

Art. 21. (a.) Les navires de la division (A), classe 1, porteront des canots pendus à des daviers, prêts à servir, et ayant des appareils convenables pour les descendre à l'eau, en nombre et de la capacité prescrits dans la Table aux présents règlements (voir art. 37) ; ces canots seront équipés et seront de la description, tel que l'exigent les règles générales ci-jointes ;

Conformément aux dispositions contenues dans le paragraphe (f) des présents règlements, ces canots ou radeaux additionnels devront avoir conjointement avec celle des canots pendus à des daviers prescrit par la table, une capacité collective d'au moins trois quarts. pour les navires jaugeant 5,000 tonneaux bruts et plus, et pour les navires jaugeant 5,000 tonneaux bruts, la moitié, plus que le contenu minimum cube requis par la colonne 3 de cette table. Pour cela 3 pieds cubes de boîte à air dans le radeau de sauvetage seront estimés comme 10 pieds cubes de capacité à l'intérieur. Pourvu toujours que les radeaux puissent porter toutes les personnes pour lesquelles ils sont certifiés en vertu des règlements, et aient aussi 3 pieds cubes de boîte à air pour chaque personne.

(f.) Pourvu toutefois, que nul navire de cette classe ne sera requis de porter plus de canots ou de radeaux qu'il n'est nécessaire pour toutes les personne.. à bord.

Division (B).—Classe 1.

Règles pour les navires à vapeur faisant le cabotage porteurs de certificats les autorisant à transporter des passagers dans certaines limites spécifiées.

Art. 22. (a.) Les navires de cette classe devront, selon leur tonnage, porter des canots pendus à des daviers tel que requis par la table. (Voir art. 37).

Division (A).—Classe 2.

Règles pour les navires à vapeur de long cours ou de cabotage non autorisés à transporter des passagers.

Division (B).—Classe 2.

Transports de poisson (à vapeur), remorqueurs, et allèges à vapeur qui vont en mer.

Art. 24. (a.) Les navires de cette classe porteront un canot des sections (A), (B) ou (C), arrangé de façon à ce qu'il puisse être facilement mis à l'eau d'un côté ou l'autre du navire, et amplement capable de porter toutes les personnes à bord.

(b.) Ils porteront deux bouées de sauvetage approuvées.

Règles générales.

Art. 25. (1.) Tous les canots seront construits et équipés convenablement tel que prescrit par les présents règlements, et tous les canots et autres appareils de sauvetage devront être tenus prêts à servir, à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur. L'appareil flottant intérieur pourra être fait de bois, ou de cuivre rouge ou de métal jaune d'au moins 10 oz. au pied en superficie, ou d'autre matière durable.

Section (A.)—Un canot de cette section sera un canot de sauvetage, en forme de baleinière, convenablement construit de bois ou de métal, ayant pour

chaque 10 pieds cubes de capacités computée d'après la règle (2), au moins 1 pied cube de forts et bons compartiments à air, construits de façon à ce que l'eau n'y puisse entrer. Dans le cas de canots en métal, une addition sera faite à la capacité cube des compartiments à air, de façon à leur donner une flottabilité égale à celle des canots de bois.

Section (B.)—Un canot de cette section sera un canot de sauvetage en forme de baleinière, convenablement construit de bois ou de métal, ayant un appareil flottant prescrit pour un canot de la section (A). Au moins la moitié de l'appareil flottant doit être attachée à l'extérieur du canot.

Section (C).—Un canot de cette section sera un canot de sauvetage convenablement construit de bois ou de métal. ayant quelque appareil flottant attaché à l'intérieur et (ou) à l'extérieur du canot égal en efficacité à la moitié de l'appareil flottant prescrit pour un canot de la section (A) ou section (B). Au moins la moitié de l'appareil flottant doit être attachée à l'extérieur du canot.

Art. 26. (2).—La capacité cube d'un canot sera censée être sa capacité cube constatée d'après la règle Stirling, comme dans le mesurage du tonnage des navires; mais vu que l'application de cette règle exige beaucoup de travail le simple plan suivant, qui est approximativement exact, peut être adopté pour des fins générales, et alors qu'il n'est pas soulevé de question de mesurage absolument juste.

Mesurez la longueur et la largeur à l'extérieur et la profondeur à l'intérieur. Multipliez-les ensemble et par ·6; le produit donne la capacité du canot en pieds cubes. Ainsi, un canot de 28 pieds de longueur, 8 pieds 6 pouces de largeur, et 3 pieds 6 pouces de profondeur, sera censé avoir une capacité de 28 x 8·5 x 3·5 x ·6 = 499·8, ou 500 pieds cubes. Si les rames sont mises dans des tolets le dessous des toletières doit être considéré le plat-bord du canot pour mesurer sa profondeur.

Art. 27 (3.) Le nombre de personnes qu'un canot de la section (A) est censé capable de porter, sera le nombre de pieds cubes constaté d'après la règle 2 divisé par 10.

Le nombre de personnes qu'un canot de la section (B), section (C), section (D) ou section (E) sera censé capable de porter sera le nombre de pieds cubes constaté d'après la règle 2 divisé par 8. L'espace dans le canot sera suffisant pour y asseoir les personnes qu'il porte, et pour le bon fonctionnement des rames.

Art. 28 (4.) Les appareils pour mettre un canot à l'eau devront remplir les conditions suivantes:—On prendra des moyens de détacher avec promptitude, (mais il n'est pas nécessaire que ce soit simultanément ou automatiquement), le canot des dernières poulies du davier; les canots pendus à des daviers doivent être tenus prêts à servir; les daviers doivent être assez forts et assez espacés pour pouvoir lancer le canot avec facilité; les points d'attache des canots aux daviers doivent être assez éloignés des bouts des canots pour permettre qu'ils soient lancés sans toucher aux daviers; les cales des canots doivent être telles qu'elles puissent être promptement enlevées; les daviers, palans, poulies, boulons à œillet, anneaux, et tout l'agrès doivent être assez forts; les palans des canots doivent être assez longs pour descendre le canot à l'eau avec sûreté lorsque le navire est lège. Les cordes de sauvetage seront attachées aux daviers et seront assez longues pour atteindre l'eau lorsque le navire est lège; et il ne sera pas attaché de crochets aux dernières poulies de l'agrès.

Art. 29 (5.) Pour qu'un canot soit bien équipé il doit avoir—

Art. 30 (6). Pour être convenablement équipé, chaque canot des sections (A) et (B) devra, en sus des articles requis par la règle 5, être équipé comme ci-dessous, (mais il suffira que quatre canots par navire aient cet équipement, et quand des canots des sections (A) ou (B) sont portés au lieu de canots des sections (C) ou (D), cet équipement additionnel ne sera pas indispensable:—

(c.) Une corde faisant le tour du canot en dehors, et bien assujétie.

(f.) Un fanal rempli d'huile, capable de durer huit heures.

Art. 31 (7). Le nombre de personnes que sera censé pouvoir porter un radeau de sauvetage approuvé pour servir en mer, sera fixé selon les divers modèles approuvés par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur; pourvu toutefois, que pour chaque personne ainsi portée il y ait eu moins 3 pieds cubes de forts et bons compartiments à air, construits de façon à ce que l'eau ne puisse y pénétrer. Tout autre radeau de sauvetage d'un modèle approuvé pourra être employé, pourvu qu'il ait une flottabilité équivalente à celle ci-dessus décrite. Chaque tel radeau de sauvetage sera marqué de manière à indiquer distinctement le nombre d'adultes qu'il peut porter.

Art. 32 (8). Un appareil flottant approuvé sera censé efficace, quant à la légèreté, pour un nombre de personnes qui sera déterminé en divisant par 32 le nombre de livres de fer qu'il est capable de supporter dans l'eau douce. Il ne faut pas qu'il soit nécessaire de le gonfler avant de s'en servir, il devra être de construction approuvée et marqué de façon à indiquer distinctement le nombre de personnes adultes qu'il peut porter.

Art. 33 (9). Une ceinture de sauvetage approuvée veut dire une ceinture qui n'a pas besoin d'être gonflée avant de s'en servir, et qui est capable de flotter sur l'eau pendant 24 heures au moins avec 15 livres de fer y attachées. Les ceintures de sauvetage doivent être échancrées de 2 pouces sous les aisselles, et ajustées de manière à rester en place une fois mises.

Art. 34 (10). Une bouée de sauvetage approuvée veut dire soit—

Toutes les bouées de sauvetage seront munies de bonnes attaches, et deux d'entr'elles au moins seront munies de cordes de sauvetage longues de 15 brasses.

Art. 35. (11.) Toutes les bouées et ceintures de sauvetage seront placées de façon à être facilement accessibles à toutes les personnes à bord, et de façon à ce que leur position soit connue de ceux qui pourraient en avoir besoin.

Art. 36. (12.) Quand des navires d'une classe quelconque sont divisés en bons compartiments à air à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur des bateaux à vapeur avec le consentement du président, ils ne seront tenus de porter des canots, radeaux et appareils flottants additionnels que pour la moitié de la capacité requise par les présents règlements, mais cette exemption ne s'étendra pas aux gilets de sauvetage ou autres articles semblables approuvés d'égale légèreté propres à porter sur la personne.

Pour les vaisseaux jaugeant moins que 200 tonneaux bruts, la capacité de tout canot à fournir ne doit pas être moindre que 125 pieds cubes. Toutefois, s'il se trouve des cas où cette règle est impraticable, l'inspecteur avec l'approbation du président pourra alors exercer sa discrétion.

INSTRUCTIONS QUANT A L'INTERPRÊTATION DES RÈGLES CONCERNANT LES APPAREILS DE SAUVETAGE.

Art. 38. Quant aux canots des sections A, B, C et D, article 25, les inspecteurs veilleront à ce que les exigences des règles soient observées, et que la capacité des canots et le nombre de personnes qu'ils peuvent porter, soient obtenus d'après les règles 2 et 3 (Articles 26 et 27). En mesurant les canots les longueur et largeur extrêmes doivent être considérées comme les dimensions extrêmes mesurées jusqu'en dehors du bordage. Toutefois, le nombre de personnes pour lequel un canot est accepté, est assujéti à cette autre condition que l'espace dans le canot est suffisant pour asseoir toutes les personnes, et manier les rames convenablement. On s'assure que cette condition est remplie au moyen d'expériences pratiques dans tous les cas avant d'accorder une déclaration, à moins qu'un ou plusieurs canots sur un navire soient du même modèle alors il suffira d'éprouver un seul de ces canots. Les canots de sauvetage (sauf ceux de la section C) doivent être construits en forme de baleinière ; les deux bouts semblables. Dans les navires qui ont été équipés de canots avant l'entrée en vigueur des présentes règles, les canots à poupe carrée peuvent être acceptés s'ils remplissent les conditions de légèreté, mais tous les canots des sections A et B subséquemment fournis ou fournis à des navires neufs, doivent être construits en baleinière. Tous les canots pliants, et tous les canots pliants ou non, s'ils sont construits de quelque matière autre que du bois ou du métal, doivent être conformes à un modèle approuvé par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur avant d'être acceptés comme une partie des appareils de sauvetage exigés par les règles.

Art. 39. Tous les canots que les règles exigent d'être placés sous les daviers doivent être tenus prêts à servir, et lorsqu'ils sont remontés à bord, et placés sur les cales, ces cales doivent être construites de façon que le canot puisse être lancé en dehors du navire sans qu'il soit nécessaire de le lever par les palans—c'est-à-dire, il devra suffire de prendre le poids du canot.

Lorsque les règles exigent de porter un canot de la section C, et que les propriétaires préfèrent fournir un canot de la section A, ou de la section B, les équipements supplémentaires requis par la règle 6 pour les canots de la section A et section B ne seront pas obligatoires.

Dans quelques-uns des canots pliants il est difficile de poser un gouvernail : dans ce cas une rame bien ajustée sera acceptée et remplacera le gouvernail.

La flottabilité des canots de sauvetage de la section B doit être mi-partie en dedans et mi-partie en dehors du canot, et un canot dans lequel la flottabilité est totalement en dedans ou totalement en dehors ne sera pas accepté comme canot de la section B.

Dans le cas de canots de sauvetage de la section C, la moitié de la flottabilité doit être en dehors du canot, le restant peut être soit en dedans ou en dehors, ou partie en dedans et partie en dehors.

La flottabilité extérieure pour les canots de la section B doit consister en liège recouvert de canevas, et peinturé et attaché à l'extérieur du canot à la satisfaction des inspecteurs, tant qu'à sa position qu'à ses attaches. Aucune autre matière ne doit être employée que celle expressément sanctionnée par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur. La flottabilité extérieure doit être égale à au moins la moitié de la légèreté requise pour les canots de la section A, et la flottabilité intérieure et extérieure ensemble doit égaler en efficacité la flottabilité requise pour un canot de la section A. A cet effet 1·25 pieds cubique de liège doit être considéré l'équivalent de 1 pied cubique de boîte à air.

Les remarques qui précèdent s'appliquent à la flottabilité extérieure pour les canots de la section C, sauf que la flottabilité totale n'a besoin que d'être la moitié de celle pour les canots de la section A ou la section B. Lorsque le liège solide n'est pas attaché permanemment au côté d'un canot de manière que l'humidité ne puisse s'amasser entre les deux surfaces, il faudra qu'il soit enlevé chaque fois qu'une déclaration est accordée pour s'assurer (1) si le liège devient trempé ; (2) si l'humidité s'accumule entre le liège et l'enveloppe du canot, et de cette façon fait pourrir le bois. La considération (2) ne s'appliquera pas aux canots en métal.

Art. 41. Les règles exigent que les boîtes à air soient construites de bois, ou de cuivre ou de métal jaune au moins 18 onces au pied de superficie, ou d'autre matière durable. Le poids moyen des boîtes à air de cuivre de 18 onces est d'environ 5 livres par pied cubique, et si les boîtes à air d'autre matière excède ce poids, la capacité cubique des boîtes à air doit être augmentée en proportion.

Avec le temps le métal jaune devient cassant, le cuivre est bien préférable. Le zinc n'est pas une matière durable, et ne doit pas être accepté ; ni le fer galvanisé ni les boîtes d'acier doivent être acceptés pour des canots neufs.

Dans chaque district on doit prendre note de tous les navires dont les canots sont déjà équipés de boîtes à air en fer galvanisé ou en acier, dans l'intention de les inspecter fréquemment. Les boîtes à air en acier ou de fer antérieurement acceptées d'une moindre épaisseur que 21 onces ne doivent pas être rejetées tant qu'elles continueront en bon état.

Les boîtes ne doivent pas excéder quatre pieds de longueur, elles doivent être solidement encaissées de bois, à joints serrés, de manière à couvrir toute partie exposée de la boîte à air, et le bois qui forme le dessus doit avoir un pouce d'épaisseur au moins.

Les espaces remplis de quelque matière ne doivent pas être considérés des espaces à air, à moins d'être spéciale-

ment approuvés par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur.

Les boîtes à air de cuivre ou de métal jaune ne doivent pas venir en contact avec l'enveloppe des canots de métal.

Là où les règles n'exigent pas que les canots soient équipés de boîtes à air, mais qui sont ainsi équipés, comme, par exemple, les canots pliants ou semi-pliants, les présentes dispositions concernant les boîtes à air pourront ne pas être appliquées.

Art. 42. Dans le cas de chaloupes ou autres bateaux mus par la vapeur, qui sont portés comme partie de l'équipement de canots exigé par les règles faites en vertu de l'Acte de la marine marchande, une inspection du canot, de la machinerie, et des chaudières, et de leur ajustage et montage, devra être faite. Les chaloupes à vapeur ne doivent pas être acceptées comme partie de l'équipement de canots qui doivent être tenus sous des daviers.

Art. 44. Les appareils pour descendre les canots doivent être conformes à la règle 4 des Règlements Généraux, et de l'avis des inspecteurs, doivent être de nature à ne pas mettre la vie en danger. Ils doivent être éprouvés à chaque inspection pour renouvellement d'un certificat de passagers.

Afin d'assurer une uniformité dans la pratique, chaque inspecteur qui accepte un appareil à débrayage, devra prier le fabricant de fournir 25 copies des plans et devis pour distribuer aux inspecteurs dans les divers districts. Ces copies devront être envoyées au président par l'inspecteur, avec son rapport sur l'appareil. Il ne sera pas delivré de certificat d'approbation pour des appareils de débrayage.

L'inspecteur devra aussi faire rapport au président lorsqu'un appareil de débrayage a été inspecté et jugé dangereux, et devra aussi expliquer au long dans ce rapport les détails qui le rendent impropre, suivant lui. Toutefois, aucun certificat formel ne sera accordé par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur ou ses officiers pour aucun genre spécial d'appareil.

Nulle partie de l'appareil qui est destinée à porter le poids du canot ne doit être faite de fonte.

Art. 45. Les radeaux de sauvetage devront être approuvés par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur; ils devront être munis d'un équipement convenable à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur, et ceci doit comprendre une ancre du large, au moins 20 brasses de aussière, et des rames en proportion de la grandeur du radeau.

Le nombre de personnes que peut porter un radeau de sauvetage approuvé pour la mer, est le nombre de personnes assises que le radeau peut contenir sans danger pourvu toujours que pour chaque personne ainsi portée il y ait au moins trois pieds cubiques de forts compartiments imperméables à l'air.

Pour s'assurer qu'un appareil flottant est suffisant pour un certain nombre de personnes, on divise par 32 le nombre de livres de fer qu'il est capable de supporter dans de l'eau douce, pourvu aussi que les côtés et les bouts donnent un espace d'un pied horizontal pour chaque personne que le radeau est censé capable de porter et qu'une corde soit attachée tout autour pour pouvoir s'y cramponner. Ces appareils flottants n'auront pas besoin d'être gonflés avant de servir, et seront d'une construction approuvée.

Art. 46. Les inspecteurs verront à ce que les radeaux et les appareils flottants soient marqués de manière à indiquer clairement le nombre de personnes adultes qu'ils sont réputés contenir, tel que déterminé par le contenu net en pieds cubiques, d'après la proportion dans les articles 31 et 45, et aucun radeau ni appareil flottant ne sera réputé finalement approuvé avant d'être ainsi marqué d'une manière ferme et lisible.

Art. 47. Les instructions au sujet des canots de sauvetage s'appliquent également aux radeaux de sauvetage et appareils flottants, quant à la longueur, poids, et entourage des boîtes à air, sauf que les radeaux de sauvetage et appareils flottants n'étant destinés à servir que dans le besoin extrême, et en conséquence non exposés à la même usure que les canots de sauvetage, un poids minimum de 16 onces de cuivre ou de métal jaune peut être accepté.

Art. 48. Aucune ceinture de sauvetage ne sera acceptée qui n'est pas capable de flotter sur l'eau douce pendant 24 heures avec 15 livres de fer y attachées. Elle devra être échancrée de 2 pouces sous les aisselles, et ajustées de façon à ne pas se déranger une fois mises. Si d'autre matière que du liège solide est employée pour faire flotter, elle devra être spécialement approuvée par le bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur. Toutes les nouvelles ceintures de sauvetage seront munies de bretelles ajustables.

Les vaisseaux pour distribuer de l'huile devront être à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur, et devront être construits de façon à distribuer l'huile également et graduellement sur la surfuce de l'eau.

Art. 50. Les ceintures de sauvetage, bouées de sauvetage et autre appareil flottant doivent être soigneusement examinés à chaque inspection, et les inspecteurs doivent s'assurer que le matériel flottant n'est pas trempé, et que les courroies et cordes sont suffisantes. On doit apporter une attention spéciale à la question de flottabilité dans le cas d'une ceinture de sauvetage approuvée, qui n'est pas construite de liège solide.

Art. 51. L'assortiment complet d'appareils de sauvetage exigé pour le nombre maximum de personnes pour lequel une déclaration est accordée, doit toujours être à bord lors de l'inspection. Si aucuns des appareils sont enlevés lorsque le vaisseau ne porte pas son nombre complet de passagers, la responsabilité retombera sur le propriétaire. Lorsqu'une réduction est faite dans le nombre total de passagers pour lequel logement est fourni, à cause de l'insuffisance des appareils de sauvetage, le nombre actuellement réduit de personnes que peut porter chaque classe sera mentionné dans la déclaration.

PARTIE IX.

PRÉCAUTIONS CONTRE LES INCENDIES.

1. Il y aura à bord de tout bateau à vapeur faisant le service des passagers, soit par mer, soit sur une baie, un lac, un fleuve ou une rivière, et placés dans un endroit convenable, au moins vingt-cinq bons seaux à incendie en métal ou en cuir, cinq haches et six bonnes lanternes, le tout approuvé par l'inspecteur; cependant, les bateaux à vapeur transportant des passagers, dont le tonnage brut sera de plus de soixante-quinze tonneaux et de moins de cent cinquante tonneaux, n'auront pas besoin d'avoir à bord plus de douze seaux à incendie, et les bateaux à vapeur transportant des passagers, dont le tonnage brut sera de soixante-quinze tonneaux ou moins, et les remorqueurs à vapeur d'un tonnage brut de moins de cent cinquante tonneaux, ne seront pas tenus d'avoir à bord plus de six seaux à incendie, ou plus de trois haches.

2. Tout bateau à vapeur ne faisant pas le service des passagers, et tout bateau à vapeur auquel ne s'appliquent pas les dispositions de l'article immédiatement précédent, devront avoir à bord, dans un endroit convenable, un nombre de bons seaux à incendie, en métal, en cuir, ou autre matière convenable, et un nombre de haches et de lanternes en proportion du nombre des hommes de l'équipage, et à la satisfaction de l'inspecteur.

3. Tout bateau à vapeur employé au transport des passagers n'aura pas moins de trois pompes foulantes à doubles effet avec cylindres d'au moins quatre pouces de diamètre et une course de pas moins de six pouces ; deux de ces pompes fonctionneront à bras et l'autre par la vapeur, si celle-ci peut y être appliquée sans qu'on ait recours à la machine principale, sinon, toutes trois fonctionneront à bras : l'une d'elles sera placée près de la poupe, une autre près de la proue, la troisième au milieu du bateau ; chacune sera munie d'un boyau bien adapté, d'une longueur égale aux deux tiers au moins de celle du bateau, et garni d'une bonne lance ; et elle devra être toujours tenue parfaitement en ordre, libre de tout embarras de fret ou autre, avec les boyaux accouplés et prêts à servir ; chaque pompe et chaque accouplement seront munis d'une clé ou tourne-à-gauche, qui y sera attachée par une chaîne ; et chacune des dites pompes sera alimentée d'eau par un tuyau s'y rattachant et prenant l'eau sur le côté de la coque, assez bas pour être immergé en tout temps lorsque le navire est à flot.

6. Dans les bateaux à vapeur à passagers dont le port n'excédera pas deux cents tonneaux bruts et n'exigeant qu'une seule pompe, cette pompe sera placée à l'arrière, à moins que l'espace à l'avant ne soit libre et ne permette d'avoir un accès facile à la pompe et au boyau, auquel cas la pompe pourra être placée à l'avant.

7. Toutes pompes à vapeur devront avoir un tuyau convenable de communication avec la cale, garni d'une crépine ou boîte à vase appropriée ; et il y aura aussi un siphon à vapeur, éjecteur ou autre appareil propre à épuiser l'eau de cale.

8. Si, dans un bateau à vapeur, il a été posé un ou plusieurs tubes de métal d'un diamètre non moindre que celui du boyau à incendie, ces tubes étant en communication avec une ou plusieurs pompes foulantes, et étant munis de prises d'eau, placées à trente pieds au plus l'une de l'autre ou de l'une des extrémités du bateau, et disposées de manière que le tuyau s'y ajuste aisément,—il ne sera pas nécessaire que le boyau ait plus que la longueur suffisante pour atteindre de quelqu'une de ces prises à l'une ou l'autre extrémité du bateau ; et chaque prise d'eau devra être munie d'une soupape d'arrêt ou d'un robinet d'arrêt, et des clefs ou tourne-à-gauche devront être convenablement fixés ou retenus par une chaîne à chaque soupape d'arrêt, robinet ou prise, de manière qu'un ou plusieurs boyaux d'attache puissent fonctionner au besoin.

RÈGLEMENTS CONCERNANT L'INSPECTION DES ARBRES MOTEURS DE BATEAUX À VAPEUR.

Aucun arbre moteur, arbre de couche, arbre droit ou arbre des roues ayant un moindre diamètre que celui trouvé par la formule suivante, ne devrait être accepté sans avoir d'abord soumis le cas au président du Bureau d'inspection des bateaux à vapeur. On trouvera que les fabricants de première classe posent généralement des arbres moteurs plus gros que ceux obtenus par la formule.

Pour les machines mixtes à condenser avec deux cylindres ou plus, lorsque les axes coudés ne sont pas suspendus :

$$P = \frac{f \times S^3}{C \times D^2}\left(2 + \frac{D^2}{d^2}\right)$$

Lorsque S = le diamètre de l'arbre en pouces.

Lorsque $D^2$ = le carré du diamètre d'un cylindre à basse pression en pouces, ou la somme des carrés des diamètres dans les cas où il y a deux cylindres à basse pression ou plus.

Lorsque P = la pression absolue en livres par pouce carré, c'est-à-dire la pression de chaudière plus 15 livres.

Lorsque C = la longueur de l'axe coudé en pouces.

Lorsque $f$ = la constante d'après la table suivante.

NOTE.—Les cylindres à pression intermédiaire ne paraissent pas dans la formule.

Pour les machines à condenser ordinaires, avec un ou deux cylindres et plus, alors que les axes coudés ne sont pas suspendus :—

$$S = \sqrt[3]{\frac{C \times P \times D^2}{3 \times f}}$$

$$P = \frac{3 \times f \times S^3}{C \times D^2}$$

Lorsque S = le diamètre en pouces.

P = la pression absolue en livres par pouce carré, c'est-à-dire la pression de la chaudière plus 15 livres.

C = la longueur de l'axe coudé en pouces.

RÈGLEMENTS CONCERNANT L'EPREUVE DE NOUVELLES MACHINES À BORD DE VAPEURS À PASSAGERS.

RÈGLES POUR CALCULER LA FORCE NOMINALE EN CHEVAUX DES MACHINES DE MARINE.

POUR LES MACHINES ORDINAIRES À CONDENSER.

D = le diamètre du cylindre en pouces.

N = le nombre de cylindres.

POUR LES MACHINES MIXTES À CONDENSER.

D = le diamètre du cylindre à basse pression en pouces

$d$ = le diamètre du cylindre à haute pression en pouces

N = le nombre de cylindres à basse pression.

$n$ = le nombre de cylindres à haute pression.

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

Wednesday, the 28th day of December, 1904.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

ON a Report dated 5th December, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, stating that the New Walrond Ranche Company, Limited, are the successors of Sir John Walrond and the Walrond Ranche Company, to whom leases were issued of certain grazing lands in the District of Alberta.

By an Order in Council dated the 22nd of April, 1893, provision was made that leases for grazing purposes of Dominion Lands which did not provide for the withdrawal of lands for settlement purposes would be terminated on and after the 31st day of December, 1896, and that the holders of such leases would then, or at any other time during the interval be permitted to purchase not in excess of ten per cent of their leaseholds at the rate of $1.25 per acre, payable one-tenth down and the balance in nine equal annual instalments, with interest at the rate of 6% per annum upon the unpaid balances.

The Minister further states that under the provisions of this Order in Council The New Walrond Ranche Company were entitled to purchase ten per cent of the area of their leaseholds at the above rate, but application was made for only a portion of the land within the period specified in the Order in Council. Application has since been made by this company for permission to acquire 17,000 acres of land under the provisions of the Order in Council of the 22nd of April, 1893, above referred to, which tract includes certain lands which have been reserved for stock watering purposes. Mr. W. W. Stuart, Inspector of Ranches, has reported that, as the country surrounding these stock watering reserves is for the most part under the control of the New Walrond Ranche Company, the reserves are of no value as such to the general public.

The Minister recommends that he be authorized to sell to the New Walrond Ranche Company the 17,000 acres of land for which they have applied under the terms of the Order in Council of the 22nd of April, 1893, the sale to be antedated to the 31st of December, 1896, and interest on the purchase money at the prescribed rate to be charged from that date to the date of payment ; and that in view of the report made by the Inspector of Ranches, the lands included in the application which are reserved for stock watering purposes, be withdrawn from such reservations and sold to the company at the regulation price of $3.00 an acre, such area to form a portion of the 17,000 acres referred to, but the date of the sale to be that of the Order in Council authorizing the same.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

30-4 Clerk of the Privy Council.

[Ref. 475,138.]

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

Saturday, the 17th day of December, 1904.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

ON a Report dated 29th November, 1904, from the Minister of the Interior, submitting that in February, 1900, Mr. James Haddock, of Dawson, applied for a lease under the provisions of the regulations then in force, of an hydraulic mining location situated on Dublin Gulch, a tributary of Haggart Creek, a branch of the McQuesten River, in the Yukon Territory, and certificates were issued by the proper officers of the Department of the Interior at Dawson to the effect that it had been proved that the applicant himself, or a person acting for him, had been upon and actually prospected the ground included in this location, and that the ground included in such location was not being worked and was not suitable to be worked under the regulations governing placer mining.

The Minister states that owing to a succession of delays which took place in connection with this application, through no fault of the applicant, it was not granted up to the 2nd of February, 1904, on which date, by an Order of the Governor in Council, the regulations governing the issue of leases for hydraulic mining purposes in the Yukon Territory were rescinded, but the Minister of the Interior was still authorized to deal in accordance with the provisions of the regulations with all leases already issued, and with all applications already granted.

The Minister further states that in August, 1903, application was made to the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory for instructions for the survey of the location applied for, but the applicant was informed that as his application had not been granted by the Department of the Interior, instructions for the survey of the location could not be issued. Upon further consideration, however, the Commissioner authorized the issue of the instructions for the survey of the location, upon the understanding that the issue thereof would not convey to the applicant any guarantee that the application for a lease would be favourably considered, and this provision was inserted in the instructions for the survey. The survey, however, was made, and the returns thereof were approved by the Director of Surveys at Dawson, and were forwarded to the Department of the Interior at Ottawa.

That the Commissioner in May last reported that the location applied for by Mr. Haddock is, in his opinion, quite unlikely to be worked except by hydraulic mining methods; that, if it were feasible, there would be no objection to granting an hydraulic mining lease for the location applied for by Mr. Haddock; and that he is quite convinced that mining operations will never be carried on upon Dublin Gulch to any extent, unless some large operators obtain the property and work it on an extensive scale by hydraulic methods.

That as it appears from the evidence on file in the Department of the Interior that the applicant made an earnest effort to have his application granted during the period that the regulations were in force, and as the provisions of the regulations under which the application was made have been fully complied with, the Minister is of the opinion that the interests of placer miners in that locality would not suffer if the tract for which Mr. Haddock has applied were included in an hydraulic mining lease.

The Minister, therefore, recommends that he be authorized to issue a lease in favour of Mr. Haddock of the location, as shown on the plan of survey thereof filed in the Department of the Interior, excluding thereout any placer mining claims for which entries may have been granted, and which are in force on the date of the issue of such lease, and he further recommends that provision shall be made in the lease that the lessee shall, during the first two years from the date of the issue, complete the ditches and flumes necessary for the conveyance of water for the efficient working of the location by hydraulic mining methods, and shall commence such hydraulic mining on a sufficiently extensive scale within that period, otherwise the lease issued in his favour will be null and void; and that if the location is at any time worked by any method other than hydraulic mining or dredging, the lease will be subject to cancellation. The lease issued in favour of the applicant to be on the prescribed form, with such additions and alterations as he, the Minister of the Interior, may find it necessary to make and shall provide for an expenditure of at least $10,000 within one year from the date of the lease.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
28-4 Clerk of the Privy Council.

(337) River St. Lawrence—Ship channel between Quebec and Montreal—Pointe aux Trembles course—Ile Ste. Thérèse upper range lights—Change in position—New light buildings.

Two new range light buildings have been erected by the Government of Canada on the north side of the ship channel of the River St. Lawrence, off the upper end of Ile Ste. Thérèse, to mark the axis of the widened Pointe aux Trembles channel from Ile aux Vaches traverse to Longue Pointe curve.

These two new buildings replace the old front range light on Ile aux Vaches, and the old back range light on the south shore of Ile Ste. Thérèse, which marked this course; but the channel having been widened 150 feet the axis of the widened channel is parallel to and 75 feet southeast of that marked by the old range lights.

The new range lights were put in operation on the 15th November, 1904, and the old ones discontinued on the same date. The old buildings have been taken down.

The new front building stands on the south shore of Ile aux Vaches, 75 feet S. 53° 30′ E. from the old one. The foundation consists of a concrete pier 18 feet high, built with a pointed nose upstream. This is surmounted by an octagonal wooden lantern, painted white, and 17 feet high from its base to the ventilator on the lantern.

The light, which is as heretofore fixed white catopric, is elevated 32 feet above the summer level of the river, and should be visible 4 miles in the line of range.

Lat. N. 45° 39′ 56″
Long. W. 73 28 8

The back tower stands off the south shore of Ile Ste. Thérèse, 75 feet S. 53° 30′ E., from the site of the old tower, and 5,030 feet N. 36° 30′ E. from the front light. It is a square building with sloping sides, consisting of an open steel framework with wooden slats on the upper portion of the side facing the alignment, surmounted by an enclosed wooden watchroom and a square wooden lantern.

The steel frame is painted red and the woodwork, including the slats, white.

The building is 71 feet high from the pier to the ventilator on the lantern. It stands upon a concrete pier rising 20 feet above the summer level of the river.

The light, which is similar to that shown from the front tower, is elevated 84 feet above the water. The two lights in one astern lead up on a course S. 36° 30′ W. from Ile aux Vaches traverse to Longue Pointe curve. N. to M. No. 129 (337) 28-12-04.

Samedi, le 17e jour de décembre 1904.

PRÉSENT :

SON EXCELLENCE LE GOUVERNEUR GÉNÉRAL EN CONSEIL.

VU un memorandum daté le 28 de novembre 1904, du ministre de l'Intérieur, disant, relativement à un arrêté en conseil du 25 d'août 1891, qui attribue à feu Sa Majesté la Reine certains terrains marécageux pour les fins de la province du Manitoba,—

Que la subdivision légale 13 de la section 14, township 13, rang 13 à l'ouest du principal méridien, avait été incluse par erreur dans la liste attachée au dit arrêté en conseil, mais n'était pas disponible pour être transférée à la province parce qu'elle avait été concédée au nom de Kenneth McKenzie en date du 7 de mars 1881,—

A ces causes, le Ministre recommande que l'arrêté en conseil daté le 25 d'août 1891, qui attribue certains terrains à feu Sa Majesté la Reine pour les fins de la province du Manitoba, soit modifié en éliminant de la liste attachée au dit arrêté en conseil la subdivision légale 13 de la section 14, township 13, rang 13, à l'ouest du principal méridien.

Le comité soumet ce qui précède à l'approbation.

AVIS AUX NAVIGATEURS.

No. 129 de 1904.

(Avis de l'Atlantique No. 74.)

Tous les relèvements, à moins d'avis contraire, sont magnétiques et sont donnés venant de la mer, les milles sont des milles marins, les hauteurs sont au-dessus des hautes eaux, et toutes les profondeurs sont à l'eau basse moyenne.

QUÉBEC.

(337) FLEUVE SAINT-LAURENT—CHENAL DES NAVIRES ENTRE QUÉBEC ET MONTRÉAL—ROUTE DE LA POINTE AUX TREMBLES—FEUX SUPÉRIEURS DE L'ALIGNEMENT DE SAINTE-THÉRÈSE — CHANGEMENT DE POSITION – NOUVEAUX BATIMENTS.

Deux nouveaux bâtiments de feux d'alignement ont été construits par le gouvernement du Canada sur le côté nord du chenal des navires du fleuve Saint-Laurent, au large de l'extrémité supérieure de l'île Sainte-Thérèse, pour marquer l'axe du chenal élargi de la Pointe aux Trembles depuis la traverse de l'île aux Vaches jusqu'à la courbe de la Longue Pointe.

Ces deux nouveaux bâtiments remplacent l'ancien feu d'alignement antérieur sur l'île aux Vaches, et l'ancien feu d'alignement postérieur sur la rive sud de l'île Sainte-Thérèse qui marquaient cette route ; mais le chenal ayant été élargi de 150 pieds l'axe du chenal agrandi est parallèle mais à 75 pieds au sud-est de celui marqué par les anciens feux d'alignement.

Les nouveaux feux d'alignement ont été allumés le 15 de novembre 1904, et les anciens feux ont été supprimés. Les vieux bâtiments ont été démolis.

Le nouveau bâtiment antérieur repose sur la rive sud de l'île aux Vaches, à 75 pieds S. 53° 30′ E. de l'ancien. La fondation consiste d'une pile en béton

Le feu qui est blanc fixe catoptrique comme auparavant, est à 32 pieds au-dessus du niveau d'été du fleuve, et devrait être visible à 4 milles dans l'alignement.

Lat. N. 45° 39′ 56″
Long. O. 73 28 8

La tour postérieure repose sur la rive sud de l'île Sainte-Thérèse, à 75 pieds S. 53° 30′ E. de l'emplacement de la vieille tour, et 5,030 pieds N. 36° 30′ E. du feu antérieur. C'est un bâtiment carré avec côtés en pente, composé d'une charpente en acier avec les lames en bois sur la partie supérieure du côté regardant l'alignement, surmonté d'une guérite en bois et une lanterne carrée en bois.

La charpente d'acier est peinturé en rouge, et la boiserie, y compris les lattes, en blanc.

Le feu, qui est semblable à celui montré de la tour antérieure, est à 84 pieds au-dessus de l'eau. Les deux feux en conjonction en arrière conduisent dans une direction S. 36° 30° O. de la traverse de l'île aux Vaches à la courbe de la Longue Pointe.
